BATTLING GREEKS CAPTURE PORTO EDDA

Duesseldorf Heavily Pounded by British Bombers

Force Continual Flight Of Italian Forces from Main Bases in Albania

New Successes May Mean Virtual Collapse of Enemy Efforts To Enter the Greek Capital

[By The Associated Press]

OCHRIDA, Yugoslavia, Dec. 5 — Greek forces, said to be gaining even more momentum in their counter-invasion of Italian-held Albania, were reported by Greek sources tonight to have entered Porto Edda and expected to occupy Argirocastro tomorrow.

(Confirmation is lacking from any other quarter. Neither the Greek high command and Athens sources nor Rome dispatches have reported Greek entrance into Porto Edda. Advices on the Greek side merely have pictured impending occupation of the two towns.)

At the opposite end of the mountain-broken battlefront, near the Yugoslav border, Greek troops, fighting in snow and fog, were said to have cleared their foe from the last positions on Kamia and Mokra mountains, forcing a continued Italian withdrawal toward Elbasani, in the road to Tirana, Albania's capital.

Meanwhile, Albanian refugees arriving in Yugoslavia declared that Italy faced a general uprising in her Albanian protectorate unless she could deliver food and supplies. They asserted that hundreds of Albanians deserters from the Italian army were hiding out in mountain and forests.

Hard Blow to Italians

The reported new successes in the astonishing Greek campaign would mean virtual collapse of the Italians' southern operations.

Thirty-nine days ago when this Balkan war started Italian forces of invasion in the southern sector were aimed at capture of Ioannina, in Northern Greece, and eventually Athens, the Greek capital, itself.

At the other end of the Albanian front other Fascist columns attempted to drive east onto Phlorina, Greece, enroute to Salonika. This northern drive was squelched by Greek assaults which brought capture of the Italians' base, Kiritza, and later Pogradetz.

May Lose Last Base

Now, if the reports on Porto Edda and Argirocastro are to be credited, Italy has lost the principal sea gateway into southern Albania and stands to lose her last remaining base in the frontier region for conquest of Greece.

Heavy fighting was reported in southern and central sectors of the Albanian front with Italian aviation attempting to stem the Greek advances. The British Royal Air Force, according to Athens reports, also was taking a strong hand in the Greek offensive.

An RAF communique reported taking bombardment of Italian troops and the communicatione vital to their withdrawal from the south-western corner of Albania, two direct hits which left an Italian destroyer "listing heavily" off Porto Edda and apparent destruction of ten Italian planes in an air battle yesterday.

Greeks Take Premet

The fates of Porto Edda and Argirocastro were closely linked by the tumbled geography of southwestern Albania and their combined fate was linked to that of Premet, a town fifteen miles within Albania which the Greek high command announced today had been taken.

Capture of Premet, in the upper valley of the Viosa river, opened the

Champion Steer Is Sold for $3,498 By Girl Owner

Evelyn Asay Gives Money to Father To Help Buy a Farm

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (AP) — Pretty Evelyn Asay sold her grand champion steer today for $3,498, enough to help her father buy a farm.

The 1,060-pound Hereford, best beef animal exhibited at the forty-first international livestock exposition, brought $3.30 a pound, nearly twenty times the highest price paid on the day's open market.

Miss Asay, an 18-year-old Mt. Carroll, Ill., Junior College freshman, smiled for a moment when the $3,498 check was handed to her, then hugged "Sargo," white-faced steer, and wept. The two had been close companions since Miss Asay bought the animal eleven months ago for $50 when he was six months old. He won $835 in prize money for her at various exhibitions.

Franklyn L. Hutton, Father of Woolworth Heiress, Dies at 64

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 5 (AP) Franklyn L. Hutton, father of the Woolworth heiress, Barbara Hutton, the Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, died at his plantation thirty miles from here today after an illness of several weeks.

He was 64 years old.

Private funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m., Saturday at Prospect Hill, Hutton's 5,500-acre estate on the Edisto river near here. Burial plans were not anounced but it was presumed the body would be sent to New York.

Hutton, who was a retired New York broker, was ill when he came to Charleston from Atlantic City about two weeks ago.

Shortly after his arrival, Barbara was summoned from the west coast to be at his bedside.

Family at Bedside

Besides the countess other members of the family were at the bedside when he died at 12:30 p. m. They included his wife, the former Irene Curley Bodde of Detroit, his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, who have a winter home near here, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas Middleton, of Pleasantville, N. J.

Hutton's first wife, the mother of his titled daughter, was Edna Woolworth, whose father founded the five-and-ten cent store chain that made his name a household word and brought him millions. She

Taft and Clark Deny England Is Good Loan Risk

Two Senators Angered by Statements of High Officials

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—High official pronouncements that England is a "good risk" for loans were directly and hotly disputed in the Senate today by Senator Robert Taft (R-Ohio), who called such statements "nonsense" and by Senator Clark (D-Mo) who said he was "very much startled."

Meanwhile, Sir Frederick Phillips, undersecretary of the British treasury, was in Washington to detail his governement's financial position to authorities here. He is scheduled to confer with Secretary Morgenthau tomorrow. Morgenthau today repeated the "good hisk" statement, made originally by Secretary Jones, the federal loan administrator, yesterday.

Taft not only objected, but bitterly criticized the treasury head's lending policy, asserting he had "lost all sense of reason in the performance of his duty."

If a pending loan from the treasury's stabilization fund to the Chinese government is carried through, Taft said, Morgenthau will be guilty of "usurpation of authority and breach of trust."

Claims Loan Illegal

Taft declared he personally favored a loan to China, but such a transaction requires Congressional approval, he said, and Morgenthau had obtained only the endorsement of the Senate and House banking committees. He contended this was insufficient to legalize the loan. He quoted Morgenthau as having promised some time ago not to use the stabilization fund for loans to foreign governments without first seeking Congressional guidance.

Clark, commenting on the question of loans to England, said that country had received very large loans during the World War, had not kept up its payments, and had called the lender "uncle Shylock."

Clark Scores Morgenthau

Informed that Morgenthau as well as Jones had called England a "good risk," he said "nobody cares what Morgenthau thinks is a good loan—he's never had a business transaction in his life—but Jesse Jones is a different proposition." He said he was "very much startled" by Jones' remark.

Clerk went on the demand a congressional study of British resources as a prelude to any extensio of credit. Such a proposal is puending in the foreign relations committee with apparently powerful backing.

Disputes Jones's Claim

Taft said that while he was "open-minded" on the question of a British loan it was "nonsense" to call Britain a "good risk."

"If we are going to do anything it might perhaps be better to give them the money than lend it to them. At least that ought to be considered. In the end I think we may have to lend money to England but some immediate aid to Canada would be desirable first."

Morgenthau did not elaborate his approval of the Jones "good risk"

Large Section of East Recovering From Heavy Storm

At Least Nine Deaths Reported in New York; Traffic Halted

[By The Associated Press]

The eastern seaboard reached for its earmuffs yesterday (Thurs.) in the wake of snow and ice from Maine to northern Virginia—part of a storm which swept out over the north Atlantic and added to the hazards of war-time shipping.

Battering seas and high gales were reported in distress calls from three vessels asking immediate assistance.

Highways were treacherous, traffic was disrupted in some sections, air travel out of New York was almost at a standstill and at least nine deaths, including four in New York city and Long Island, were attributed directly of indirectly to the storm.

Falling temperatures extended into the middle west with a drop to five below reported at Wausau, Wis.

There was a cold spot, too, in southeast Georgia and northeast

U. S. Convoys for British Ships Not Considered Likely

Neither Will American Ships Carry Food to Belligerents

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—Officials appeared tonight to be giving little consideration to the idea of convoying British merchant ships across the Atlantic or allowing American vessels to take supplies to Great Britain.

Despite concern over recent British shipping losses and a desire to extend further measures of assistance, it was indicated that the administration was reluctant at this time to take such steps as these.

Growing discussion of these possibilities in unofficial quarters, however, raised the prospect that they might take shape later as important issues in Congress or the administration.

American ships are now barred from entering the war zone by the neutrality act, which was designed to avoid a situation such as that which played an important part in American entry into the World War.

Days of 1917 Recalled

Early in 1917, Germany launched its unrestricted submarine campaign which led to repeated diplomatic protests from the United States and finally to the severance of diplomatic relations. President Wilson, in asking for a declaration of war, gave the submarine campaign as the primary reason.

Then, as now, British shipping losses were reaching their wartime peak.

The neutrality act makes it unlawful "for any American vessel to carry any passengers or any articles or materials to any state named" in a presidential proclamation designating belligerent nations.

Fixing of the combat zone closed to American shipping is left to the president. This now surrounds the

Parliament Turns Back First Move for Peace

Votes 341 to 4 against Plan To Compromise with Axis

[By The Associated Press]

LONDON, Dec. 5—The first formal demand that Britain move to end this fifteen months' old war by compromise was beaten down in the House of Commons today by 341 votes to four.

Actually it was supported by six men in a debate which the government interpreted as 'a sign of our strength."

The prime adherent made it clear that behind the peace move was the fear that every one of Britain's industrial cities would become a "Coventry" by spring, battered to the ground by German bombs.

But the motion, combined with a request for a specific statement of British war aims which drew somewhat wider adherence, was smothered after Clement R. Attlee, deputy government leader and head of the official labor party, declared:

"The alternative is not war and peace . . . it is war and what kind of peace?"

Demand Immediate Peace

A motion by the independent labor party, a Pacifist section of Parliament which has three members in the House of Commons and is now the only actual opposition, set off the debate. These three demanded that Britain not only state her specific war aims but seek an immediate peace because "there is no certainty of a great military victory."

When the vote was taken the ayes were from James Maxton, labor, a former Scottish schoolteacher; Dr. Alfred Salter, a Laborite from London's east side; David Kirkwood, Independent Labor, a longtime Clydeside Trades Union leader, and William Gallagher, the only Communist member of the House.

Grand Jury Probes Campaign Spending Of Major Parties

But Both Chairmen Are Absent and Little Is Revealed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—Beginning a broad investigation of campaign spending by both major parties, a federal grand jury heard details of Democratic expenditures today from Party Treasurer Oliver Quayle, Jr., and then listened to testimony by John W. Hanes and Lewis W. Douglas, former New Deal officials who supported Wendell L. Willkie.

Although scheduled for testimony today, Chairmen Edward J. Flynn of the Democratic National Committee and Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of the Republican National Committee did not appear. Both have been away from Washington, and have not yet been served with subpoenaes.

Maurice Milligan, former Kansas City district attorney and a special assistant attorney general is in charge of the inquiry. It is designed to ascertain whether either party violated provisions of the Hatch act or the federal corrupt practices act.

Higher Federal Pay Lures State Men to Capital

Bridge Department 'Nearly Wrecked', Whitman Discloses

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5 (AP) — Higher-paying federal jobs have drawn so many State Roads Commission employes that the commission's bridge department "has been nearly wrecked," chairman Ezra B. Whitman disclosed today.

"We are greatly concerned about the whole salary picture here," Whitman said, in advance of a budget conference with State Budget Director Walter Kirkman.

"Under our present setup, we simply cannot match government salaries or even hope to compete. We've lost six or seven excellent employes in the kind of jobs which are hard to fill — at our pay scales."

Ask Salary Increases

Highway department officials have recommended salary increases totaling between $30,000 and $40,000 in an effort to hold on to necessary workers, but the requests have not

Roosevelt To Seek Approval of Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway

DETROIT, Dec. 5. (AP) — President Roosevelt announced today he would seek earliest possible Senate approval of a treaty with Canada for completion of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway and power project as a means of speeding up defense production and creating a safe haven for ship construction in the event of war.

The president's statement, read to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway conference here by Assistant Secretary of State A. A. Berle, was hailed by the organization's leaders as an indication of victory in the twenty-eight-year battle for a deep outlet from the Great Lakes basin to the sea.

John C. Beukema, chairman of the executive committee of the National Seaway Council, told the conference that he felt "the end of the road was near" in the struggle to obtain completion of the seaway.

"It ranks first on any long time program of national defense," he asserted.

Negotiations Continuing

At Ottawa, Ont., Canadian officials said negotiations for completion of the seaway are "continuing satisfactorily."

The treaty to complete the waterway was defeated in Congress in 1934. The president today termed opponents of the proposal six years ago "a mistaken opposition, based on failure to appraise the full needs of their country in the world situation which was even then developing."

In 1934, the president said, completion of the seaway "was an opportunity." He added "it is now a vital necessity."

Continuing, the president said:

"The United States needs this Great Lake-locked sea as a secure haven in which it will always be able to build ships

Farm Production In Italy Fails To Meet Nazis' Needs

So Italy Will Accept German Help To Increase Yields

[By The Associated Press]

ROME, Dec. 5 —Italy's farm production is not yet meeting the Nazi's needs, it was disclosed today, and thus she has agreed to accept German help in attempting to increase her agricultural yields.

The agreement was announced through Steffani, the official Italian news agency.

Italian growers, it was stated, will be assured good prices "stabilized as much as possible" by "elimination of the speculative influence on the world market."

Whether this means that the Italian government must act as a direct buyer of foodstuffs, selling then to its Axis partner was not made clear, but to foreign observers some such step seemed to be in view.

Plan Cooperative Action

There also will be cooperative action in fighting plant pests, breeding and feeding of livestock, canning, irrigation and colonization.

(All this appeared to be another German effort to defeat the British blockade. It followed by only a day a broad economic and agricultural alliance made with Rumania under which Germany is to extend financial credits for ten years for increasing Rumania's agricultural output, among other things.

(Only last Friday, a U. S. Department of Agriculture study based upon diplomatic reports said that an extension of food rationing was to be expected in Italy this winter; that the British blockade had disorgannzed the Italian economic structure; that the poor in great numbers already were suffering from malnutrition.

(All Italian imports of coffee and meat, ninety-five percent of her fat and oil imports and seventy percent of normal celeal imports had been cut off, the report added.)

Important Highway Cut

On the military side, the Italian high command's communique said fascist aerial action on the Albanian front had cut the Premet-Perati highway at several points.

"The objective appeared to be to halt a Greek advance beyond Premet— an advance which, if carried some twenty miles, would cut off the Italian forces at the southern base of Agirocastro.)

Longest Effort of RAF to Smash Nazi War Machine Said To Have Caused Heavy Damage

[By The Associated Press]

LONDON, Dec. 5 — Duesseldorf, inland German port and one of the chief cities of the industrial Ruhr, was pounded by British bombers for almost twelve hours last night, the air ministry said today, in the longest attack of the British campaign to smash the power of the Nazi war machine at its source.

Wave after wave of bombers, the ministry's news service reported, braved "dirty" flying weather to roar over the Rhineland city from a little after 6 p. m. last night until almost 6 a. m. today, raining incendiaries and high explosives on the railway yards of the Derendorf district to the north, the Mannesmann Rohrenwerke armament works, the coal gas plants and the quays and dockyards.

While this raid was going on, other British planes were busy at the other end of the Axis attacking Turin, one of Italy's main manufacturing cities. A British pilot who followed the first waves to Turin said there were so many fires and explosions that "you couldn't distinguish the effect of our bombs falling among them."

These units operated from England and a Mediterranean base.

Bomb Turin Arsenal

The Royal arsenal at Turin was bombed for two hours, the ministry said, adding that "much was done to reduce its output of guns, gun carriages, shell cases and tanks."

Bombs burst on the roof of the Fiat works, the ministry said, starting a large fire inside which burned so fiercely that a British pilot, homeward bound to his base by way of the Alps, found his way lighted as he approached the towering, snow-clad peaks.

The RAF also attacked Dortmund, Antwerp, Ostend and Calais and reported gigantic bursts among the docks and shipping of the ports.

British bombers were working in the coastal area again tonight and long-range British and German guns duelled from cross-channel emplacements. Shells were exchanged for more than an hour.

Attack British Convoy

The Nazi artillery attack was first directed against a convoy of twenty-eight ships passing down the channel. British guns accepted the challenge. British bombs could be seen bursting for miles along the French mainland.

(Duesseldorf, chief target of the RAF in Germany, lies on the right bank of the Rhine, about twenty-four miles northwest of Cologne. It has a population of nearly 500,000 and numerous factories producing machinery, chemicals, paper, glass and engineering goods. It is an important railway and steamship center.)

Pilots counted fifteen or twenty fires in and around the Drendorf yards, the ministry said, the light of the flames quivering upward through cloudbanks.

Economists Figure Defense Plans Will Cost 35 Billions in 5 Years

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—Agriculture department economists estimate that the national defense program as now projected will involve an expenditure of about $35,000,000,000 in the next five years with a peak outlay of $9,000,000,000 in 1942.

In a report on "the impact of war and the defense program on agriculture," the economists said even greater expenditures might become necessary if there were "additional unfavorable developments in the world political situation."

On the other hand, they said, peace might be followed by a public demand for a return to economy in military expenditures.

The $35,000,000,000 estimate, of the possible cost of the government's preparedness plans is the first to come from official sources. The figure is about double appropriations and authorizations already made by Congress.

Drafted for the purpose of helping officials plan future agricultural aid programs, the report said defense expenditures were expected to be about $7,500,000,000 in 1941, $9,000,000,000 in 1942, $7,500,000,000 in 1943, $6,000,000,000 in 1944, and $5,000,000,000 in 1945.

"The significance of these figures," the report said, "may be better visualized by noting that the annual average increase over 'normal' in military expenditures during this

Dies and Jackson Get Together To Expose Propaganda

Attorney General Has No Objection To Revealing Facts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5, (AP)—The justice department and the Dies committee, which have been critical of each other in the recent past, got together today for an exposure of Nazi and Fascist propaganda in the mails.

Attorney General Jackson notified Rep. Voorhis (D-Calif.) of the committee that although the department has been investigating the situation, there was "no objection" to the committee's "having the facts and giving such publicity as you see fit to this flow of propaganda."

The propaganda in question, Jackson said, has been "imported to this country through use of mailing privileges which this country accords other countries under the international postal convention" and most of it "is legal in character and not subject to criminal prosecution."

Not Against Publicity

"The steps which we have taken and those which we are contemplating taking in connection with it will not be prejudiced by disclosure," Jackson told Voorhis in a formal telegram.

This followed a conference between Jackson and Voorhis, designated by Chairman Dies (D.-Tex.), of the committee to act in his behalf, for the purpose of promoting cooperation between the department and the committee.

Voorhis said afterward that it was agreed each had "a place in a particular field — the committee in exposing subversive activities and the department in the apprehension of violators of the law."

Meanwhile committee sources predicted that indictments would result from evidence turned over to the department that German sympathizers were sabotaging a British plane order in a California factory, which was not named.

Sabotage Suspected

Dies said in a radio speech Monday night that an experimental plane had crashed there with indications of sabotage and a committee clerk said today he was advised by a Los Angeles newspaperman that a B25 medium bomber had been wrecked there after its starboard motor caught fire on a trial flight.

Col. Lowell H. Smith of the army air corps said at Santa Monica, Calif., that there was no evidence of sabtotage, however, in the crash of a British experimental pursuit ship Nov. 20 and the fire yesterday in a B-25 bomber, made by the North American Aviation Co. Both incidents were purely accidental, he said.

Jackson, in an interview, advised against too hasty assumption of sabotage in connection with industrial fires and explosions, explaining that industry is engaged in a great and sudden speedup which results in accidents."

CRASH WHICH CAUSED EIGHT DEATHS

yet been approved by the commission. The raises were discussed today with Kirkman.

Whitman said national defense projects were not responsible for federal inroads on commission personnel. Regular civil service jobs, for which examinations are advertised frequently, are attracting the employes, he asserted.

Whitman said one employe accepted a federal post which raised his salary from $2,400 to $3,800 — an increase of $1,400. In an effort to match another salary offered to a second employe, Whitman continued, the commission worked about six weeks to get additional funds allocated but the employe had meanwhile accepted the federal job.

Deplores Low Wages

"There's no question about it," the chairman said. "We're paying too low a salary scale here. We have engineers here, making $200 and $225 who could demand and get $100 a month more in private industry."

Western New York was under a heavy fall as were parts of New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. There was 5½ inches at Buffalo.

New low temperatures were forecast for Pennsylvania. Thermometers throughout the east which hovered in the 20's and low 30's through out the day were on their way down.

"Icing Conditions" Blamed for Loss of Eight Lives in Crash

Eye-Witness Describes Wrecking of Giant Liner in Chicago

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (AP)—An eye witness told a coroner's jury today that "icing conditions" prevailed at the time of a United Air Lines plane crash that resulted in eight deaths.

While the witness, Policeman Thomas F. O'Hara, was relating his account of last night's tragedy, eight survivors were being treated in hospitals. The pretty stewardess, Florence M. Little of Chicago, was reported to be in a "very critical" state.

O'Hara, testifying at the inquest before a jury composed of six aviation experts, said that he was in the radio control tower of the Chicago municipal airport, approximately two blocks from the vacant lot where the mainliner fell, at 5:48 p. m.

He reported that he saw the plane approaching a runway for a landing at what he judged was a normal altitude of about 150 feet.

Turned Nose to Ground

"It seemed to make a left turn with the nose down and go into the ground," he added. "There was a flash as the ship fell."

He figured that the "flash" occurred when the liner struck electric power lines.

O'Hara testified that earlier the pilot had asked for landing instructions and that the control tower operator had advised a west landing due to "icing conditions."

The policeman added that he did not know whether the "icing conditions" were on the plane or the ground but that a light snow was falling.

After the inquest was continued to Jan. 8, pending recovery of survivors, O'Hara, the only witness, told reporters that the last broadcast he heard from the pilot was for permission to circle the airport once more to "get the ice off his windshield." He did not elaborate.

Deny Report of Ice

Officials of the UAL and the federal government also began investigations. Company spokesmen denied a report that the plane was carrying a heavy amount of ice. They stated:

"Evidence indicated that immediately after the accident there was only a minor amount of ice on the airplane. During the period immediately preceding and following the accident other airliners were arriving and departing from the Chicago airport without interruption because of icing."

Two men—Keller F. Melton of Chicago and Charles W. Manville of Cleveland—died this morning. Killed last night were Captain Philip C. Scott, Chicago, the pilot; George S. Young, Oak Park, Ill., co-pilot; Stuart W. Moore, Cleveland; Wilbert J. Austin, Cleveland; Miss Jane Selby, Akron, Ohio; and Lee F. Haneline, Downers Grove, Ill.

British isles and includes the whole European coastline except the Atlantic side of Portugal, including Lisbon, and the northwest coast of Spain.

One possibility advanced unofficially is that the president might change the combat zone to permit American ships to enter the ports of neutral Eire (Ireland).

What effect this would have, however, as a measure of aiding Britain presumably would depend on what arrangements could be made between Britain and Eire.

Nazis Might Sink Ships

Moreover, such a step would mean that American ships would enter an area covered by Germany's "total blockade" around Great Britain.

In proclaiming this "total blockade" last August, Germany declared that "every neutral ship which voyages into this territory in the future exposes herself to destruction."

Only recently, Germany refused to give safe conduct for an American ship to go to Galway, Ireland, to evacuate Americans from Great Britain.

The suggestion that the United States "help patrol trade routes of the Atlantic with her own navy" was made in the British house of commons yesterday by a conservative member, Ian Campbell Hannah.

On this question, there has been some unofficial talk that the United States might extend its present panAmerican neutrality patrol farther out into the Atlantic as a protection to British shipping.

To afford effective protection to British ships, however, American naval vessels presumably would have to be prepared to fight off any submarine attacks and to do so, it was argued in some quarters, might result in involving the United States in the war.

ent Labor, were named tellers and could not vote.

"No opportunity should be lost to end the war, if necessary, in a spirit of compromise," declared McGovern.

If the war lasts until next February, he argued, "I expect that there will be intensive bombing from this country and if that is so, the large reserves of planes and ammunition which Germany has been piling up will be utilized for the purpose of subjecting every industrial city in this country to a Coventry raid."

McGovern's only cheers came when he explained that his group backed appeasement because it believed anything was better than war and that the late Neville Chamberlain, the author of appeasement, "will have a much bigger place in history than he has at the moment."

"Don't let us be misled by statements about fighting for freedom, for democracy," cried McGovern.

He expressed confidence that a peace appeal from Britain would evoke a response from the German people; "Over the heads of their politicians."

Stephen proposed a two-fold basis for a peace conference:

"Acceptance by the contending parties of the restoration of freedom in all countries; both parties to put all their material resources which they are willing to devote to the war into a common pool to bring about a new civilization in the world."

This is the time for a peace move he said, because the military situation of Britain and Germany is "fairly evenly balanced."

Maxton echoed his views.

Two regular laborites, James Griffiths and Samuel Silverman, and the liberal leader, Sir Percy Harris, supported the move for a statement of war aims, but Griffiths declared: "The choice is not peace or war, but capitulation or survival."

The Conservative Henry Brooke bitterly declared that McGovern "would advocate for the whole western world surrender to slavery and devils," and said: "the war must go on to victory."

Cheers rolled through the House as Atlee, speaking in Prime Minister Churchill's absence, denounced "the fundamental fallacy" of the idea that "on the one side is this terrible war and on the other side, all the beauties of peace."

He turned to Maxton and asked him if he would "fight or give way" in case Hitler refused to listen to the "voice of reason."

Maxton said the question was "hypothetical."

The House laughed.

Atlee observed that "probably this debate would not be tolerated in any other country at war. . . . but I believe it will show our strength."

On war aims, he continued:

"Our aim is to try to establish a world of free peoples. We cannot lay down the law to the rest of the world and we do not want to. We can only say: 'Here is our way of life.' . .

Before, Atlee had reported to the House "gradual" progress in the matter of a solution for night bombing.

way for a Greek advance twenty miles further down the valley road to Tepelini, where the Viosi is joined by its tributary, the Dryno. Argirocastro lies in the Dryno valley, about twenty miles up river from Tepelini.

The only escape from Argirocastro left by the thundering mountain artillery of the Greeks was northward toward Tepelini. The Greek advance toward Tepelini threatened to bottle up the Argirocastro forces and thus, coupled with the frontal pressure on Argisocastro itself, was reported forcing withdrawal.

The main inland route from Porta Edda into northern Albania passes through Argirocastro. Italians at Porto Edda could not use it. They were reported to be withdrawing along the twisting coastal road to Chimara, twenty-five miles northwest of the port.

The House of Commons' stern rejection of any form of peace gesture toward Britain's Nazi-Fascist foes deserves front rank in the European war news for many reasons.

Not the least is the repercussion that smashing 341-to-4 disavowal of appeasement sentiment may have on the shaping of American policy for expanding aid to Britain.

The peace gesture issue was raised by a trio of labor Leftists in Parliament. It served, however, to arm Prime Minister Churchill's war ministry with an emphatic new vote of confidence approving aggressive prosecution of the war.

New Warning to Axis

It sent a new and grim notification to Berlin and Rome that British public will to fight it out to the bitter end is unshaken. It also sounded a positive assurance to Washington that there is no appeasement sentiment of consequence in England.

Churchill's parliamentary deputy, Clement Attlee, struck that note in debate. No other government at war would permit such a debate at all, he said. That Axis propagandists would attempt to use it as evidence of waning British war morale was to be expected also, he went on, adding:

"But I believe it will show our strength."

It did on the vote. It also confirmed previous indications that British political spokesmen believe the war, as a result of developments in Greece and Albania, has turned a vital corner in Britain's favor.

British See Victory

That faint echo of the dead-and-gone appeasament policy in Britain sounded oddly in a chamber still echoing with demands for a knockout blow at Italy to crack the German-Italian Axis. It can be assessed definitely by the vote yardstick, however, as meaning that Britons in the mass believe they have already achieved victory in a fight for mere survival and are visioning ultimate complete victory.

As the House thumbed down the peace gesture proposal in London, the Greeks were enlarging their victories in Albania. The last Italian operating bases in Southern Albania were toppling.

The British have now revealed to neutral press observers that they are rapidly converting the mountainous Greek island of Crete into another Mediterranean Gibraltar. Its greatest value, however, would be as a base of offensive operations against Italian forces in Egypt or against Italy direct.

and more ships in order to protect our trade and our shores.

"The United States needs, tremendously needs, the power project which will form a link in the seaway to produce aluminum and more aluminum for the airplane program which will assure command of the air."

The president said that "selfish interests will tell you that I am cloaking this great project in national defense in order to gain an objective which has always been dear to me."

"But I tell you," he asserted, "that it has always been dear to me because I recognized its vital importance in peace and in war."

Berle, upon completing delivery of the president's message, asserted that Canadian power resources already are taxed to capacity for defense needs, and that more power is required on the United States side of the St. Lawrence for the same urgent purpose.

The president wrote that because of the project's vital defense character "I have allocated one million dollars of the defense funds made available by the Congress to make the necessary engineering surveys and to prepare the preliminary plans and specifications so that no time may be lost in starting the undertaking."

died in 1917, and nine years later Hutton married Mrs. Bodde, a Detroit divorcee.

Countess and Father Close

The countess and her father were very close to each other. She frequently made long trips to be with him for the Christmas holidays. He went to Paris to attend her marriage to the late Prince Alexis Mdivani, whom she divorced in 1935.

After the divorce she married Count Haugwitz-Reventlow of Denmark, their divorce is now reported to be nearing consummation.

The countess was credited with effecting a reconciliation between her father and her stepmother after an estrangement which became known when he advertised last year that he would no longer be responsible for Mrs. Hutton's debts. Later he published a statement saying the advertisement was "in error," and withdrew it.

Roosevelt Visits U. S. Naval Bases On British Island

President Inspects Sites for Important American Forts

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

ABOARD U. S. S. MAYRANT AT KINGSTON, JAMAICA, Dec. 5 (AP via Radio)—Without fanfare or formalities, President Roosevelt today inspected sites for United States naval bases in this key British island of the Caribbean.

It was the president's first visit to the waters of a belligerent since the war began and his first time in British waters since August of last year, when he visited Nova Scotia and Newfoundland just before hostilities broke out in Europe.

His tour favored by sunny skies, the president looked over the prospective American naval anchorage at Portland bight and adjacent land area, including Goat Island and the nearby Cays inside the bight which were leased from Britain in the destroyer deal. He also saw the site acquired for an emergency and auxiliary airfield along Bakers canal.

Other Rights Secured

Besides these points, almost in view of the guns protecting the West Indian British naval station, the United States has obtained territory in Jamaica for recreational and hospital use, the right to develop dockyard facilities at historic Port Royal at the entrance of Kingston harbor for joint Anglo-American use, plus reciprocal rights with Britain for military airfields being established by the two governments.

Mr. Roosevelt arrived on the cruiser Tuscaloosa, accompanied by the destroyers Mayrant and Trippe. By agreement with British authorities, salutes and formalities were dispensed with as the Tuscaloosa nosed into Kingston harbor.

Receives British Officials

An official call was paid by United States Consul General H. H. Watson and party who were followed by a British delegation including Sir Arthur Richards, governor of Jamaica; Lady Richards and their children, and Colonial Secretary and Mrs. A. W. G. Grantham.

After Watson had been put ashore, the Tuscaloosa and her escort destroyers weighed anchor and proceeded twenty-five miles southwest along the coast to Portland bight where the president was luncheon host to British officials.

Mr. Roosevelt spent part of yesterday afternoon at the Guantanamo naval base discussing with commanding officers the plans for extensive development of the defense post.

Daniels To Resign "While Young Man"

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 5, (AP) — U. S. Ambassador Josephus Daniels said today he was planning to resign his post "Because I want to finish some books I'm writing while I'm still a young man." He is past 78.

He said he had "no idea of remaining in Mexico four more years," but emphasized his plans to leave here after nearly eight years were indefinite.

"I may be here a year, or three months," he said. He did make it clear that he would not resign during his Christmas vacation. He and Mrs. Daniels are to leave by train Dec. 16 to spend the holidays at their Raleigh home. "I'll be back after Christmas," Daniels said.

statement. So far as he knew, he said, Sir Frederick was here only to present factual information on the condition of British finances and the extent of resources which are available for purchasing American supplies, not to make a loan request.

"He has been here twice," Morgenthau said, "and he has never asked anything before."

During the day, it became known that the treasury and the Export-Import Bank were planning to grant a credit of something like $100,000,000 to Argentina. Secretary Morgenthau said he was considering making $50,000,000 of the stabilization fund available to stabilize the exchange rate on Argentine and United States currencies. The remainder will come from the Export-Import Bank, officials indicated.

Deserted 15 Times, Woman Asks Divorce

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 5 (AP) — Margot M. Nicholson, 26, of suburban Mt. Lebanan, complained in her divorce suit against John H. Nicholson today that he left her fifteen times before his final desertion in Charlottesville, Va., where they lived.

Mrs. Nicholson told Judge Harry H. Rowand her husband said before leaving July 4, 1938 he had other interests, didn't care for the responsibility of marriage and besides was going to Hawaii. They were married here in 1934.

show, said she was going to turn the money over to her father as a part payment on a farm for the family. If any money was left, she added, she would use it for her education.

Today's price, nearly two and one half times that paid for last year's winner, was bid by the Firestone Tire and Rubber company of Akron, Ohio. Later the company gave the steer to the Champion Farmers of America, an organization of 125 farmers, representing all phases of agriculture in the country.

Bidding for "Sargo" started at $1, jumped quickly to $2 and advanced to the sale price in increases of five, ten and 15 cents. Each time Miss Asay led the fat and sleek steer around the auction ring the price jumped.

When the animal was sold, the girl said, "I guess it's all right. I didn't have any figure in mind."

The 1939 grand champion steer was sold for $1.35 a pound.

$3.35 Paid Last Year

In 1938, Irene Brown of Aledo, Ill., the only other girl who has exhibited a grand champion steer, received $3.35 a pound, the highest price since 1929, when a boom time top of $8.25 was paid.

The reserve grand champion steer, "Robin Hood," a shorthorn exhibited by the university of Alberta in Canada, was auctioned off at sixty cents a pound to Pfaelzer Brothers, Chicago meat dealers. The animal weighed 1,230 pounds and brought $738.

The grand champion load of fifteen Aberdeen Angus steers, averaging 1,078 pounds, exhibited by Schmidt brothers, Delmar, Iowa, was bought for a Chicago restaurant at twenty-seven cents a pound.

Charles J. Shore of Glanworth, Ont., exhibited the Cotswold champion ram.

investigation might continue for some weeks, with the jury studying data gathered both by Milligan and by the Senate Campaign Investigating Committee. Milligan told reporters that all the witnesses summoned would remain "subject to call" until the inquiry was completed. He said that there was no immediate intention of calling for party records.

Today's witnesses uniformly declined to comment on the proceedings, but Oren Root, Jr., one of Willkie's campaign managers, remarked that he was glad to appear "because I never have been before a grand jury."

Root Not Embarrassed

Root, who probably will testify tomorrow, told reporters there was nothing that could embarrass him in the record of the Willkie-for-President clubs, which he headed.

Hanes, a former undersecretary of the treasury, and Douglas, former budget director, spent most of the afternoon before the jury. The two were leaders in the National Committee of Democrats for Willkie.

Besides Root, representatives of the National Committee to uphold constitutional government are scheduled to appear tomorrow, along with a spokesman for the independent voters for Roosevelt and Wallace.

period (1941-45) is equivalent to about seven percent of the 1939 national income, sixty percent of total cash farm income, twenty-five percent of the value of durable goods production, and eighty percent of the value of private expenditures for new producers' durable goods."

The economists emphasized their estimates were based upon the assumption that the United States would not become directly involved in war, and that there would be no drastic change in present governmental policies with respect to agriculture, unemployment, prices and fiscal policies.

German Bombers Set Fires along British Coast

Drop Both Incendiary and Explosive Bombs; Hit Nurses' Home

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Dec. 6—(Friday) — A south coast town was heavily assaulted last night with German explosives and incendiary bombs which set off a series of fires—including one in a nurses' home adjoining a public institution—and left wreckage in three streets.

By midnight London itself had two alerts. In the first raid here four houses were smashed, and an undetermined number of persons were caught in the splinters of those homes.

Bombs fell all over the town in the south, but an air raid warden said after the attack was over that casualities had been light, the people having fled early to the shelters and remained there until the raiders passed signal.

Public Building Hit

The public institution itself, not identified, was reported hit.

A dozen bombs struck an east Anglian town early in the evening, and Gunfire was heard in several London districts.

The weather was unfavorable for the invaders but a second alarm sent people back into air raid shelters not long after the first all-clear signal had sounded.

But the raiders passed signal sounded at midnight without bombs or guns being heard.

13 Axis Planes Winged

Thirteen of the Axis planes brought down today were reported destroyed in air fights and by anti-aircraft fire over the southeast coast, and the fourteenth, a bomber, off the southeast coast.

The most serious happening of the daylight hours was a hit on a mental institution in a southeastern town. The number of casualties was not anounced.

London's first warning of the day came early in the afternoon and was brief.

Salesmen Wanted

Due to improved business conditions (we sold twice as many appliances in 1940 as in 1939) we need a number of good salesmen. Men who can qualify will be offered the finest proposition in this growing business. Men will sell Kelvinator appliaces, Bendix home laundry and Philco Radios.

A Merited Tribute To Splendid Service

THE MORNING HERALD, of Hagerstown, quite correctly says that the resignation of Frank G. Wagaman as associate judge of the Fourth judicial circuit, comprising Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties, occasions genuine regret not only among members of the Bar, but also by the people generally of the communities he has so well served.

"For a score and one years," says the Herald, "he has presided in court in the three counties with an enviable reputation. His outstanding legal ability, his eminent fairness and conscientiousness have won for him a high position throughout the state. In the multitude of cases before him during his long judicial career, Judge Wagaman has made impartiality a keynote. He has given to the strenuous duties, painstaking care, sound judgment and an ever present thought of fairness.

"Judge Wagaman has always been aware of the duties and responsibilities of the judiciary and has successfully striven to administer the law without fear or favor. In criminal cases, he has ever tried to see that no unfairness was done. He has applied his thorough knowledge of the law with skill and understanding but always with tolerance. To him, the judiciary has involved a close application of the law with an understanding of human problems.

"The rest he will take after leaving the bench will be well earned. It is the hope of his friends, who are legion, that he find relaxation and pleasure in the years to come. He will have the knowledge of a faithful performance of one of the most important of human tasks and will carry with him the well wishes of countless thousands, whose esteem and admiration he has won."

This tribute by a newspaper of his home town is well deserved and finds echoing response here and elsewhere in the circuit. Judge Wagaman has served splendidly and it is only an admission of the ruth to say that his service has achieved for him the distinction of being one of the ablest judges of Maryland.

Getting WPA Workers Back into Jobs

AN ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH from Washington says the Works Progress Administration has advised its 1,817,000 enrollees to be constantly on the lookout for jobs in expanding private and public industries.

Bard O. Hunter, acting WPA commissioner, said that those who did not accept such offers of employment automatically would be dropped from the rolls. If they took jobs and lost them, through no fault of their own, they would be eligible for WPA reinstatement, he said.

Hunter directed that notices to this effect be posted immediately at all WPA projects. Workers, he said, should accept temporary or permanent jobs wherever available under fair wage conditions, among which he mentioned payment of prevailing wages.

All of this is fair enough, and it is quite likely that the most of those in WPA jobs will take others whenever they are available. There may be some hesitancy with respect to temporary employment, particularly when that is uncertain or risky, but the privilege of reinstatement tends to offset that.

What the government should do in order to bring about this desirable transition is to continue its policy of encouraging private enterprise both on defense and in other operations, which at present it seems to be pursuing in contrast to its former action. The accruing results from this should serve to enlighten the administration with regard to the future.

Slum Clearance Is More Than Building Projects

SLUM CLEARANCE does not solve one of our principal social problems by the mere razing and rebuilding of structures, in the opinion of the Wheeling Intelligencer, and it is quite right about that.

The Wheeling newspaper is moved to the observation by excerpts published from a recent report of the Jacksonville, Fla., Housing Authority by the United States Municipal News, publication of the United States Conference of Mayors, in support of the movement for slum clearance.

This survey disclosed that thirty-two per cent of the major crimes of the city were committed in the so-called slum district, comprising less than one and eight-tenths per cent of the city area; that fourteen per cent of the juvenile cases came from there; that thirty-one per cent of the syphilis cases and twenty-seven per cent of the tuberculosis cases were confined to this same small area.

Other statistics, bearing on fire alarms, police work and the like were cited, all showing that in the relatively trivial slum area of the city originated a shockingly large percentage of its misery and the cost of its public service.

The Intelligencer admits that the lesson to be drawn from the report is, obviously, that slum areas should be abolished. But it declares that, while it approves the removal of these tumbled-down sections of our cities, it cannot accept the assumption that the problem is as simple as the architectural cleanup of slum areas.

"As a matter of fact," it says, "the slum of itself is no a problem at all. It is simply that part of a city to which those persons making up a slum population inevitably drift. They are there because living, such as it is, is cheap or the neighbors are not particular. Put these same people in the best of homes and they still would be the stuff of which slums are made. Leave them in these homes long enough, and the neighborhood would rot to the old slum level.

"It is not here intended to discourage slum clearance. But it is sought to emphasize that building is but a minor part of slum clearance. You have to remove or moderate the causes. If they are neglected, the money spent in building good houses to take the place of tumbled-down shacks is simply money thrown away."

This is a reminder that all the worthy character-building agencies fostered by intelligent civic leaders and supported by citizens who appreciate the importance of the movement have a worthy objective in aiding real slum clearance.

The Forked Twig Gets No Official Support

A COUNTY ENGINEER in Oklahoma attempts to remove the art of water-divining from the realm of the supernatural and give it a basis in science. The engineer's father, now 91, is adept at locating hidden springs, using a forked twig of the peach tree.

The diviners in other parts, of whom there is, or used to be, one in every village, prefer a fork of the witch hazel. Peach, apparently, serves as well, since the Oklahoman recently came within three-fifths of an inch of calculating the depth below the ground surface of water for a new well.

The Britannica's authority suggests an unconscious reflex or "motor-automatism" in the diviner (or dowser, as he is known in England), which may be excited by some stimulus upon his mind, an actual impression from external objects or a subconscious suggestion. It likens it to the homing instinct in some birds.

The Oklahoma theorist inclines to believe that those who have the gift are heavily charged with static electricity. Flowing water is also charged with static, he says, and the hydrocyanic acid in the twig (particularly of the peach) is an excellent conductor of electric discharges from the body. Hence, when the twig is carried over a subterranean body of water the electric impulse makes it dip.

It may be so. In the meantime, it cannot be proved by Washington, which officially answers all queries as to the efficiency of the divining rod to the effect that it is strictly the bunk.

Christmas Joy and Beauty Can Easily be Enhanced

IT is with a note of reluctance that a note of practicality is injected into consideration of the approach of Christmas. Properly, Christmas should be — and is — essentially a festival of the spirit and of sentiment. It should fill the mind and the heart.

It so happens, however, that the joy and beauty of Christmas are enhanced if some attention is given certain practical matters that are inseparable from the satisfactory observance of the day. To get the best results for the Christmas ideal, certain common sense rules should be followed.

Everybody knows that old one about "Do your Christmas shopping early." Those who live up to the slogan get more enjoyment out of Christmas. And the postmaster also has a word of sound counsel. He has gone to a great deal of trouble to find out just how long it takes a gift to reach any far-away point.

So it will not be the postmaster's fault if the gift or the Christmas card reaches its distant destination after the festival. He has done his duty in the matter, and the rest is up to the public.

The prospective shopper, if he is a foresighted and discerning person, will do his shopping without delay and he will do it right here in Cumberland where every reasonable need and desire can be satisfied. And he will not wait until two days before Christmas to carry his parcels and cards to the postoffice.

Among those who have recently studied his photo there is a divergence of opinion as to whether the Duke of Windsor is an elderly boy or a young gaffer.

Missouri farmers, we read, lost $32,000 by investing in a "death ray" machine. In a way, the machine really worked. It killed a lot of bankrolls.

One Life To Live

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Do you complain because you have but one life to live?

Shame on you! One life should be enough for any man.

Marshall Maslin

One life can be anything and everything.

It can be shabby, it can be rich. It can be a shining jewel or a ball of mud. Can be a stagnant pool or a clean and rippling stream. Burnt-out ashes, or a flaming torch. . . . A caress for a child or a bloody dagger. . . . A friendly light in a window or a cruel pitfall. . . . A blaze of glory or bitter failure.

One life is all you have, but one life is plenty. . . . It can be an example of courage, or an example of despair. . . . It can be bold, it can be craven. It can be warm and fruitful or cold and hard and sterile as selfishness. . . . It can be generous, it can be envious. . . . It can be beautiful, it can be ugly. . . . It can be patient and wise, reckless and idiotic. . . . It can be a field of usefulness, or a waste of destruction. . . . Sweet blossoms in a green field, or incendiary bombs falling on a church.

One life, you say, is all you have, but who would want more than this one chance to live?

You hold this one life in your hand. It is like a glorious pearl that glows if you wear it close to your heart, but sickens and pales if you shut it away in the dark.

Wear that one life proudly, gallantly, and it is a joy to all who behold it. Wear it timidly, in fear that at any moment it may be snatched from you, and you will soon have no life at all—and you will be a pathetic shell walking in the shape of a man.

This is your life and no other man makes it his. Your life in laughing infancy, your life in wondering youth, your life in stalwart manhood, and your life still in contemplative age. . . . Be true to this one life. If you are it will be more than enough for one man or woman.

Gen. Johnson Says Defense Reports Need Frankness

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh S. Johnson

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—Recent promising official utterances giving dates when we shall have ready specific numbers of army divisions, navy ships and army and navy fighting planes are something like the earlier way of reporting armaments "on hand or on order."

Progress has been commendable. Most officials in the armament effort have done the best they could under present handicaps of faulty organization, planning and insufficient authority. But it is a mistake to make promises of performances so far ahead and especially to do so in terms of "airplanes," "divisions," or "men under arms." They are too general in their meaning. They do not paint the true picture to people who are not familiar with just what the words mean. They are apt to paint too rosy a picture.

A survey of all the utterances of the War department, for example, over the past few years, would generally indicate a continuing satisfactory state of affairs—at least up to the spring of this year. A glance at our present predicament, in comparison, would indicate how mistaken and misleading they have been.

We Can Take It

It would be a lot better to put the soothing syrup back on the shelf and give us the bitter with the sweet. We can take it. We even suspect it.

The phrase "five thousand army airplanes" in estimating future production is not very informing. It doesn't tell whether they are fighting planes, or transport planes or bombers and that lack of specification is confusing enough. But there is an even greater confusion.

One airplane isn't a good unit of measure.

One airplane means at least one and sometimes three or four extra engines. It means a crew aloft of one or more highly trained pilots and sometimes as many as eight other more or less expert technicians. It means an adequate mechanical ground equipment and a ground crew of skilled mechanics as numerous as the flying crew and sometimes more numerous.

Means Much Armament

Even more significantly it means armament — cannon, light and heavy machine guns, torpedoes, bombs and, for all these, sometimes tons of explosives and incendiary material in the racks or in reserve storage on the ground.

"One airplane" may not mean, but it implies, a great provision of anti-aircraft equipment of cannon, explosive and other technical equipment.

Of many of these things our present supply is a trifling quantity. Preparations are being pressed to get them on principal units. Some of the published reports and estimates are fairly clear. But of others, like cannon, trained personnel and ammunition, the difficulties of getting into production from a near-zero point of existing capacity have been so great that it is almost certain that they cannot be delivered in step with the air force that requires them without a time lag of from one or two years.

Far from Defenseless

No sensational conclusions should be drawn from this fact. We are far from being defenseless. On the contrary, if our splendid navy isn't sent too far away and there engaged, and if we do not stick our necks blindly into war, we shall get those things before we could be successfully attacked or even endangered—no matter how the war goes in Europe.

Nevertheless, we haven't got them yet. Our defense will not be adequate to our problem until we do get them in the very balance that has been discussed here.

In the sense of that balance, recent official reports suggest a far more rapid preparation than we have any right to hope for. This discrepancy in time might make our people complacent to some rash action of shooting before our gun is loaded or even ready.

For that reason, recent defense reports are very bad business. For that reason also, there should be much less secrecy and far more frankness about just where we do stand in this vast project—all, the time.

Where Will It Stop?

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The American Federation of Labor, while accepting continuation of the forty-hour week for duration of the defense program, has restated its endorsement of the thirty-week as necessary to the proper distribution of employment.

Commenting on the federation's continued support of the shorter work week, President Green said this at the New Orleans convention:

"I predict that the day is not far distant when the industrialists of the country will be recognizing as the only solution the remedy that we propose—the thirty-hour week and the six-hour day."

"They may do it unwillingly and reluctantly, but they accepted the forty-hour week unwillingly and reluctantly. But we will produce under a thirty-hour week just as efficiently as we are now. That is part of the national economy."

Somewhere between working all the time and not working at all there is a happy medium. Where is it? The working day has been reduced from twelve to ten to eight hours, and there is no relief of unemployment. Now there is pressure for a six-hour day. Why not four hours?

This newspaper cannot believe that six hours is enough time for a man to spend at his work, or that the country under a six-hour day can produce the volume of the useful things of life as we need for a truly abaundant life.

New Deal Core Is Admitted

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

Perhaps forecasting and speaking for the threatened presidential veto of the Walter-Logan bill, Secretary of the Interior (Howling) Harold Ickes came forth with the amazing statement that the bill would wreck the New Deal. Mr. Ickes said that by submitting the rulings of the great mass of quasi-judicial and semi-independent federal boards to review by federal circuit courts the bill would "cripple" the New Deal.

The abusive Mr. Ickes thereby unwittingly admitted that the essence of the New Deal form of government is an uncontrolled, all-powerful bureaucracy. That is, of course, a form of government which strikes at the fundamentals of our constitution and is the reason why the Walter-Logan bill was passed by congress. Mr. Ickes called attention to the great need for judicial review of the rulings of the fourth branch of the government by admitting that judicial review would upset many of them.

The important point is, obviously, that if the New Deal depends upon as uncontrolled bureaucracy after the fashion of several Europe governments, a bureaucracy which cannot meet the requirements of constitutional law, then the New Deal is even more foreign to our form of government than is generally believed. If the New Deal's bureaucracy cannot operate according to the dictates of our constitution and statutes, if the rulings of its bureaucracy cannot stand the test of law, then upon which branch of the government does the blame lie?

The wails of Mr. Ickes and other New Deal partisans against the Walter-Logan bill a sorely needed reform, are motivated by the same foreign distrust of our judicial system that reached its full and dangerous flower in the scheme to pack the supreme court with justices subservient to the will of the President. In attacking the Walter-Logan bill, Mr. Ickes and his friends rendered the country a genuine service by calling attention to the underlying thesis of the New Deal's attitude toward our judicial system. He did it much more effectively than could all of the critics of the New Deal.

IF RED RIDING HOOD SHOULD GET BY THE WOLVES

Barkley's Legislative Loyalty Is Put To Question in Appeal Bill Fight

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. — The Walter-Logan bill is now before the president, for signature or veto.

Senator Barkley

The recent discussions of the Walter-Logan bill in this column have omitted any allusion to its merit. As to the merit of any bill there are two aspects. The first is the objective, the principle involved, the end sought. As to this, there is no question. Even the opponents of the bill, admit that some such measure is needed.

The second aspect of the merit of any bill is its method, whether it is well adapted to the end sought, whether any of its details are objectionable. As to this, there can be no doubt the Walter-Logan bill as it stands contains defects. The bill as it stands is criticized by persons who believe most strongly in its objective. (The reason for some of these defects will appear later in this despatch.)

But the merit of the Walter-Logan bill is apart from, and is a superficial thing, compared to the deeper question involved. So far as the Walter-Logan bill illustrates this deeper question, it could be the X bill or the Y bill.

Deeper Question

The deeper question is the world-wide conflict between two ideals and systems. One is, government by legislative bodies composed of representatives elected by the people. The other is, government by one-man dictatorships, who supplant legislative bodies.

In this conflict, legislative government is losing, tragically. Today there is not one first-rank legislative body on the continent of Europe, or Asia, or Africa. Even the mother of legislative bodies and of representative government, the British parliament, is today operating under self-imposed limitations.

The solitary first-rank, freely functioning legislative government left in the world today is the Congress of the United States. The men who compose the present Congress of the United States have a sacred responsibility to the whole world. They are the custodians and trustees of the institution of legislative government by representatives of the people. They are also in a poignant sense its physicians, for the institution, in the world as a whole, is upon a sick bed.

Should Show Vitality

In this condition, it is hardly necessary to say that Congress should carry on its function, show its vitality, in such a way as to meet the country's needs, preserve the people's regard and confidence. It is failure in this respect that has led to the death of legislative bodies abroad, has caused the people to turn toward one-man governments.

By this test consider the history of the Walter-Logan bill. It has been before this Congress during substantially the whole of its existence, now nearly two years. The House lived up to its function completely, debated the bill for three days, and on April 18 last passed it by 281 to 97.

The Senate, however, is a different story. When the Walter-Logan bill first came up a year and a half ago, June 13, 1939, Senate Leader Barkley asked that it be postponed, giving as his reason that the president had asked the attorney General to appoint a commission to consider the subject matter of the bill. The bill came up again July 19, 1939, and was passed without a roll-call, with no voice dissenting. The next day Leader Barkley explained that he had been out of the Senate and asked that the bill be reconsidered. This the friends of the bill granted, upon Senator Barkley's assurance, as expressed by himself, "that the measure be taken up at some date early in the next session."

Not Taken Up

Early in the next session" was last January. But the bill was not taken up. Again and again and again, over a period of eight months, when friends of the bill sought to bring it up, Leader Barkley asked and secured postponement. Finally, last September, Leader Barkley under pressure agreed that he would not oppose having the bill come up after the election—by that time, he said, the Administration's commission would have reported.

November 25th the bill came up. This was the time for Senator Barkley and other opponents of the measure to debate it, to bring forward their objections, to propose amendments, to perfect the measure. But this Senator Barkley did not do. He said the administration's commission was not yet ready to report. Once more, for perhaps the tenth time, Leader Barkley asked for delay—until next January.

But the friends of the bill knew that next January would be a new Congress. The passage of the bill by the House last April would be null. It would be necessary to begin all over in both Houses. Friends of the bill insisted on action.

Veto Excuse Given

Thereupon, Senator Barkley said, I shall not discuss the merits of the Walter-Logan bill," and asked for a vote at once. Thus the bill was passed, in a form which would give the president justification for vetoing it if he chooses. He has been opposed to the bill throughout.

Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky is the leader of the upper branch of the one first-rank legislative body that remains freely functioning in the world today. Mr. Barkley might properly ask himself some questions. Has he, throughout his course on the Walter-Logan bill, been loyal to the legislative body that wanted the bill, or to the administrative branch of government that did not want it? Has he acted in the spirit of his trusteeship for the institution of legislative government everywhere?

Professional Game Of Football Turns Out Splendid Men

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

This is the season when the great game of professional football over here in America reaches its perihelion. It was the Duke of Wellington who said—or is said to have said—that the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton. And indeed, it would have been truly said, for the football fields of England helped enormously to produce not only the sturdy bodies but the sturdy, invincible spirit which won Waterloo and put a period to Napoleon's power.

Paraphrasing the Duke of Wellington, it is a fair assumption that the rapidly expanding game of professional football is, right now, developing the type of young men we're going to need to lead our new draft army.

Fine Type Produced

Professional football, under the strong, vigilant guidance of such men as Tim Mara and John Mara, of the New York Giants; George Preston Marshall, of the Washington Redskins; George Halas, of the Chicago Bears, and Curly Lambeau, of the Green Bay Packers, is turning out a mighty fine type of seasoned youth. The young men are a mental, physical and spiritual antidote to the softness which is said to have invaded the onetime sturdiness of American character.

No finer example of this type of young man could be found than the one who was honored by probably fifty thousand football fans at the Polo Grounds in New York on Mel Hein Day, Sunday, December 1. Nothing in modern or old-time football can compare with the record compiled by Captain Mel Hein, the New York Giants' leader. Playing in the toughest competition ever assembled, Hein has more than held his own each year against the onslaught of younger talent, and still he holds his position as top-ranking all-time center of football.

Only Fifteen

The most thrilling of outdoor sports is only fifteen years old in this town of Little Old New York. Tim Mara put his first Giant team on the field in the Fall of 1925, and it included such stalwarts as the Indian thunderbolt, Jim Thorpe, Jack Haggerty, Hinky Haines and Bob Folwell, who were the Ward Cuffs, Tuffy Leemanses, Len Barnums and Hank Soars of their time.

Back in those early days, Mr. Mara had to give away grandstand seats to get people into the park, so lacking was interest in the game. On one occasion, he sent all over town distributors who handed out five thousand free tickets—and barely one thousand of the deadheads showed up. Today, if you want to see a red-hot game between the top-notch teams of the National Pro-Football League, you should reserve your seats well in advance.

A Large Season

Altogether, this season, the Giants have drawn 275,000 fans into the Polo Grounds for seven home games, and was a large reason why 125,000 more was pulled into the ball parks in other cities of the league—400,000 customers for eleven games on the schedule.

It costs Mr. Mara about $22,000 to open the park on any Sunday—salaries (and topnotch pros don't play for hay), equipment and a hundred charges, all add up. The visiting team gets a guarantee of $5,000 and a percentage of the gate, usually a third.

It's a great game—a game that builds bodies and character, a game that America needs as one of the most indispensable reservoirs of national defense—that is to say, of our century and a half of freedom, of our way of life.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Retrenchment A Necessity

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

Actual government spending in the fiscal year 1933 was a few million dollars over four billions. This has grown until the prospect for the next fiscal year is somewhere around seven billions. That is for peacetime spending only—it will be more than doubled, when national defense expenses are included. Furthermore, the estimate of around seven billions is a low estimate based on radical reduction of current spending in the immediate future. In other words, it is based on the announcement that President Roosevelt will insist on such reduction being made. For this announcement the president will be widely applauded.

We would like to see the retrenchment carried so far as to "reduce the cost of government by at least twenty-five percent," but that seems too much to hope for. A lot of water has run over the dam since 1932. Expenditures for public works can be cut, however, and, according to the president (Congress co-operating) they will be. The time to expand our program of public works is when business is depressed. A good deal of the depression will be lifted by the huge activities of preparing for national defense. This seems to be the way the president's mind is running.

The American Way . . . In Miniature

By MARGARET KERNODLE
AP Featpure Service Writer

You may discover a yacht club coast defense fort under your Christmas tree this year if your boys and girls put in their bids to Santa Claus on time.

Sets are the fashion in toys these days. You will find in the stores all sorts of interesting miniatures of the American way of doing things.

Boys will be pleased with ferry boats and station wagons copied from those they have seen. They go for mowing machines, combines, tractors and ploughs like the big ones on the farm. Or wreckers, ditch diggers, derrick platformed trucks and trailers with their little automobiles.

Girls are more than pleased with bathable dolls which have baby-like skin, with dolls that can hold things in their tiny magnitized hands, with playhouses as carefully decorated as mama's living room, with doll clothes kits and streamlined clothes.

It's true that there are more military toys. You even can buy ABC blocks which come with an airplane modeled after U. S. army planes. Target games for children and grown-ups have national defence techniques. And there are top planes from one cent to $30, made of wood, metal or paper.

You will find airplane carriers with planes that take off, submarines that really submerge. Toy tanks, guns, coast guard cutters, drums and trap sets are just like the real thing.

Red, white and blue paper hats, balls, balloons, kites, games and books reflect the patriotic motif.

For more toys however are of the educational and citizenship building type.

Unusual playthings include a sled on wheels for fun in snowless communities, and a snow sled with stop and go lights.

Adults will have fifteen per cent more games and hobby kits to choose from. And jackstones with numbers mark the first change in that ever-popular toy since metal ones were invented.

Santa has elaborate toy towns in his bag this year. After the boys put the houses together, the girls move in with their dolls. Some sets have make-believe grass and streets complete with traffic lanes.

Danes Turn to Forests For Vegetable Oils

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—The Danish beech has come to the aid of the margarine and fodder-cake industry in Denmark, hard pressed as it is for vegetable oils.

Chemists found that beech seeds contain a substantial amount of oil. Young collectors of beech seeds have been promised four cents per pound of beech seeds delivered to the ministry of agriculture. An industrious lad can collect about 110 pounds per day.

Wanted Action And Got It

TOLEDO, O. (AP)—Joseph Bognor protested that he was overcharged 20 cents in a restaurant. Exasperated, he pulled the fire alarm and soon was joined by all the downtown fire trucks, a police scout car, a patrol wagon, two police sergeants and two motorcycle officers. The officers deposited him in the safety building.

Beauty at Your Finger Tips

The Hook and Eye. Keep fingers flexible

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

A hook-and-eye exercise is a new by improving muscle flexibility.

Expressive hande are flexible. Each finger should move independently of the other to prevent a clumsy look.

Here's the hook-and-eye: the right index finger is the hook. Each finger of the left hand takes turns at being an eye. Pull each finger sharply back with the hook. Alternate hands and repeat.

Massage is an old but equally effective aid to hand beauty. If your skin is dry, you need heavier cream or lotion for winter.

There's a new manicure set that comes in a pillow on which you can rest your hand while fixing your finishing touch for your at-home manicure. It limbers your fingers nails. It's best to use a table because the steadier your hand is, the smoother the polish goes on. And polish put on evenly wears longer.

It's good to experiment with colors to see which one looks best on your nails. Remember the black reds are only for special occasions and perfect nails. Other times you're wise to stick to the clearer reds.

Other manicure tips: Remember a white pencil can't do all the bleaching, especially if your nails are in daily contact with inks, paints or typewriters. You have to scrub your nails for the first important part of your manicure.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

NO HURRY ABOUT IT

ALL PLAYERS know the axiomatic rule about laying down the card that assures immediate defeat of a contract rather than trying for a bigger set which may possibly result in not beating it at all. But when some other move may be made which in no way jeopardizes your chances of beating the declarer, but merely promises that you will give him a worse beating, the thing to do is to forget the first rule. Remember that at all times your winning objective is to put points on your side of the score sheet—as many as you can—while limiting the opponents' score to as small a size as possible.

	♠ A 3 ♥ K J 10 4 2 ♦ A ♣ 10 8 6 5 2
♠ K 9 8 ♥ Q 9 8 ♦ K 5 4 ♣ A K J 4	N. W. E. S.	♠ Q 7 2 ♥ A 7 5 ♦ 10 7 6 3 2 ♣ Q 9
	♠ J 10 6 5 4 ♥ 6 3 ♦ Q J 9 8 ♣ 7 3

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	1 NT
2 ♣	2 ♦	2 ♠	2 NT
3 ♠	3 NT	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Dbl

West should really have been allowed to try for his 3-No Trumps, at which North and South could have beaten him with any kind of defense, but apparently both sides were determined upon bad bidding, producing an unnecessary sacrifice on the part of the side which finally got the contract.

Three club leads by West were climaxed by East ruffing the third with his Q because he thought he saw a sure set, which he proceeded to realize by then laying down his heart A. That set up the entire heart suit, in view of the marked finesse, and the only other trick taken by the defenders was the spade K, which West scored later.

East could have given South a worse dose of medicine by holding on with his heart A and instead leading a diamond to the dummy's A, thus taking an entry out of that hand. Figure out for yourself how the progress of play would have gone then. East could easily have seen that there was nothing in the dummy on which South might discard losing hearts. There would have been no risk to this play, except on the positive side that it might produce a bigger set by a trick or two.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ 10 4 2 ♥ A 10 8 ♦ K Q J 10 5 4 ♣ 4
♠ 9 7 6 3 ♥ 4 3 2 ♦ 9 8 7 3 ♣ J 7	N. W. E. S.	♠ A K 5 ♥ K J 7 5 ♦ A 6 2 ♣ K 9 8
	♠ Q J 8 ♥ Q 9 6 ♦ None ♣ A Q 10 6 5 3 2

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

If West leads the spade 3, dummy playing the 2 and East the K, is there any way South can make the crazy 3-No Trumps into which he got himself on this deal?

Deafness Not A Disease

Science has proven that in a large number of cases deafness is brought about by an accumulation of coagulated wax and other conditions not due to disease. Those who are deafened, bothered by ringing, buzzing head noises or some temporary septic condition due to hardened or coagulated wax (cerumen) should try the Ourine Home Method that many say has enabled them to hear well again. Used since 1895—over a million packages sold. Safe ingredients as listed in the U. S. Pharmacopeia. Money refunded if not satisfied. Costs only a few cents daily. If you are deafened, ask today about Ourine at C. H. Holtzman and other drug stores.

Couple Who Adopt Child Should Tell Him the Truth

Youngster Will Discover He Is Adopted from One Source or Another

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Repeatedly in this column I have urged adoptive parents to tell the child as early as possible that he is adopted. Here is a letter which pictures the possible tragedy when this fact is not revealed to the adopted child.

"Dear Dr. Myers:—Will you please write an article in your column about people who adopt children and later on in life when it is found out vigorously deny it?

"I am an example on one of these cases. I am in my late twenties now, but I found out when I was sixteen years of age. When I went to my mother and asked her, she denied it and told me how crazy I was to think of such a thing.

Wrong Way To Tell

"About eight years later, in a quarrel, she told me she picked me out of a hallway. If these foster mothers only knew the heartaches and silent suffering these children go through, they would reveal the truth to them. I have brooded so much all these years that it has reflected on my personality by making me a morbid, disillusioned soul who has lost all interest in life."

It would seem to me bad enough for an adoptive mother not to tell the child before he felt occasion to inquire about it after hearing other people "talk." But for the mother to deny the truth as illustrated by this letter is truly awful. Nevertheless, this mother only did what nearly every other person would do. She refused to face the truth.

Any person should know that the adopted child will discover the truth at some time, human nature being what it is, and so many meddlesome persons ready to reveal the secret clandestinely. When the adopted child long deceived discovers the truth at last, this child is not only disturbed by the fact but what is still more painful, feels that he has been deceived by the very one in whom he had put most faith and confidence.

Suppose you have an adopted child whom you have not told. Suppose, on reading this, you dread the consequences when and if the child discovers the truth for himself. Let me advise you to do this.

Suggests Proper Method

At a time when you feel well relaxed and self-controlled and there is a peculiarly fine relationship between you and him say:

"I want to tell you something which I should have told you long ago. You know I love you as much as any mother could love you. But, my Dear, I am not your real mother. Your adopted father and I wanted a little baby and because we loved you at sight we chose you as our very own. Then we adopted you, became your parents and will love you always.

"I hope you will forgive me for not having told you earlier. I thought you would be happier if you did not know. I see now that I was wrong. From now on I promise to hide no such matters from you."

Hardy Deer Kill Totals Forty-Six

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Dec. 5—Only seven hunters reported bagging deer yesterday, the last day of the three-day season. District Game Protector John Shanholtz said a few more would probably report today. Hunters reporting yesterday, bringing the season's total to forty-six, were:

John Hawse, Needmore, five points, 125 pounds; Arno E. Friddle, Moorefield, eight points, 200 pounds; Brooke Stump, Moorefield, six point, 175 pounds; George Riggleman, Bass, six point, 190 pounds! Clarence Southerly, Moorefield, ten point, 170 pounds; Marcellus Stump, Bass, eight point, 175 pounds; and E. P. Saville, Fabius, five point, 110 pounds.

One illegal deer was reported yesterday, making a total of four illegal kills during the three-day season.

TUSCON, Ariz.—The past, with tongue in cheek, rises up to nominate Author Clarence Buddington Kelland as a man of letters.

Here in connection with the movie premiere of his story, "Arizona," Kelland called on an old friend, once on the editorial staff of a nationally-circulated magazine.

To his fellow-townsmen's amusement and the author's amazement, the Tuscon man produced this letter-to-the-editor written 25 years ago:

"Dear Walter:—

"what have i done that i should be left to starve wasn't a salary check due me on the fifteenth if not why not . . . this hunger is frightful if the fish don't bite i don't eat how was things in chicago i hope your wife is well i hope everybody's wife is well i hope my wife keeps well but she won't if there ain't no food what do you suppose is the matter?

"when do you suppose that check will come has the boss spent it for a packard i can't eat packards . . . . i shot a shot gun yesterday twenty-five times and my shoulder ain't no good any more it's busted i guess i played croquet but that didn't bust my shoulder it busted my heart you folks have hard hearts or you wouldn't let me and my family starve you wouldn't like to starve yourself it's awful it's worse than that.

REUNION

Death in the River, and a Fast Bit of Detective Work by Young Sandy McCord

By FRANKLIN R. ULLREY

Sandy McCord, self-styled detective, reached the wharf 10 seconds after Doc Saunders had dived into the river. He had tailed the Doc's fast-moving car when he saw it run through a stop light.

In the glare of his headlights, McCord saw the doctor's case on the wharf and a girl watching the water. He reached the dock in time to help pull a man from the river.

"Looks like you went in after a dead one," McCord said. He held his flashlight while the doctor applied a stethoscope.

"He's dead all right," returned Doc after a pause. "Maybe you'd better keep an eye on that girl there until I can call Captain King."

"Who is she?" McCord asked.

"I'd guess she's the gal who told me over the 'phone to come quickly, that her susband had fallen off the dock," Saunders explained. "Anyhow, I'm off to get King."

McCord turned his light toward the girl—and whistled softly his surprise. Not only was she beautiful, but she was Doris Hannah. She stood there, dry-eyed and with the faintest suggestion of a smirk on her full lips.

Doris, McCord recalled, was the daughter of the unapproachable Duke, boss of the state's alky runners in the lush prohibition days. The closest he'd ever been to her was the next desk in school, but she looked the same lovely girl he had thought her then.

McCord could think of nothing to say. The police car's siren broke into his thought, and apparently the girl's as well.

"Yes, Sandy," she started, "I'm Doris, and he's . . ."

"But what are you doing here?" McCord interrupted.

The police car slid to a stop, its lights blinding McCord and the girl.

"You again!" Daniel King, captain of the homicide squad, flung at McCord. "Didn't you satisfy yourself in the Geekin killing?"

"I just happened to be around," McCord replied.

"You happen around quite a bit," King clipped out. "What is this?"

Doc Saunders, his clothes still dripping, came up just then and answered the captain's question.

"A dead man, captain," he said. "Drowned, unless the coroner wants to disagree with me later."

Capt. King and his two men played their flashlights over the body. McCord slipped away from the group and headed silently up the street. In the restaurant he went into the telephone booth and dialed police headquarters.

Back on the wharf, the captain turend to Doris.

"Do you know him?" he asked her.

"He is—was—my husband," she answered.

"You don't seem much upset for a new widow," Capt. King observed. "What happened?"

"Like I started to tell Sandy," Doris began, but the captain interrupted her.

"Oh, so you know McCord!" he exploded.

"Joe — my husband," she said, "had a little spat at home and came down here for a walkalong the water."

"Where there's nobody around," Capt. King interrupted her ominously.

"Sure, we wanted to be alone," Doris passed off the interruption. "Well, we got here, and Joe wanted to make up, but I wouldn't. I guess I pounted once too often, because Joe just walked off the dock."

She stopped talking and bit her lower lip.

Capt. King looked around. "Where's McCord?" he shouted loud enough to be heard across the river.

"For the first time in my life, I want McCord around."

McCord was drinking coffee when the others came into the restaurant. "Well, McCord," Capt. King said, "you're slipping around a bit, are you? Think you'll beat the police to decidin' this is a suicide?"

"No, sir," the younger man answered. "Have coffee with me?" he invited the three.

The two men ordered, but Doris refused. Warily watching McCord, she re-did her lips.

An attractive brunette, whom Captain King recognized as McCord's girl, entered the retaurant and McCord rose to meet her.

"Hello, Rose," he greeted. "Thanks for coming."

"Well, Sandy," Captain King began, "despite your efforts, we haven't even got a mystery tonight. Doris here, who seems to know you, tells me she had a fight with her husband and he just walked into the river. A suicide clear and simple."

Just then a squad car pulled up in front of the restaurant, and three policemen led by Lieutenant Cooper came in. The lieutenant looked from McCord, his friend, to Captain King and back.

"Thanks, Cooper," McCord said. "I was afraid this coffee might not last long enough."

Doc Saunders had left the table and started for the door.

"What do you mean, 'thanks'?" Captain King started.

"Wait a minute, Doc," McCord broke in. "You'll be interested."

Rose handed McCord an envelope, which he passed to Captain King.

"You can arrest Doris and Doc for murder!" McCord said, addressing King.

Saunders moved fast, but not fast enough. One officer pinned Doc's arms behind him; another took his gun. Doris didn't move.

"In that envelope," McCord continued, talking to King, "are two photostats. One, dated a week ago, is a copy of a court dismissal of Doris' suit for divorce. The other, dated yesterday, is a copy of an application for a marriage license filed by Doris and Doc. To get that, Doris swore she was a widow."

"But how does that tie these two up with murder, McCord?" Captain King asked.

"Look at that funny color lip rouge Doris uses," McCord replied. "It's on both Doc's and the dead man's lips—and fresh on the dead man's."

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

Educator Reports Communist Party Active in Schools

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP) — The president of one of the nation's largest colleges testified at a public hearing here that the Communist party "deliberately uses" colleges in New York city as "sounding boards for its activities."

Dr. Harry D. Gideonse, 39-year-old head of Brooklyn college — an institution of 14,000 students — told a joint legislative committee investigating subversive activities in the schools that an organized effort was made "to intimidate me — a most unsuccessful one, but certainly an organized one."

As the hearing adjourned until next month to allow for further investigation, the committee authorized its counsel to start contempt proceedings against twenty-five members or former members of the school system who allegedly refused to testify in private hearings before the committee.

Gideonse's charges followed testimony from two witnesses who named twelve teachers — nine of them at Brooklyn college—as active workers in the Communist party, both on and off the campus. Ten of the twelve denied they were Communists.

One of the witnesses had testified he was assigned to teach the "Soviet slant" to grammar school students—as young as six—which he said included the beating up of boy scouts and "looking on teachers and policemen as enemies."

Dr. Gideonse said he was convinced that the "overwhelming majority" of students and faculty was anti-Communist and that a "very small minority" sought to "exploit the future of the college for their own ulterior motives."

Childhood Is Best Time To Start Fight on Tuberculosis Doctor Says

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

If the modern conception of the nature and cause of tuberculosis be correct, the school child is the logical and natural person to start to work on. Tubeculosis begins in childhood. It does not manifest the same symptoms in childhood as in adult life; the symptoms in childhood may be so slight as to be unnoticeable—perhaps no more than underweight and an occasional spell of low fever. Children under favorable environmental conditions get over this early stage. But those under-privileged who have a minimum amount of nourishing food to eat, and stuffy, enclosed living quarters, tend to progress to the adult type of tuberculosis which develops in the lungs and in its final stages is aptly called consumption.

The child who lives in better conditions, with plenty of fresh air, and an adequate diet—adequate as to nourishment and minerals — stands a very good chance (the odds are 99 to 1) of overcoming the initial invasion of the disease.

Schools Can Help

If as I say, these facts are true —and they have been arrived at by long painstaking observation and are not disputed so far as I know by any competent authority—the part that the school can play in helping to reduce the danger must be obvious.

The open air classroom provides a deterrent to the advances of tuberculosis in childhood, and undoubtedly prevents the development of the adult type of the disease in many instances. Pupils for open air classes are selected in many ways. Sometimes a school nurse finds that htome conditions of a child are not healthy. That they are, in fact, conductive to the development of tuberculosis. So on general principles, she advises the child be put in the open air room. Others are picked up by school physicians, or sent in by family physicians or clinics.

Children Should be Tested

The ideal thing would be to have all the children of kindergarten age tested with a tuberculin test. The patch test does not require any scratching of the skin, or break in the skin in any way. In the kindergarten age only about 1 per cent of the children react positively to the tuberculin test. Further examination is unnecessary because it can be assumed that the positive reactors have some degree of active tuberculosis. At later ages this is not true, because everyone who has had an infection, recovered from it and developed an immunity, will react.

The open air classroom builds up resistance by healthy open air environment, extra lunches, rest periods on cots, and careful supervision of the nutrition of the child which is the key to successful healing of the tuberculous process.. The medical examinations, weighing, and charting of progress, taking temperature and pulse rate at regular intervals, make for a scientific attempt at prevention. These were entirely missed with the haphazard methods of family care practiced forty years ago, when they waited on symptoms to appear before doing anything about it.

Questions and Answers

P. H. L., Elmer, N. J.—"Please print a list of forty-five instances that cause cancer.

Answer: Except for a very few irratative substances such as tar —and these are doubtful—there are no known causes of cancer.

She's a Career Girl

SHORT-STEMMED AMERICAN BEAUTY
Elaine Altevogt has charm and a social security number.

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer

This will introduce Miss Elaine Altevogt, one of New York's most interesting career girls.

She is a model, rapidly becoming famous.

You must have seen her—flaxen-haired and blue-eyed—smiling from the pages of your newspaper or magazine, showing what the well-dressed young American will wear and eat.

For Elaine, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Altevogt of New Hyde Park, L. I., has done a lot of work in her 17 months. She has posed in the nude blowing bubles in her bath and spooning porridge from a bowl. She has modelled the "last word" in fuzzy white snow suits and blue-ribboned Easter bonnets. And she has laughed and cried in the arms of model "mothers" and "fathers" under camera lights.

She has done so well that she has her own trust fund. She also has a security number, a horoscope, and 13 teeth.

Unlike most career girls she hasn't a very extensive vocabulary. "Daddy," "Mamma," "car," and "hello," are about the extent of her words and listeners have to use some imagination to recognize those.

Elaine's horoscope predicts a future as a movie star and she has had two interviews with representatives of movie companies. But, in spite of that, neither her father (an employe of the Bankers Trust in New York) nor her mother (a former music teacher) is much concerned about a movie career for her now.

Elaine herself isn't giving the future any thought. She's too busy with affairs of the present.

This career girl has a crowded daily program of bath, breakfast, outdoor play, lunch, nap, more play and dinner. Three or four times a week she drives into New York with her mother to pose in some photographer's studio.

After she finished a long session before the camera the other day, she hurried to this writer's office for an interview.

She investigated the ink on the desk, the rubber bands, the calendar and all the pictures, then settled down with a newspaper — held upside down. So her mother conducted the interview for her.

When the visit was ended I helped button her into her bright blue coat and said, "Goodbye. Come again."

"Hello," said Elaine, and went away with a smile.

EVER WANT A CUP OR TWO OF GOOD COFFEE IN A HURRY?

RUSHING to get to work? You still have time to make Nescafé (Nes-cafay), the new speedy coffee brew perfected by Nestlé's famous Swiss scientists. It's delicious!... rich, satisfying coffee with its fine flavor and freshness sealed in by added dextrins, maltose and dextrose.

HOW DO YOU MAKE YOUR BREAKFAST, BUT ALWAYS GET HERE ON TIME? TRY MY COFFEE TRICK.

IT IS DELICIOUS!

MADE RIGHT IN YOUR CUP LIGHTNING-QUICK!

NOW your cup is your coffee pot. Just add hot water to Nescafé, right in your cup. It's ready instantly! A great time saver, ideal for people with jobs. Cuts work, too. No coffee pot to fix or wash. No muss. No grounds. And, because your cupful is individually made, you get the exact strength you like. Try Nescafé today; you'll use it every day. Your grocer features it—now!

ECONOMICAL! A little goes a long way. Cost per cup is very reasonable. Besides, there's no waste... you save because you make exactly the number of cups you need.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Marriage Not His Ambition

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going "steady" with a young man who is five years older than I am. My age is 18. He's wonderful to me, has given me a friendship ring, and tells me to remain true to him. I always have turned down other dates and don't go out with other boys. And now he tells me that he is going to be an "old bachelor" and that he can't support a wife at the present. Do you think, since he feels this way, that he has a right to object to my going out with other boys, as long as he doesn't want to marry me?

HEARTBROKEN

I'm afraid I can't admit that you are "heartbroken" at 18, or that you take the young man seriously when he says he intends to be an "old bachelor." He gave you a ring, which suggests that he may change his mind about remaining single at some future date. Why don't you consider him just as a friend, and that will make it fair to both of you to have other dates? Perhaps if his prospects brighten, he may reconsider remaining a bachelor.

Doesn't Want To Go "Steady"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The boy friend I have been dating as "steady" for the past two years told me that he had also been dating another girl, whom he likes very much. And now he wants us to stop going "steady," as he doesn't think it is fair to me. However, he wants to go out with me once in a while, and said he hoped I would always be a good friend of his.

Of course, you can imagine that I'm all upset over it, and wonder if I ought to still see him, consireding that I am very much in love with him. I'd like to win him back. Please give me your advice.

M.

When a boy tells a girl he doesn't want to go "steady" because it isn't fair to her, there's nothing to do but accept it as gracefully as she can. Hold your chin high, and don't show that it hurts your feelings. That would be a surer way of getting him back than if you went around moping and desolute. It's likely you may have lost this young man in the first place, by showing how much you cared.

On Wings of Song

By MARIE BLIZARD

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

A BOTTLE FLY alighted on the white ruffled curtains that blew softly in a wide window framing a view of rolling lawns and cloudless blue sky above distant treetops. A nurse came into the room and crossed the thick blue carpet soundlessly. She captured the fly in a capable hand.

The girl on the bed said softly, "Let him go, Baldie. He has such pretty green wings."

"So we're awake!" Nurse Baldwin said cheerfully. "And what costume shall we put on this afternoon?"

She opened a closet door so that Kit could look at the bed jackets that hung in a row on scented, velvet hangers.

Kit shook her head. "None of those," she said. "The new set Mrs. Sembler brought me day before yesterday."

The nurse lifted a confection of cobwebby chiffon and lace from the drawer. "There was another gift from the same shop. It came while you were asleep. We'll have a look at it in a few minutes."

She put Kit on her chaise lounge and gave her a mirror.

The blue veins showed beneath the translucent skin of her brow, but the contours of her cheeks and chin were rounding out.

The nurse laid a pale pink blanket over Kit's knees and placed a long silver box on them.

Kit's fingers lingered over the strings, over the tissue that enfolded a taffeta house coat. She read the card that accompanied it:

"Wear this tomorrow, dear. I'm coming to take you for your first outing in my car. The Semblers are all so happy that this day has arrived," Gertrude Sembler had written.

"Isn't she just lovely to you?" the nurse said, hanging up the house coat. "She treats you just like a daughter. Of course they're all nice to you."

"Yes," Kit said.

She put Mrs. Sembler's card in a carved box. In another compartment there were four cards from Vance. The cards that arrived each Sunday with the flowers he'd sent since she had been there. Vance himself never had come. She was not allowed many visitors, and she had not had the courage to ask Fran if Vance had wanted to come.

The nurse, still occupied hanging the coat in the closet, said, "Tomorrow we go out for a little joy ride. And one week from today we go home—good as new. I suppose we won't be sorry?"

Kit's pensive gaze traveled slowly around the peaceful room. She said, "Perhaps I shall be sorry to leave. I like it here where it's peaceful—and strange—I mean where it's different from other places where one might have associations. What date will it be a week from today?"

"The Fourth of July, dearie! Won't that be a lovely day to celebrate your new independence?"

The Fourth of July.

Another Fourth. There was a girl sitting on the steps of an old church in the lengthening twilight, telling a man she'd do anything he asked. But that was not the girl twisting a blanket soft as a baby's hair. That girl had been lost somewhere in a journey through a dark valley. There was a timelessness in that valley and it made a single year ago seem remote.

Kit's head dropped. She said, "I wish that I could always be like this—between yesterdays and tomorrows."

The nurse looked at her anxiously and turned back the covers on the bed. "I think we'll have a little nap before dinner. Mr. Sembler is coming to see us tonight and we don't want to be all tired out."

Kit slept easily, falling off into the light sleep of convalescence. She woke suddenly some time later and found that she was trembling. She wasn't quite awake as the awareness of her trembling frightened her; she remembered her dream. She felt the weight of her subconscious depression. She had dreamed that she was alone in her apartment and she couldn't get out, none could get in to her.

The summer twilight came into the room through the windows and the girl fastened her gaze on the reassuring view, clinging to the movement of her present security.

Someone moved in the doorway. She turned and saw that it was Jerry.

"Jerry!" she cried out to him.

He came to her swiftly, putting his arms around her. She trembled in his arms. He smoothed her hair tenderly. "It's all right, darling. Whatever is the matter, I'll make it right."

It seemed to her then, with her head against his strong young shoulder, that Jerry could make anything right. She clung to him.

The nurse rattled the china on the tray in her hand. "So, we have company," she said cheerily, pretending not to see them draw apart from each other. She arranged the tray on a bed table and tucked a napkin under Kit's chin. "Can you imagine what our patient said today, Mr. Sembler? She says she doesn't want to go home."

"That's because I'll miss the view," Kit told him. "I've grown to love the country."

Later, when the nurse had left them, Jerry said humbly, "Kit, you can always have the country. I'll build you a house wherever you want it if you'll marry me."

"Jerry!"

"I didn't think it would be this way when we first knew each other. I never really wanted to get married. But now I do. You're in love with me, but you haven't found it out yet. You'll discover it when we're married. I want you to marry me right away."

She shook her head. "I'm not in love with you, Jerry."

"We've always got along together. You won't have to work any more, Kitty. We can play for the rest of our lives. If we go on as we have, I'll be satisfied with it that way."

"If you're satisfied with it that way, Jerry, I'll marry you whenever you say."

Fran lowered the venetian blind to shut out the hot July sun and moved a small lever that started the electric fan on her desk.

"That'll make you feel better," she said to the dejected figure of the press agent sprawled in the corner chair.

His eyes remained closed and he spoke in the voice of a man tried beyond all endurance.

"In all my experience as a press agent, in all my dreams of the Perfect Situation, nothing like this has ever happened before, and what happens?"

Fran concentrated on the letters her secretary had brought in to her; there was no reason for her to go on arguing with Ferris. There was nothing he could say that she hadn't heard in the past hour.

She signed the last of the letters and said, "Why don't you use the story I'm giving you? It isn't every sponsor who'd give a star a sable wrap to replace the one the mob tore off her back. Honest to goodness sable, Jimmie!"

Ferris groaned. "She says I should write about a present from a sponsor when I've got front page news! Will you please tell me what difference a coupla days can make when we can make the front page two days in succession? Don't you realize that no press agent ever has been able to do that—to break the front page with two different stories, two days running?"

"Couldn't you change the routine?" she said pleasantly, without looking up. "You're going right back into the story that 'yesterday we made all the front pages with the story of Kit's ovation Saturday night'."

Ferris' eyes grew dreamy and he chanted the headlines lovingly:

"Radio Star Revives Berhardt Tradition. . . . Excited Fans Stage Riot in Street. . . . Storm Broadcasting Company to See Favorite. . . . Police Reserves Curb Crowd. . . . Famous Singing Star Acclaimed by Mob on Return to Radio After Battle With Death."

"Same mob, nearly crushing her. They tore the clothes off her back," Fran said, her tone frankly more pleased than sympathetic.

"And now you won't let me follow it up with the announcement of her engagement. 'Star to Wed Sembler Scion.' It'd break every front page in the country."

"You'd better not try it or you'll find something else broken. Kit says we can't announce the engagement yet, and you know that when she tells me that, I can't do anything about it."

"She's right," Kit agreed from the door to Fran's office.

"You're breaking my heart," Ferris told her. "Miss O'Reilly, be a good guy. Don't you realize that we gotta give the papers a break after what they did for you last month? Gee, they gave you as much space on that Gershwin show as if you'd been doing it."

"I can see your position, Jimmie," she answered, "but this is a personal matter. I don't see how it would be giving the papers a break."

"The end of July rarely turns up any good personality stories and the papers would eat it up. Can't you see the headlines and pictures you'd get?"

"Look, Jimmie, the papers can have it, but not until Monday. We're going to announce it at Mrs. Von Sicler's house in Oyster Bay at dinner Sunday night. You can see that the papers have it for the early Monday editions."

"Okay," he said sadly. "I'll have to get some spot pictures. Gimme the address and I'll get the photogs out there."

Kit shook her head. "You can't invade a private home, Jimmie. I'll tell you what we can do. On Friday night, I've invited some people to El Morocco around midnight. You can bring one photographer there and hold the pictures for Monday."

"Morocco?" Fran asked.

"Yes. A night club is more amusing than a hotel. And sooner or later, during the evening, everybody turns up there."

Fran said, "I've been looking at your horoscope."

Kit laughed.

"All right, laugh. But if I were you, I'd be glad to know that the moon will be in Aries after Thursday."

"If that makes you feel better, I think that's just dandy."

"Aries is your birth sign, so when you've got the moon in your birth sign, anything you do is right. Where's your engagement ring?"

"In my purse," Kit said. "I'm keeping it there until we formally announce our engagement."

"And you say you're not superstitious," Fran jeered.

"Good Home Lighting Is easy on the eyes, I. E. S. Lamps Mean Good Lighting"

Canada Forms Foreign Legion of the Air

J. E. Reid, a Detroit (Mich.) student pilot in the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, receives instruction at Windsor, Ont.

By WADE WERNER
AP Feature Service

OTTAWA — Canada gradually is becoming a vast internationally training-ground for air offensives of the future.

Norwegians, Belgians, Dutchmen, Czechs, Poles and Slovaks are training here.

The fall of France and the air war over Britain hampered air-training in the United Kingdom. It finally was decided to move seven or eight United Kingdom air-training establishments to Canada.

Second Line Of Defense

So RAF centers — potential air bases — are being moved lock, stock and barrel. Ten thousand instructors, students and maintenance personnel gradually are reestablishing their schools on this side of the Atlantic, bringing much of their equipment.

Should Germany succeed in dominating the air over Britain, an important section of the United Kingdom's air strength would be on this side of the Atlantic. The transplanted RAF establishments are entirely independent of the Commonwealth training establishment already in operation as part of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Transplanted Norwegians have their own air-training center at Toronto. In this "Little Norway," men who slipped through the German invader's net are being groomed for eventual participation in the air war against Germany.

Some of the planes they are using were purchased in the United States by the Norwegian government before the invasion. The camp was opened recently by General William Steffens, commander-in-chief of Norwegian armed forces in Canada.

Americans Enlisted

Many Belgians and Dutchmen already have enlisted in the Canadian armed forces. The Canadian government is cooperating with the exiled Dutch and Belgian governments in enforcing conscription of others of military age in Canada.

Plans to incorporate Free French forces have been held up because Canada still has relations with the Vichy government.

Many United States citizens, incidentally, are with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Keyser Negro To Be Hanged Tonight; Holt Denies Clemency

Midland Prepares For Community Yule Celebration

Mayor and Council Sponsor Observance; Donations Are Sought

MIDLAND, Dec. 5 — The mayor and city council decided at their meeting this week that Santa Claus would visit here again this year and give the children of this section a treat on Christmas day.

Donations for this cause may be left with Mayor Verl Ash at his store, as no house to house canvass will be made. As yet, the definite location for the community tree has not been decided upon but, in all probability it will be the same as last year on the vacant lot at the intersection of Big Lane with Route 36.

Two dams are to be built in George's creek to provide residents of the Gabby Row section and the two churches with adaquate fire protection. As matters stand at present, chemicals would be the only means of fighting fires in these vicinities because there are no fire plugs available in either section. By building a dam at the most convenient spot in each section the mayor and council and the local fire department can assure these buildings of adequate protection.

The mayor and council voted to attend the school meeting scheduled for Friday evening at the Red Mens hall to discuss school issues with the members of the Maryland legislature from Allegany and Garrett counties. This is not a public meeting.

Frank Burns, town tax collector, announces that approximately sixty of the town taxes has been collected. This month is the flat rate month for taxes, with the discount discontinued after being in effect during the months of September, October and November. January interest of six per cent will go into effect on all unpaid taxes.

Red Cross Tops Quota

Mrs. Edward Smith, chairman of the annual Red Cross roll call here, announces that this section has exceeded its quota by raising a total of $90.90.

Anyone wishing to make further contributions may contact Mrs. Smith or Mrs. Richard Elliott, Midland; Mrs. Hugh McGann, or Mrs. Charles Robertson, in the Gilmore section; and Mrs. Robert Miller or Mrs. Henry Robertson, in the Miller territory.

Red Men Initiate

Tioga Tribe No. 26, Improved Order of Red Men, was host Tuesday evening to other county tribes of the order. A class of candidates from Tonkaway Tribe No. 120, Cumberland, and Black Hawk Tribe No. 130, Westernport, was initiated.

Guests of honor included Albert E. Ritter, great sachem of Maryland, Baltimore; John Lilly, great senior sagamore, and Thomas H. Taylor, great prophet.

A special bus brought the Cumberland tribe here for the event, and a large group attended from Westernport in private cars. Refreshments were served after the business meeting.

102 Deer Bagged In Tucker County

PARSONS, W. Va., Dec. 5—The slaughter of deer by some 2,000 hunters continued until the last rays of the sun had faded from the hills of Tucker county yesterday evening, ending the three-day West Virginia deer season with a report of 102 deer killed.

It is estimated that at least 2,000 hunters roamed the woods of the county each day of the deer season. Game protectors and district deer-check stations reported that many more deer were to be checked in at the stations by parties of hunters who had not broken camp in the remote sections of the county. It is expected that the number of deer bagged will reach last year's record mark of 118.

At least thirty does have been reported killed, as well as several spiked bucks. The heaviest kill was reported in the Canaan Valley, Clover and St. George sections of the county. One party of hunters in the Canaan Valley area reported killing three large bucks and a large bear while hunting near their camp. Many hunters who are located in remote camps will continue hunting bears now that the deer season is over. Game protector Charles Calvert stated that the registering of deer at deer-check stations is expected to continue until as late as Sunday.

Many on Honor Roll

Dale Ridgeway, Parsons graded school principal, reports that the honor roll for the second period of the school term is now complete and that a total of ninety-three graded school students averaged the required eighty-five per cent. This is the largest number of students making the honor roll for the past several years.

NAME OHIO BULL GRAND CHAMPION

Super-Highway Uses 1,800 Tons Of Cinders To Safeguard Curves

Hyndman and State Line Railroad Yards Furnish 350 Truck-Loads

HYNDMAN, Pa., Dec. 5 — The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, owners and managers of the superhighway that crosses the northern end of Bedford county from east to west, are using cinders obtained from the B. & O. "tipple" near here and from the engine-house of the Pennsylvania railway at State Line, eight miles south of here, to safeguard curves and grades on the "dream highway."

One of the turnpike engineers said that during the past several days, 1,800 tons of cinders have been hauled from these two railway points and deposited for emergency use along twenty miles of right-of-way of the new turnpike, extending from Allegany Tunnel eastward to Bedford Intersection. This makes 350 truck loads, he said. Private contractors are still at work conveying cinders to the super-highway from Hyndman and State Line.

Hyndman Briefs

Russell C. May is planning to vacate the large floor-space he occupies in the Blair building for his amusement parlor and move across the street to his restaurant. He will not move until the end of December.

Hyndman merchants have not been too busy with their store-work to take enough time off to go deer-hunting. Among business men who have bagged a deer apiece are Howard H. Deaner, Charles O. Burns, H. Somers Fischer, Albert Bruner and Robert B. Elliott.

Hyndman Personals

A daughter was born yesterday at Allegany hospital to Mr. and Mrs. J. Albert Twigg.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel S. Evans announce the birth of a daughter Tuesday night at Memorial hospital.

Mrs. Shannon Evans is critically ill at the Commercial hotel.

Mrs. Natalie Nicodemus, Duquesne, was called to Hyndman Tuesday by the serious illness of her father, William Sheavly, proprietor of Hyndman's only hardware store.

Charles White and daughter, Eleanor, Akron, Ohio, were guests today of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thomas.

Bank at Lonaconing Pays Off Creditors

Baltimore, Dec. 5 (AP)—State Bank Commissioner John W. Downing announced today that Judge William A. Huster of the Allegany county Circuit court had ratified and confirmed a final report and accounts of the receiver of the Lonaconing Savings Bank at Lonaconing.

Downing said distribution checks covering the final dividend of 5.05 percent on the certificates of beneficial interest were mailed to all creditors yesterday. The payment totaled $32,689.

He added that creditors had received, including the final distribution, a total of 64.8 percent of the original amount of their claims when the bank went into receivership.

Romney Attorney Dies After Collapsing At Wife's Funeral

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 5 (AP)—William M. Poling, 64-year-old Romney, W. Va., attorney who collapsed at the gates of a cemetery during his wife's funeral Tuesday, died today. Death was attributed to heart disease.

Mrs. Poling died Sunday in Weston, W. Va. Her body was brought here for burial because she was a former resident.

Surviving are three sisters, Miss Ada Poling and Mrs. Eva Snarr, of Romney, and Mrs. Beulah Thompson, of Winchester; and two brothers.

Mr. Poling, a native of Romney, was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. V. M. Poling. His father was Circuit court clerk at Romney for more than fifty years.

Mineral Records 22 Deer Slain, One Hunter Hurt

Another Nimrod Appeals Conviction Carrying 30-Day Jail Term

KEYSER, W. Va., Dec. 5—Twenty-two deer were reported killed in Mineral county during thee three-day season that came to an end last night, with one accident to a hunter and one arrest. In this county, just the section extending from Patterson creek eastward to the top of Middle Ridge was open.

Charles Welch, Burlington, was in Potomac Valley Hospital here today under treatment for a gunshot wound in the shoulder and neck, suffered the first day of the season when he fell on his gun, discharging the weapon.

William F. Kuykendall, 21, of the Cabin Run district, posted bond and appealed his case to the Mineral county Circuit court today after he was fined $100 and given a thirty-day sentence by Justice-of-the-Peace J. E. Aronhalt. Kuykendall was arrested yesterday by Game Warden Joe L. Hughes. The warden testified he found Kuykendall in the woods with a "U. S. Springfield rifle," yesterday.

The young Cabin Run man allegedly had already killed a 6-point, 150-pound deer December 2. State game laws allow just one deer per hunter during a season, and it is illegal to carry a gun capable of killing a deer through the woods before the close of the season after the first one has been bagged.

Hughes also reported three illegal kills—two spike bucks and one doe. Apparently they had been abandoned after the hunters discovered they had made illegal kills, he said.

Club Plans Party

Following the regular business meeting at 7:30, the Woman's club of Keyser will hold its annual Christmbas party Tuesday night at the Legion Memorial home here.

The program is scheduled to include musical selections by the Woman's club chorus, under the direction of Mrs. E. E. Church, and by the West Virginia Legionettes, nationally famous quartet, and a "radio broadcast," with Mrs. Franklin E. Cooper as announcer. Gifts will be exchanged by the members.

Attends Meeting

Paul D. Peters, manager of the Atlantic and Pacific supermarket here, yesterday attended the company's monthly business meeting in Altoona, Pa.

Three-Day Season Sees Eighty Deer Killed in Grant

Bag Total Higher than Last Year; Two Animals Illegally Slain

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 5—The three-day deer season in Grant county, which ended yesterday, saw a total of eighty of the big animals killed, according to preliminary reports by Game Warden Harrison Shobe. This year's kill is much larger than last year's total of sixty-five.

Two illegally-killed deer — a doe and a spike-buck, were found by wardens, and their carcasses given to charitable organizations.

Funeral Mass Held For Mrs. O'Gorman

WESTERNPORT, Dec. 5—Requiem high mass for Mrs. Mary A. O'Gorman, widow of Edward T. O'Gorman, who died suddenly Monday night at her home, 98 West Fairview street, Piedmont, was celebrated this morning at St. Peter's Catholic church.

The Rev. Victor Dowgiallo, assistant pastor, officiated. Interment was in St. Peter's cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers were Frank Lupis, M. F. O'Donnell, Charles Athey and Richard Carey. Active pallbearers were Harry Richards, Robert Codire, Thomas Mullen, John Dugan, John O'Brien, Edward Pendergast, Joseph Gleeson and James Ott.

Club Holds Party

The Piedmont Woman's Club held its annual Christmas party last night, with exchange of gifts. Twenty-four members enjoyed a Christmas program presented under the direction of Mrs. Thomas D. Campbell. A shower of kitchen utensils was given by the members of the club for the kitchen.

The club made a donation of five dollars to the Piedmont chapter of the Red Cross and purchased a $5 health bond from the Mineral County Tuberculosis association. Mrs. Carlton Bell, the president, reported proceeds of $11.22 from the exchange held for the benefit of the library.

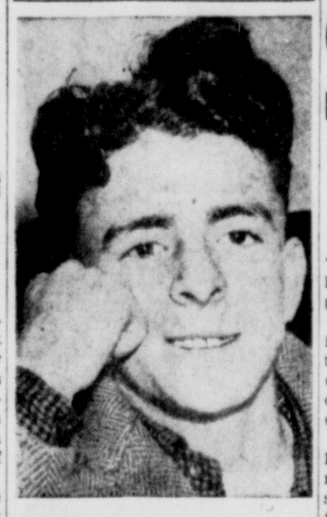
Tri-Towns Briefs

Miss Martha Cheshire entertained the Alpha Sunday school class of Trinity Methodist church yesterday evening with a Christmas party. Gifts were exchanged and refreshments served.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Luke school will hold a social tomorrow (Friday) evening at the school at 7:30 to raise funds for the purchase of a delineoscope for the school.

The Piedmont circle of the Presbyterian church held its annual Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Robert Vining, wife of the Rev. Robert Vining. Gifts were exchanged, and refreshments were served by the hostess. Mrs. Vining was presented with a fostoria sauce-boat and plate.

SHOOTS PRINCIPAL



Suspended from public school in New York, Harold Wagner (top), 15, shot and wounded the principal, Milton Salit, 35, after an argument. The boy is held on a charge of juvenile delinquency. Below is the sawed-off .22-calibre gun, ten inches long and wrapped in adhesive, which young Wagner used.

Mt. Savage P-TA Hears Discussion Of New Reports

Miss Mildred Willison Is Chief Speaker; Entertainment Given

MT. SAVAGE, Dec. 5—The Mt. Savage Parent-Teacher association held a meeting last night in the school auditorium. An entertainment program was given by the pupils of the third grade under the direction of Mrs. Lloyd Schurling.

Miss Mildred Willison gave a brief talk in which she explained the new report card system. Other talks were given by Mrs. Isobel Adams, James Ellsworth Crump and Lester B. Redd.

Mt. Savage Briefs

Grant Crump entertained the Boys club of St. George's church at his home last night. Games were played and refreshments served. Guests included Bobby Crump, Roland Neder, Charles Johnson, Alfred Pollock, Junior Voit, Eddie Bowers and Wilson Sweene.

The Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire company was called to extinguish a flue fire at the apartment of Clinton Winebrenner in the Frank Aldridge residence at noon today. The firemen extinguished the flames before much serious damage was done.

Funeral services for James Edward Snelson were conducted this afternoon at St. George's church by the Rev. Percy C. Adams. Pallbearers were John Simpson, Harry Turley Jr., George Snelson, Harry Simpson, James Turley and Fred Snelson. Flowerbearers were Sydney, Albert and Charles Snelson and John, Arthur and George Turley. Burial was in St. George's cemetery.

The Junior Guild of St. George's church will meet Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Hostesses will be Miss Mary Bird Graham and Mrs. Mary J. Pollock.

This continent, united in defense of a common cause and determined to protest its vulnerable spots, will be invincible.—President Avila Camacho of Mexico in his inaugural address.

Christmas Message To Be Broadcast On Wings of Song at Frostburg

Music from First Methodist Church To Be Heard for Several Miles

FROSTBURG, Dec. 5 — The "song in the air" of Christmas hymn fame will be more than a figure of speech here this year.

Frostburg's First Methodist church is installing a carolanic chime system in its tower, by means of which chimes, organ selections and recorded music may be heard for several miles around.

George Carroll, Willow Grove, Pa., a representative of the Schulmerich Sound System, Inc., Glenside, Pa., started work yesterday on the installation of the system, which consists of eight loud speakers in the church steeple connecting with the church organ, which will be equipped with chimes. The speakers, pointing in eight directions will be capable of sending the sound of thec himes or the music from the church organ a distance of several miles. A record device is also included by means of which sacred or other music may be broadcast without use of the organ. The chimes may also be used separately from the broadcasting system.

The new sound system, a gift from the Ladies Sewing Circle to the church, will be ready for use before the Christmas week services, possibly Sunday, December 22.

The present members of the circle are Mrs. J. Marshall Stewart, president; Mrs. J. Taylor Crump, Mrs. James Sleeman, Mrs. William Jenkins, Mrs. Harry Hanson, Mrs. Edgar W. Beckett, Mrs. Walter Jeffries, Mrs. Roy Sleeman, Mrs. Oliver Simons, Mrs. Clarence Powers, Misses Alpha Garrett, Nancy Arnold, Stella Hosken, Eva Jeffries and Kate Hanson.

The funds from which the sound system was purchased, according to Mrs. Stewart, were raised by the present members of the circle and a large number of past members who actually inaugurated the movement but who are no longer active members of the group.

Piano Recital

Mrs. Nell Zeller, Frostburg music teacher, presented a group of her pupils in a piano recital Tuesday evening at her home, West Main street, in the presence of parents and a few invited guests.

Those participating were Nancy Kalbaugh, Ruth Shuckhart, James Grose, Joan Taylor, Ann Evans, Frank Workman, Mary Lou Grose, Thomas Stewart, Geraldine Powers, Nat Workman, Elaine Savage, June Lemmert and Gene Grose.

Jenkins-Zeigler

Miss Bernardine Zeigler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Zeigler, Sylvan Hills, Hollidaysburg, Pa., and Kenneth Jenkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jenkins, Frostburg, were married Saturday evening at Zion Lutheran church, Hollidaysburg, by the Rev. Dr., M. Stanley Kemp, pastor.

The maid of honor was Miss Claire Shope, Upper Darby, Pa. The bridesmaids were Misses Mary Snyder, Ashland, Pa.; Isabel Norcross, Carlisle, Pa.; Wilton Jenkins, sister of the bridegroom, Frostburg; Irene Binder, Renovo, Pa.; and Jane Gilmore, Hughville, Pa. Philip Jenkins, Frostburg, was his brother's best man, while Kenneth Zeigler, brother of the bride, Claysburg, William Jenkins, brother of the bridegroom, William Jobson, Flushing, N. Y., and Paul Stillman, Chester, Pa., were ushers.

The church was decorated with palms, fern, white chrysanthemums and white candelabra with long white tapers on either side of the aisle.

The bride wore a gown of white palms, period style, with sweetheart neckline, leg-o-mutton sleeves, full skirt, long train and a string of pearls. Her hat was of tulle fitted on a Juliet cap with a fingertip veil.

The bride's mother wore amber velveray crepe with matching velvet accessories and carried a bouquet of Joanna Hill roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor length gown of champagne silk crepe with matching velvet accessories and wore a corsage of rose gardenias.

A reception was held at the home of the bride following the ceremony, the Sylvan Hills home being decorated with mixed pompons arranged over the mantelpiece. Places were laid for 100 guests.

Mr. Jenkins is a graduate of Dickinson college and Harvard graduate school of business administration. He is employed as an accountant for Pan-American Airways, Inc., at Miami, Fla., where they will reside. He is a member of Sigma Chi, national social fraternity.

The bride is a graduate of Williamsport seminary, Dickinson college, and the Boston Modern school of Applied Art. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi, national social sorority.

Personals

Mrs. Burman Bennett, 67, who resides at Maple and East Loo streets, is a patient at Miners hospital, where she was admitted shortly after 11 o'clock last night for treatment of a broken right hip, suffered in a fall on the icy pavement near her home.

Walkway To Be Built For Beall Students

FROSTBURG, Dec. 5—Work will begin in the near future on a pedestrian walk from Washington street to the entrance of the new Beall high school, it was decided this morning.

The walkway, to be eight feet wide, will be temporary in nature, future plans calling for it to be supplanted by a roadway. It was demanded by citizens to protect children from the heavy National highway traffic along along Eckhart Flat.

The agreement to construct the walk was reached at a conference between County School Superintendent Charles L. Kopp and Frostburg city officials.

The city agreed to assume responsibility for keeping it cleared of snow for student traffic. According to an announcement by Mr. Kopp, the new school building will be opened January 6.

Besides Mr. Kopp, others at the conference were Marshall Skidmore, street commissioner; Maxwell Mathias, city engineer; William Lemmert, water commissioner; and H. Reford Aldridge, of the Rotary Club.

Community Club Names Officers At Grantsville

Miss Ethel Broadwater Re-elected President; Yule Party Held

GRANTSVILLE, Dec. 5 — The Grantsville Community club was entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. E. E. Cunningham. The annual election of officers was held, and Miss Ethel Broadwater was re-elected president; Mrs. C. C. Beachy, vice-president; Mrs. Leonard B. Schaefer, secretary; Mrs. C. Lee Beachy, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Roy Patton, treasurer and peace chairman; Mrs. Marshall Beachy, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Jonas Beachy, project chairman; Mrs. Nevin U. Broadwater, reading chairman; and Mrs. W. Harold Miller, music chairman.

Mrs. Harry J. Bender was admitted as a new member.

The annnal Christmas party was held and during the social hour following the business session, refreshments were served and gifts exchanged among the members. Other guests included Mrs. Fred Livengood, Mrs. J. Urban Stanton, Mrs. Joel A. Beachy and Mrs. Ollie E. Loechel.

Four Hurt in Crash

Four persons narrowly escaped serious injury in an automobile accident a mile west of here on Route 40 about 11 o'clock last night. Fred W. Vincent, U. S. Navy, with his wife and her sister, were enroute to California when their car skidded on the icy surface of the highway and crashed into the rear of pickup truck owned and operated by Lester Bittinger, Grantsville.

Both Mrs. Vincent and her sister, being nurses, were able to treat their wounds, consisting of cuts and bruises, which were not considered serious. Mr. Vincent and Bittinger escaped with minor bruises. Bittinger's pickup was practically demolished, and the front of Vincent's Cadillac was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars. The Vincents expected to continue on their journey today by train.

Because of the slippery condition of the highway through here last night, following a flurry of sleet and snow, many motorists had difficulty in keeping on the road and getting up some of the steeper grades without chains.

Grantsville Briefs

The Junior class of the high school, under the direction of Miss Emma Caulk, will hold a dance in the school auditorium tomorrow (Friday) evening. The affair is for students only, and the proceeds will be added to the class treasury.

Members of the consistory of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church held a meeting this evening at the home of John H. Folk, at which plans were formulated for their "every-member convass."

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bauer and daughter, Mariette, returned to Hagerstown last night after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Hershberger.

Mrs. Fred Livengood informally entertained a few friends at bridge last evening.

Paul Tross Loses In Final Effort To Escape Noose

Negro, 31, Must Die for Attacking White Teacher, Governor Says

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 5 (AP) — Paul Tross, 41-year-old Keyser negro, lost today in his final attempt to escape the gallows for criminally attacking a white school teacher when Governor Holt refused to extend further executive clemency.

Warden Leo Callison of the state penitentiary said at Moundsville that the chauffer-handyman would be hanged tomorrow night at 9 o'clock.

Tross, confined to "Murderers' Row" until the Governor made his announcement, has maintained his innocence and the belief he would not be executed through the months in which his case was unsuccessfully carried to the state supreme court, the U. S. Supreme court and finally to the Governor.

The last of three reprieves given him by the Governor expires tomorrow.

Holt said in a brief statement:

"I have thoroughly investigated and carefully considered the Paul Tross case and find no cause for further interrupting the execution of the judgment of the Circuit court of Mineral county relating thereto."

Tross is accused of entering the Keyser apartment of the school teacher on Sunday, June 2, while she was asleep and criminally assaulting her as a relative slept in an adjoining room.

He pleaded innocent after he was indicted by a special grand jury, then changed his plea to guilty. Circuit Judge Robert McV. Drane sentenced Tross on June 11, nine days after the attack. The original execution date was August 12.

Attorneys for Tross gave notice they would carry the case to the State Supreme court and the Governor granted a stay of execution until September 11. Another reprieve until October 31 was given to permit an appeal to the U. S. Supreme court and the third, until December 6, to give the Governor time to consider the request for executive clemency.

Tross is the first person ever to be sentenced to death in Mineral county.

Last Rites Held At Friendsville For Mrs. East

Widow of William F. East Dies at Age 72 at Barberton, Ohio

FRIENDSVILLE, Dec. 5—Funeral services were held here yesterday afternoon for Mrs. William F. East, 72, former resident of this community, who died of a heart attack Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lewis Reynolds, Barberton, Ohio.

Her husband preceeded her in death several years ago. Surviving, besides Mrs. Reynolds, are another daughter, Mrs. Lelia Dawson, Mt. Lake Park; one son, LeVern K. East, Los Angeles, Calif.; three grandchildren; five sisters and two brothers.

The service was conducted at Grace Lutheran church by the Rev. L. A. Wagner. Interment was in the Steel cemetery.

Friendsville Briefs

Mrs. W. J. Glenn was hostess to the Grantsville Teachers Bridge club at her home Tuesday evening. Three tables of contract were in play. Miss Katherine Speicher won first prize; Mrs. Zeola Robison, second; Mrs. Leona Shields, floating; Miss Margaret Renstrom, consolation; and Miss Velora Swauger, high guest prize. Misses Emma Cank, Jean Young, Ruth Keefe, Ruth McMurray, Mrs. Julius Renhinger, Mrs. Benny Epstein and Mrs. Lilly Broadwater were among the guests.

The Womans Christian Service Society held its monthly meeting in the recreation room of the church Tuesday night, with Mrs. L. L. Friend in charge. Mrs. Iva Rush directed the devotional service, and Mrs. Ernest Friend supervised the program. A short play, "Investing Our Heritage," was presented by Mrs. J. W. Friend, Mrs. R. L. Greynolds, Mrs. I. Rush and Mrs. F. O. Speicher. Mrs. H. A. Glover, Mrs. Julia Skidmore, Mrs. Robert Murphy and Mrs. E. N. Friend gave other talks developing the principal theme of the evening. Approximately twenty members were present.

The second and third grade room in the Friendville school had the highest percentage of attendance for November with an average of 94.01, while the second year high school ran a close second with an average of 93.88. The seventh grade was third with 93.27. The average for the elementary school was 90.96 and for the high school, 92.32.

Ten deer have been unofficially reported killed by hunters in or near Friendsville during the first three days of the season. Eugene Frazee and Charles Frantz, freshmen Friendsville high school, bagged deer on the first day. Other successful hunters were: John Vitez, Stanley Friend, Dwight Matheney, Victor Frazee, Carlos Friend, Arthur Llewyn, Glen Sines and William W. DeWitt.

The Rev. L. A. Wagner has announced that services will be held at Grace Lutheran church Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Following the church service a congregational meeting will be held to discuss financial plans for the coming year.

SPEAKS AFTER SIX YEARS

John J. Smith

John J. Smith, a retired newspaperman, is shown as he made a radio address in New York, able to talk for the first time since his vocal cords were removed six years ago due to illness. Smith was able to speak through the aid of the sonovox (which he holds against his throat), a new invention created by Gilbert Wright, son of the noted novelist.

Business Grows In Antarctic

OSLO, Norway (AP)—Norwegian whalers, laid up in Montevideo, Uruguay, have received orders to go to the Antarctic for the new hunting season.

Because of the turn of events in Norway, the whale fleet was unable to return home at the end of the last hunting season.

TIP GETS HIS JUST REWARD

Because he barked and attracted the attention of neighbors and firemen to a twenty-foot pit into which two-year-old Monte Tabor had fallen, Tip, a two-year-old fox terrier, was permitted to share Monte's breakfast at Blackwood, N. J. The little boy was unhurt and thought his experience was fun.

Oakland Council, Service Clubs Plan for Christmas Decorations

Colored Lights To Be Abandoned, but Gay Appearance Promised

OAKLAND Dec. 5—Oakland will be gayly decorated for the Yuletide season if plans of city council and two service clubs work out. Although the decorations may not be as elaborate as in former years they will be effective and radiate the Christmas spirit, according to those having charge of the matter.

The strands of colored bulbs spanning the streets of the business section will not be used this year, it was stated. In order to get this material in readiness, about 300 colored bulbs and about 2,000 feet of wire would be required, in addition to the work of connecting the sockets and arranging the rhodendron and other evergreen along the wires.

At a meeting of a joint committee yesterday composed of Robert Lohr and Arthur Lawton, representing the town council, Cecil Smith, Frank Kley and Emory Bolden, representing the Rotary club, and H. C. Riggs, representing the recently formed Lions club, it was decided to sponsor a central decorating unit on the lawn of the Episcopal church at the corner of Second and Liberty streets.

In addition, the merchants will be requested to cooperate by placing curb Christmas trees along the edge of the sidewalks as they did for several years. In this way, the committee pointed out, the expense would not be heavy upon any one person or organization.

It is planned by the committee to have everything completed and in place by December 16, when stores will begin remaining open during the evening for the benefit of the Christmas shoppers.

Mrs. Friend Dies

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon for Mrs. Elizabeth Anna Friend, widow of Joseph D. Friend, who died suddenly at her home east of Deer Park, Monday after a heart attack. She was 68.

Mrs. Friend was born January 18, 1872, at Swallow Falls, a daughter of Jonathan and Susan Lewis.

Surviving are seven children, Mrs. Laura M. Flanigan and Mrs. Hattie E. Hardesty, Deer Park; Mrs. Olive V. Lewis, Oakland; Mrs. Ella M. Hiles, Cumberland; Mrs. Stella Arnold, Lancaster, Pa.; Henry S. Friend and A. Roy Friend, at home; twenty - two grandchildren, one great-grandchild and the following brothers and sisters, Mrs. Malinda C. Friend, John B. Lewis, Friendsville; Joseph H. Lewis, Emoryville, W. Va.; Daniel F. Lewis, Crellin, and Florence Lewis, Hutton.

Services were conducted at the Methodist church at Deer Park by the Rev. Garrett Evans, pastor of the Methodist church at Mt. Lake Park. Interment was in Deer Park cemetery.

Oakland Briefs

Weather continued to be on the wintry side here today with snow in the air most of the time and the temperature around the freezing mark. Highways were slippery but turns and hills had been cindered by the State Roads Commission and no accidents were reported. This morning the temperature was about 35 but gradually dropped during the day until at 6 o'clock it stood at 30.

One hundred seventeen members of the Young Republican club and a few guests attended a turkey dinner last evening at Chimney Corner, Red House, eight miles south of Oakland. The main feature of the dinner was "just turkey dinner with no speaker on the program." The dinner was the result of a membership contest conducted prior to the election. Following the dinner, many remained for an evening of dancing.

Stokowski Will Direct Tribute To Jan Sibelius

Noted Finnish Composer Will Be Honored on Radio

BY C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

New York, Dec. 5.—With Leopold Stokowski waving the baton before the Philadelphia orchestra, the weekly matinee broadcast over MBS at 3:15 p. m. Friday is to be in tribute to Jan Sibelius, noted Finnish composer, on the occasion of his seventy-fifth birth anniversary. Also it will be Stokowski's final guest appearance in that the regular conductor, Eugene Ormandy, will resume the podium next week for the remaining eight broadcasts in the series.

A special fifteen minute program at 11:15 on MBS will mark the opening of the president's birthday drive. It will take the form of a call for volunteers to aid in fighting infantile paralysis. Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general, will open the program.

Bob Ripley will wind up his current WABC-CBS series at 10, his guests to include two British sailors who drifted seventy-one days in an open boat after their ship had been sunk by the Germans.

About one-fourth of the annual production of gold is used for the minting of money, the remaining three-fourths being consumed by the dental, jewelry and gold leaf manufacturers.

BLAME YOUR LIVER IF—

If your liver doesn't secrete 20 to 30 ounces of bile every day into your intestines—constipation with its headaches, mental dullness and that "half-alive" feeling often result. So you see how important it is to keep bile flowing freely! And what finer aid could one desire than Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, used so successfully for years by Dr. F. M. Edwards for treating his patients for constipation and sluggish liver bile.

Olive Tablets are unsurpassed in effectiveness because they stimulate liver bile to help digest fatty foods, they tone up muscular intestinal action, at the same time help elimination. Being purely vegetable, Olive Tablets are wonderful! Test their supreme goodness TONIGHT! 15¢, 30¢, 60¢. All drugstores.

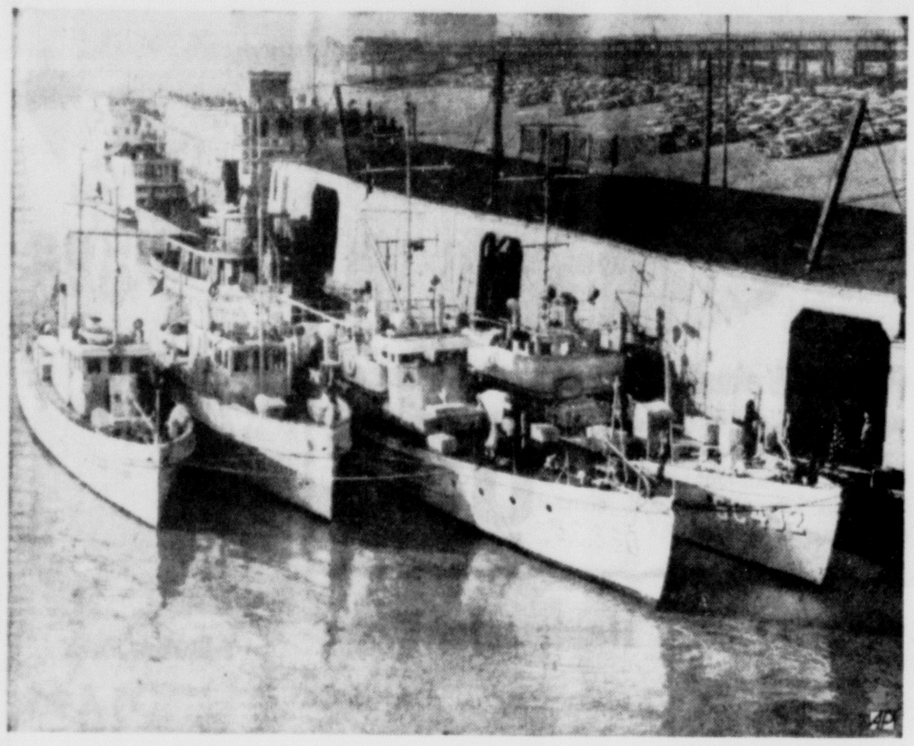
ASSOCIATED PRESS PICTURE NEWS



MORE RECRUITS FOR PATROL DUTY—Uncle Sam's trim new destroyers and naval craft might shame these veterans in a beauty contest, but these four wooden sub-chasers tied up in the Mississippi at St. Louis are heading for patrol duty in the Gulf of Mexico. They stopped in St. Louis while en route from the Great Lakes. In the upper left is the showboat, Golden Rod.

HANDLED WITH CARE—With patient, steady hands Elizabeth Monterio attaches a gas mask face piece to a breathing valve at a Fall River, Mass., factory where army masks are being produced. About 300 girls are busy making masks there.

OLD TIMER—After Baltimore and Ohio directors spurned his retirement suggestion, Daniel Willard (above) was re-elected president of the railroad, marking his 31st year in that office. He's 79, has been railroading for 60 years.

ROYAL ONCE-OVER—The Duchess of Windsor seems to be looking on anxiously as her royal husband, the former King Edward who's now governor of the Bahamas, inspects war relief articles produced at the Red Cross center in Nassau.

WHERE MILK COMES FROM—Young Floridans show keen interest in the milkman as a livestock development train operated by state agriculturists and the U. of Florida reaches their town. About 1,300,000 cattle graze Florida ranges.

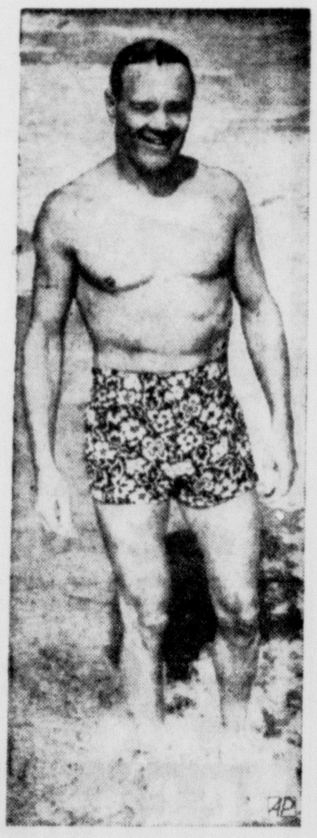
HIS SIDE OF STORY—Chairman Martin Dies (D-Tex.) of the House committee investigating un-American activities talks with reporters. Dies (right) has pledged "fullest cooperation" with President in fighting subversive elements.

IT'S ALL IN YOUR SYSTEM—Fie on atmosphere balloons and meteorological devices, thinks Coston Franklin Whitaker, 59, who's been weather forecasting for 50 years, chiefly by means of a skyward squint of his eyes. He forecasts at Memphis, claims to be right nine times out of ten. He recommends that vegetables always be planted in the dark of the moon.

SENATOR—Named by Nevada's governor to succeed the late Sen. Key Pittman, Berkeley L. Bunker (above), 34, state assemblyman from Las Vegas, will fill out a term ending early in 1941. He's a bishop in the Latter Day Saints church.

NAUTICAL—As perky a gal as ever borrowed a gob's headgear for her own use is Maris Wrixon of the films, who's all set for a trip on the bounding main. White braid and a white dickey at the throat accent the blue denim dress.

LOOKS LIKE A CINCH—Give Orpha Ohlsen (above) a chance to be "Miss Sunshine" and represent Long Beach in southern California's all-winter sun festival and she'll be happy—she says. She's just rehearsing for role, on Long Beach beach.



REST CURE—To recover from the strain of his unsuccessful campaign for New Jersey senatorship, James H. R. Cromwell is resting at Palm Beach, Fla., estate of his mother.

NO DISGUISE NEEDED—Those "specs" and that tiny skull cap didn't hide the identity of this miss, who watched a New York prize fight. She's Brenda Frazier, debutante glamor girl, seen with John "Shipwreck" Kelly, her reported beau.

SACRIFICIAL GOAT—"Duke," the pet goat of Richard (left) and Robert Delaloye, had to be auctioned in Missouri along with other St. Charles county, Mo., possessions being cleared out to permit building of an $11,000,000 TNT defense plant.

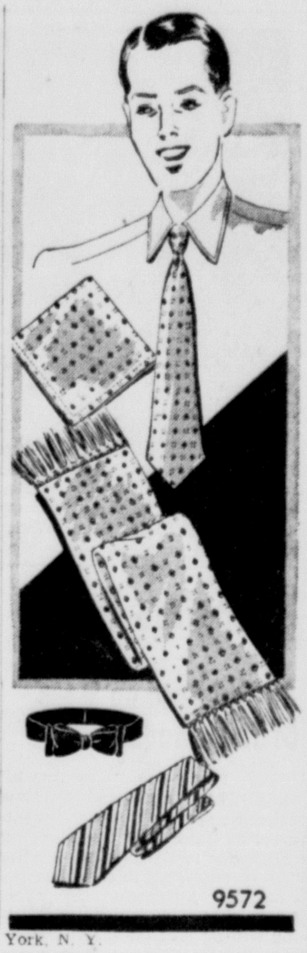
Gift Ideas for Men and Boys

Marian Martin

PATTERN 9572



What a "gifted" idea for the holidays—these gay accessories for men and boys! Pattern 9572 by Marian Martin includes a four-in-hand and a bow-tie for a man, a handkerchief and a scarf, and a boy's tie. Each article is quick-as-a-flash to make and sure to be appreciated by the big or little man who receives it. Have the man's four-in-hand tie, handkerchief and scarf all of one fabric for a smart set! If you make the scarf double, the whole set of three will require just 1 1-8 yards of fabric; if the scarf is single, ¾ yard will do the trick. The boy's tie fastens in back with a hook and eye so that it needn't be re-tied. This pattern is the perfect answer to your yearly problem "WHAT shall I give those menfolk"

Pattern 9572 may be ordered only for boys and men. For individual yardages see pattern.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Holiday-time means time for new clothes—which is just another way of saying you need the Marian Martin pattern book! Follow the style-lead of this brilliant book, and find easy-to-make modes for the while family—on a budget plan. There are lovely frocks for day and evening merry-making . . . dresses and aprons for busy indoor days . . . party, sports and new-term school styles. Order a copy now! Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

Practical Advice For Family Life Is Presented

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

If you're an in-law—especially a mother-in-law—don't sympathize with both belligerents. Your child and the in-law child will get together at the first kiss, talk it over, and you'll find yourself in the doghouse with both.

Please don't, if your son's wife is sporting a new fur coat, tell her with a sniff how you wore your old coat for three seasons after you were married, had it made over with artificial fur and wore it three more. This may account for any straying on the part of your own husband. Tell daughter-in-law she looks swell in her fur coat, and mind your own business.

If you're a daughter-in-law, don't raise Cain if you discover that your husband is giving money to his old parents. They probably went without help to get him where he is today. He owes them something. Don't be a shrew. Remember the day will come when your children will marry and you might be thankful for a handout yourself.

Please don't, if you're a mother-in-law, try to bring up your grandchildren. You may have had a baker's dozen of your own, and the sight of an infant getting tomato juice or buttermilk may drive you nuts, but a good many babies survive the modern treatment just as they survived adults chewing up their food for them in bygone days.

Don't if you're a father-in-law, grow eloquent on "a woman's place is in the home," if you happen to have a wage-earning daughter-in-law. The young people may have decided that she work for a year or two until the stork flaps his wings and they want to get a little ahead for that bungalow in the suburbs. Working wives, like modernistic furniture, may not appeal to the older generation, but they are here.

If you're an in-law, don't be too hard on the can and can-opener, and don't tell your daughter-in-law of the hours you spent boiling beans. Not that I'm advocating a daily diet from the can, but there are emergencies when they are convenient, and the modern woman can't afford to spend hours dangling over a cook-stove as our grandmothers did. She's a pretty dull companion if she does.

If you're young and happily married, please don't be too self-centered. Remember there are limits to the honeymoon, and if you neglect your relatives and friends too long after this blissful period, they may neglect you when you really need them. A marriage that is a closed corporation of two does not survive indefinitely.

People need in-laws and friends and the contacts these people bring them. Young marrieds need to go out and see how other people live, think and face this business called living. The monastic type which seeks seclusion does not do well in this gregarious world. Young people should join a church, a debating society, a bowling team, a choral group, a dramatic club if they have a passion for acting, or a dancing club that meets at least once in two weeks, or even a card club if they like to play cards. Anything that will keep them from preying on each other exclusively, like so much corrosive acid. "Wake up and live" might be your motto, and see how other people live, the postscript.

Send in your in-law problems. I'll be glad to publish the best ones.

Feeble Rallies in Market Fail To Bolster Prices, List Closes Off

Declines Are in Fraction and a Few Favorites Advance

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—Intermittent feeble rallies bogged down in today's stock market and irregularly lower trends prevailed at the close.

Declines generally were in small fractions and scattered favorites managed to finish with modest advances. Isolated issues were off 1 to 2.

Transfers totalled 598,600 shares compared with 651,170 the day before. Two 10,000-share blocks each of Lehigh Valley Coal and Columbia Gas were recorded. The former was unchanged at 4½ and the latter dipped 3-16 to ½, a new 1940 bottom.

Business news continued on the bullish side. Construction awards registered a sharp upturn, automotive sales were reported being maintained at a high level, steel output held to near-capacity figures and Christmas retail spending volumes were expected to exceed 1929.

U. S. Steel ended unchanged but Bethlehem, Youngstown and Republic were off a shade. In the losing bracket also were General Motors, Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, Sperry, Market Street Railway Preferred, Loft, N. Y. Shipbuilding, Southern Railway, N. Y. Central, Anaconda, U. S. Rubber, Eastman Kodak and Allied Chemical.

Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck were up ⅛ each. Both companies disclosed a brisk expansion in October business over a year ago. Improved were American Smelting, Pennsylvania, American Telephone and du Pont.

Modest Curb advances were posted for American Gas, Bell Aircraft, Humble Oil and Bath Iron Works. Creole Petroleum skidded, along with Gulf Oil and Phoenix Securities. Volume here was around 145,000 shares versus 157,000 Wednesday.

Chicago Grain Prices

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (AP)—Wheat prices bobbed above and below previous closing levels today, fluctuating within a range of ⅝ cent, narrowest in some time, and closing unchanged to ¼ lower compared with yesterday.

The market's sluggishness was blamed on hesitancy due to uncertainty regarding settlement of outstanding December contracts as well as the war and the deadlocked domestic supply and demand situation.

December wheat closed at 90-90⅛, with May at 86⅝-⅞. Corn was ¼-⅜ lower, December 61⅜, May 60¼-⅜; oats ⅛-¼ off; soybeans ¼-1½ lower; rye ¾ down and lard 2-5 lower.

Bonds Slightly Lower

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—High priced corporate issues and some foreign dollar bonds especially affected by news developments moved in today's market as the general list loafed in slightly lower territory.

In the domestic corporate group most changes were small and the trend was mixed.

United States governments firmed in late dealings and ended up 1-32 to 5-32 of a point.

Total sales of $7,945,000, par value compared with $8,244,750 on Wednesday.

SCENE FROM LIBERTY FILM

All-Girl Band on Stage Of Strand Today

The twenty-one "Swinghearts", all-girl band conducted by Dave Schooler, opens a two-day engagement at the Strand theater today.

Included in the program are the "Six Sweetie-Pies" in their jam session for jitterbugs; the "Four Violin-hearts", with their scintillating strings; Rita Cove, girl-trumpeter; Dolores (Drums) Gale, "siren of the skins"; Betty Sloan, the "female Benny Goodman"; Jan Baker, in a twin-trumpet surprise; Barbara Nelson, saxophone virtuoso; and Schooler with his piano solos.

On the screen are Virginia Gilmore and William Henry in the Twentieth Century Fox film, "Jennie", a cartoon and news flashes.

WIFE PRESERVERS

A mixture of chloroform and jeweler's rouge made into a stiff paste will clean metallic cloth and trimmings. Apply paste to cloth with soft brush or rag, rubbing lightly. Brush or rinse powder out with gasoline. This treatment should only be used out of doors or with plenty of air in the room, and away

Shearer and Taylor Featured at Maryland

In an Alpine setting reminiscent of the last winter Olympic games, Norma Shearer returned to work as the world-weary Countess von Treck of Ethel Vance's "Escape", now at the Maryland theater.

The set occupied all of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's largest sound stage, the most extensive "outdoor-indoor" set ever built.

Robert Taylor is co-starred in the film.

The Maryland will present the White Way Casino Revue Monday and Tuesday.

Pony Express Days Shown at Embassy

Tribute to those heroes of the western frontier, the pony express riders, is found in Johnny Mack Brown's western picture, Universal's "Pony Post," now at the Embassy theater.

The western star portrays a two-gun range rider who is enlisted in the pony express service to bring a stop to Indian and outlaw attacks on company riders.

Fuzzy Knight is again teamed with Brown to supply laughs and music for the film, while Neil O'Day blonde equestrienne, appears in a dramatic role.

Also showing are movies of the Dempsey-Willard fight and Frankie Darro in "Laughing at Danger."

Lombard and Laughton Star in Liberty Film

How a moment of indiscretion on the part of a lonely, bewildered young woman almost shatters the lives of three people is the basis for the drama in "They Knew What They Wanted," starring Carole Lombard and Charles Laughton, and starting tomorrow at the New Liberty theater.

Based on the Pulitzer prize play by the late Sidney Howard, this RKO Radio drama of down-to-earth characters presents Miss Lombard as a discouraged, repressed waitress who accepts a mail proposal to marry a well-to-do Latin grape-grower who longs for a wife and children.

But he doesn't reckon with his amorous, irresponsible foreman. When the lovable old rancher is seriously injured on the night before the wedding, the foreman takes advantage of the distraught girl's heart longings.

The consequences of this one mad moment, the cowardice but eventual remorse of the foreman, the warm generosity of the kindly vineyardist and the poignant sacrifice of the waitress provide the climax.

Fall Makes Comedian Out of Garden Star

Wayne Morris made his entrance into college by falling flat on his face in Paramount's "The Quarterback," which opens today at the Garden theater. It wasn't in the script, either. Somebody had left a suitcase lying around and Morris came into contact with it. The cast and directoor roared their appreciation.

"Say, that was swell," said H. Bruce Humberstone, the director. "We'll leave it in. I didn't know you were a comedian. Now let's do it again—the same thing."

So Morris did it again and joined the other comics in the picture, Edgar Kennedy, Alan Mowbray, William Frawley, and Walter Catlett. Morris, by the way, plays a dual role, that of his own twin brother, and has a romance with Virginia Dale and Lillian Cornell, blondeand brunette, respectively.

Fred Stone battles to save his most faithful friend in Columbia's "Konga, The Wild Stallion", also opening today at the Garden. Rochelle Hudson and Richard Fiske supply the romantic interest. Others in the cast include Robert Warwick, Carl Stockdale, Don Beddoe and Eddy Waller.

Nebraskan Makes Debut as Senator After 40 Years of Planning, Saving

By RAY MACKLAND
Central Press Writer

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 5 — Forty years ago, when Hugh Butler, Nebraska's new Republican senator, was graduating from Doane college, he knew he wanted to go into public life. But he also knew public life was a luxuary, so he set out deliberately to acquire a competency that would permit it.

For years he set aside a sum—how much he won't say—for his debut in politics. In the primary, he paid his own way. After that, he permitted the Republican party to shoulder most of the financial load. Reports are that it cost Butler about $30,000.

Hugh Butler's mother died when he was nine, and his father never made more than $40 a month. Hugh got to college by winning a scholarship in a church paper's subscription contest. He worked for his board and room and did odd jobs to pay other expenses. Now he is a trustee of the college, and the gymnasium, which his gifts helped build, is named for him.

Worked in Labor Gang

After graduation, Nebraska's new senator went to work as a railroad construction crew laborer. In three years he was married and in seven years he was placed in charge of a construction crew in Wyoming, where he and his wife lived in a tarpaper shack. In eight years he had quit, to buy a grain elevator and mill with his father-in-law and another relative.

Five years later Butler became general manager of a big milling concern. In another five years, at 40, he decided he was still young enough to make one more move in pursuit of his ideal of independence. With $15,000 of his own, Butler and Roy Welsh, who had $3,000, borrowed $13,000 more, and in 1919 opened a grain business which today is one of the largest home-owned concerns on the Omaha Grain exchange, with 100 employes in the busy season.

Senator-elect Butler

During all this time, Butler bided his political debut. He served on a small town board and Omaha's non-political school board, to be sure, but his ambitions were bigtime. Twenty-five years ago he decided he would run for senator instead of governor. Each move he planned with scrupulous care and thoroughness.

He became a district governor and international director of Rotary, which he joined in the early twenties. He was an ardent member all through the years the intellectuals derided it. He was active in Congregational church circles. He was a conscientious Mason. All these things built up a circle of acquaintances wider than most people believed.

In the gloomy Republican year of 1934, Butler became county chairman. A Democratic official asked him, "Why in hell does a businessman like you want to get into politics?"

"To get some of the politicians like you out," retorted Butler, with a smile.

Butler strongly suspects he got the county chairmanship because nobody else would take it. He gave the impression of being something of a fumbler, new as he was to politics, and he still didn't have the expert's touch two years later when he became national committeeman, a "lost cause" job which some people say nobody else wanted either.

He worked hard, conscientiously, even if old hands did think his leadership lacked the holy fire. He asked everybody for advice, and people felt faintly sorry for a national committeeman who fumbled along so. But people liked to give advice and his advisers became his friends.

Anti-New Deal Senator Edward R. Burke, a Democrat, was one of Butler's best friends, a member of the same church. Butler hoped he would be re-elected, but in February, 1939, he decided he couldn't be. And he came to the conclusion that Butler could.

In the primary, Butler defeated two former governors, one backed by Nebraska's veteran Senator George W. Norris, Governor R. L. Cochran, only man Nebraska has elected governor for three consecutive terms, beat Burke. Butler wasn't given much chance against Cochran unless Wendell Willkie made a walkaway of the Nebraska race. Willkie did, but Butler's vote was higher than Willkie's.

Butler in his campaigning didn't depend on volunteers or party hacks, because he thought they couldn't be depended on and they would want to tell him how to run his campaign. He knew how he wanted to run it, and where necessary he employed people to spend full time in looking after his interests.

Weeks before election Butler knew he was in. So sure he was that he would be moving to Washington that he sold his house and moved into a rented duplex. Before assuming office, he will dispose of his interest in the grain business.

"I don't pose as a specialist," he says, "but I'm going to work just as hard as I know how, especially on the domestic problems. The present farm program is one of restriction. A nation cannot starve itself into strength any more than an individual. Instead of hiring ourselves not to produce, we should have a program that would hire ourselves to produce."

Owns Large Ranch

Butler got into farming via the mortgage route. In 1914 he found himself with two of them, totaling 540 acres, on his hands. These were the beginnings of an 1,800-acre ranch which he and a brother operate in partnership with a tenant. Butler also owns another 400-acre irrigated farm with the best alfalfa field in the state. Fifty carloads of cattle a year are marketed from the ranch.

Farming and Rotary, with business, are the big factors in his life. His reading is confined mostly to Rotarian and grain trade magazines. He plays some golf, counting it a good day when he breaks a hundred, and some bridge. He likes the card game known as sandhills pitch and big game hunting. He hunts whenever he can get away, and if you really want to get Hugh Butler's attention just ask him about his boat trip down the Salmon river, "the river of no return."

Butler is a descendent of William Butler, who once was Illinois state treasurer and one of the organizers of the national Republican party. He says Abraham Lincoln boarded at William Butler's home, left his house to be married.

Giants Buy Pitcher Bowman from Cards

Purchase Price Is Believed To Be at Least $50,000

Pittsburgh Gives Outfielder Paul Waner His Outright Release

By JUDSON BAILEY

ATLANTA, Dec. 5 (AP)—Just when the winter baseball meetings were about to die of melancholia, the New York Giants tonight purchased pitcher Bob Bowman from the St. Louis Cardinals for a sum estimated at $50,000 and set the lobby gossips back on their heels again.

Until this happened it had been a dull day, so listless in fact that representatives of several major league clubs packed their satchels and went home.

Pirates Release Paul Waner

The Major League club owners and league presidents held a long, argumentative session in which they voted on more than a score of proposed amendments to their working rules and the Major League owners and managers milled around admitting, for the most part, that the trading outlook was hopeless.

The Pittsburgh Pirates performed a sad but necessary duty and released their veteran outfielder, Paul Waner, outright. Other clubs fooled around with small functions, sending excess players to Minor League farms, fixing up working agreements for the 1941 season and making last futile attempts at trades of importance.

The one oasis in this desert of nothingness was room 1056 of the headquarters hotel where Manager Bill Terry of the Giants hid away to bargain from early in the morning until late at night.

At the time the Giants broke the trading lull to announce the Bowman purchase, they emphasized that Terry was working on at least one and possibly other deals of some magnitude. The needs of the Giants were so numerous that it was difficult to surmise what was in the wind.

Bowman is the 26-year-old right-handed hurler who beaned Ducky Medwick of Brooklyn last summer and his acquisition by the Giants not only gave them a first line pitcher, but fanned their famous feud with the Dodgers to a new heat.

Bowman was raised up through the Cardinal farm system and entered the National League in 1939, when he won thirteen and lost five for the Redbirds with an earned run average of 2.61. Last season when the Cards slipped a bit, Bowman won seven and lost five.

Waner's unconditional release was the day's best sentimental story. President Bill Benswanger came to the press room to make the announcement that the little fellow who had starred for the Pirates for fifteen years was out of a job.

"We didn't like to let him go," said Benswanger, "because he has been an institution in Pittsburgh. It's different when a player spends his whole career with one club than when he sticks in the majors a long time, but bounces around from one team to another.

"We parted friendly. Paul came here from his home in Florida and we told him to try to make a deal for himself. He wasn't able to do this so we had to give him a release. He realized we didn't have any choice—that youngsters were coming up to take his job just like he came in fresh to take somebody else's in 1926."

Waner, elder of the famous "Big and Little Poison" brother act of the Pirates for so many years, earned the National League batting championship in 1927, 1934 and 1936 and held many hitting records. He batted over .300 in 13 out of 15 years and in eight of these seasons had more than 200 hits.

He is 37 years old. His brother, Lloyd, three years younger, still is on the Pirate roster, but his status too is questionable now.

In the convention session itself, the minors voted down two proposals to pare down the reserve fund of nearly a quarter of a million dollars accumulated by the National Association. One would have ordered a distribution of $150,000 back to the member clubs and the other would have sliced the commission of the office of President William G. Bramham on handling contacts from two per cent to one per cent.

The minors approved one amendment that would place any player drafted to army duty on the voluntarily retired list without restriction and another which would allow a representative of one club to sign, as well as recommend, players for another club. The latter was the same rule in a different guise that Commissioner K. M. Landis vetoed last winter at the meetings in Cincinnati.

O'ROURKE GETS FOOTBALL AWARD

Boston college's great back, Charlie O'Rourke ,right, is the recipient of the 1940 George Lowe memorial award given at a dinner by the Gridiron club of Boston for the outstanding football player in New England. Last year Gene Goodreault, Boston college end, won the honor.

All-American Eleven Named By Collier's

Albert, Harmon, Franck and Kimbrough Are Given Backfield Posts

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 — Selections for Collier's annual All-America football team, a perpetuation of the All-America started by Walter Camp in Collier's in 1889, were announced today. The players are:

Ends: David Rankin, Purdue; Gene Goodreault, Boston.

Tackles: Robert Reinhard, U. of Calif.; Alfred Bauman, Northwestern university.

Guards: Agostino Lio, Georgetown; Robert Suffridge, U. of Tennessee.

Center: Rudy Mucha, University of Washington.

Quarterback: Frank Albert, Stanford University.

Halfbacks: Thomas Harmon, U. of Michigan, George Franck, U. of Minnesota.

Fullback: John Kimbrough, Texas A. & M.

In awarding the Walter Camp gold football to these players, Collier's states that "the campaign of 1940 surpasses any in history for the number of fine teams and high grade stars," and doubts that "any past season has shown as many exceptionally good teams."

Final selections for this oldest of "All-America" teams are based on nominations from the Collier's Board, made up of veteran football writers who carry the full faith of their sections, and also are checked against the opinions of rival coaches against every leading entry. More than 500 telegrams were received and some 200,000 words written in assembling the All America nominations.

In addition to the national All-America, the magazine publishes eight sectional teams, which might be said to constitute the "All-America Squad."

Ott and Appling Sign Contracts

ATLANTA, Dec. 5 (AP)—Mel Ott, the veteran outfield star of the New York Giants, who came to the winter baseball meetings from his Louisiana home, signed a contract for 1941 today.

His salary was estimated at around $18,000, although the Giants did not disclose the amount.

The Chicago White Sox also had announced the signing of shortstop Luke Appling to a contract for next season.

Berwyn Is Winner Of Feature Race At Charles Town

Apprentice Jockey Claggett Is Thrown in Fourth But Escapes Injury

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec 5 (AP)—Jockey W. L. Taylor, one of the nation's leading riders, booted Mrs. P. L. Karnow's Berwyn to a front-running, three-length victory today in the featured Marshall Purse before 4,000 racing fans.

Ahead all the way, the four-year-old Berwyn covered the Charles Town course—120 feet more than six furlongs—in 1.15 3-5, only two fifths of a second over the track record. The track was fast for the feature despite last night's snow.

Two long shots followed Berwyn home. Mrs. V. L. Black's Furr Buckle was second, paying $16.00 to place, and Mrs. I. K. Mourar's Harebell was third, paying $9.40 to show. Berwyn returned $8.60 for $2.

It was Taylor's second victory of the day. He won the opener aboard Royal Veil at $11.40 for $2.

Apprentice Jockey Claggett, leading rider of the meeting, was thrown when his mount, Scarlet O, stumbled and fell in the fourth race but escaped injury. He later remounted and brought Scarlet O back to the unsaddling ring.

Terrible Thomas Advised To Let That Score Stand

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEW YORK, Dec. 5—There is a lot of good, clean fun in the spat between terrible Thomas Harmon, the all-everything from Michigan, and the state of Minnesota. A glance at the census figures for 1940 will show you that the state of Minnesota has Thomas outnumbered.

This is almost always true when one guy gets into a argument with an entire commonwealth.

Terrible Tom, speaking on the radio the other day, raised hob with the kilocycles over Minnesota by stating in his dearmy radio manner that Michigan should have beaten Minnesota's Golden Gophers this year by three touchdowns. Minnesota's first reaction was to tremble with fury. Her next was to laugh out loud.

There's no denying that Thomas stuck his neck out with that one. The whole of Minnesota jumped Gleefully upon it, reminding the world that in three years of competition with the Gophers, Mr. Harmon himself never scored so much as one touchdown. This year the score was 7 to 6. One good reason Michigan lost the game was that terrible Thomas — "Touchdown Thomas," as they call him in Minnesota, with a certain deep irony—missed his kick for the point.

Minnesota's Wrath Spreads

The city council of Minneapolis, as you may have heard, sent Tommy a crate of raspberries and a loving message. Other Minnesotans sent him whatever they could think of. I know how strongly Minnesota feels about the issue, because some of the boys out there even sent burning letters to me, apparently under the impression that I am the guy who writes Mr. Harmon's radio speeches. They offered to remove my tonsils with red-hot pincers for a small fee.

Citizens, this is no fight of mine. I did suggest a couple of weeks ago that Minnesota that Michigan were a pretty close match for Midwestern honors, but I pointed out that Minnesota won the game fairly and squarely. To the victors belong not only the spoils, but the credit.

Terrible Tom Harmon is trying to play the game over when he speaks of "three touchdowns." That's a mistake. Never play 'em over. Contemplate the misfortune of Mickey Walker, one of the toughest prize-fighters of our time, when he got to day-dreaming a la Harmon, and attempted to reverse the score.

This peculiar (and historical) episode took place in 1925.

Mr. Walker, as mentioned, was a very tough young man. In 1925, while welterweight champion of the world, he matched his twenty-four years and his rough, rugged manners against Harry Greb, who was then the middleweight champion. The weights were pretty close. Mr. Greb, however, was thirty-one years old, and never in those thirty-one years had he spent a dull moment, inside the ring or out.

Walker Started Brooding

This time Walker rushed and bulled him, but Greb stepped easily around and threw his leather to every part of Walker's face. He gave the Mick an artistic lacing, and so they all voted when the thing was over. All but Mr. Walker.

Mr. Walker repaired to a Broadway night spot and sat down at a table, brooding. Pretty soon Mr. Greb and party entered the joint. This was no coincidence. On an average evening, Mr. Greb got around to every night spot there was.

Mr. Walker brooded a while longer, and then went over to Mr. Greb's table.

"Maybe you licked me tonight, Harry," he said, "but I can lick you right now or any other time."

Mr. Greb laughed heartily. Mr. Walker repeated his proposition. presently the two gentlemen walked together to the sidewalk in front of the dive and began to fight the battle over again. And again, for the second time that evening, Mr. Greb licked Mr. Walker.

"My error," said Mr. Walker when he was able to speak.

This story offers a very powerful moral—let the score stand. As long as Terrible Thomas Harmon plays the Minnesota-Michigan game over on the radio alone, I suppose no bones will be broken, but you can't blame the winning party for hating to have its achievement kicked around.

To Make Home Debut

Frostburg, Dec. 5.—Coach George Carrington's Frostburg State hoopmen, who lost a 49-34 battle to Loyola at Baltimore in their opening game Tuesday night, are preparing to make their home debut against St. Francis College of Loretto, Pa., Saturday night.

The Mountaineers' starting lineup will be selected from Johnny Meyers, "Hank" Bell, Bill Thomas, Ed Athey, Joe Wagner and Jake Carrington, all of whom saw action against Loyola. Last year, Frostburg and St. Francis split in two battles.

Using weight and height to advantage, Loyola overpowered the Carrington five in a game filled with action. During the first ten minutes, neither team could gain an advantage but in the second quarter, the Greyhounds grabbed a seven-point lead with outside shooting by V. Bock featuring.

FOR THE TITLE.

LOS ANGELES—Full proof of the rapid progress pro fotball has made will be shown in Washington on Sunday. There will be only 35,000 present, but if there were room enough there would be 100,000, or perhaps more. For the meeting of the Washington Redskins and the Chicago Bears is sure to be one of the big thrillers of 1940, a thrilling year for sport.

When you can see Sammy Baugh pitching against Sid Luckman there isn't much else to add. When you can see Dick Todd thrown against the running game the Bears carry into action you will get another double eyeful. The Bears have the edge with a better running attack, but Baugh at his best is terrific.

This has been the all-time top of pro seasons and the finale should measure up to every expectation in the way of speed, skill and action.

Notre Dame and U.S.C.

Here in Los Angeles we have further proof that football crowds do not always demand a winner.

Both Southern California and Notre Dame have dropped far below their narmal levels this fall, yet from 80,000 to 90,000 spectators are headed for the big Municipal Stadium where Elmer Layden and Howard Jones will attempt to wrench one final jewel from the toad's head of past defeats.

There will be no season's ranking involved, as the case was last year and so many years before. But it still will be Notre Dame and Southern California meeting in an old rivalry that in years past has produced some of the greatest games ever played.

What About Yale?

Before heading west again on another ramble I ran into a group of Old Blues from Yale. They were bluer than Eli's favorite color. You couldn't blame them. Yale has meant through the years more to football than any other team. I am now moving back over a sixty-year stretch.

Yale this fall scored 43 points against 162 points. Eli finished with a lone victory in eight starts.

It strikes me that Yale has overdone the non-proselyting, who-cares act. For example, two New Haven schoolboys play for Harvard and helped to trounce Yale. The father of one of the boys was a Yale man.

Yale's alumni has made no attempt to round up players who belong to Yale—I mean through heritage, tradition and everything else.

As both Tad Jones and Bob Zuppke have told me, College football may have its weak spots, but it is still a vital part of college life, for which there is no substitute. It is still far more important than many college presidents seem to understand."

New York University is in the same fix, and N.Y.U. happens to have a far larger enrollment than Michigan, Minnesota or any other university I know about.

No one could suggest money payments or overzealous proselyting. But there can be alumni assistance such as the Western Conference presents, such as most of the others offer. This muse be so if Yale, N.Y.U., Army and one or two others expect to contend on something like even terms with most of their rivals.

I may be wrong but it strikes me that the present order of Yale students, including players, take overwhelming defeats too casually, as just a part of the game. Yale's part in football has been too big for any such attitude, and football means too much to American college and university life to be treated as an unwanted orphan.

Back to the Bowls

Out here they are looking for a big game between Stanford and Nebraska. Here is a meeting between two fine teams and two of football's most colorful coaches—Clark Shaughnessy and Biff Jones. They have two of the country's finest teams—two of the nation's best backfields.

But this coast realizes that the other three bowls have stolen away the public interest of the East, the South and the Southwest. They know the Sugar Bowl meeting between Tennessee and Boston College will be regarded nationally as the country's leading bowl game.

I took a vote from sixty of the country's leading football writers, largely from the East and the South, and found that over 90 per cent were heading for the Sugar, Cotton and Orange Bowls.

The East naturally is looking to Boston College, Georgetown and Fordham, the South to Tennessee and Mississippi States, the Southwest to Texas A. and M. The Stanford-Nebraska contest was regarded as strictly Far West meeting between two fine teams, missing the intersectional flavor.

I found the Midwest slightly dormant, believing that Minnesota, Michigan or Northwestern could handle them all.

As good as Stanford and Nebraska are, as popular as Biff Jones and Clark Shaughnessy are, this will be the first time the Sugar Bowl and possibly the Coton Bowl and Orange Bowl have stolen the major share of national interest. This means the entire East, the entire South and the Southwest, with the Big Nine and the Midwest not bothering much either way.

Rose Bowl interest is now strictly a Far Western proposition as far as the big majority of football followers feel about it.

The records of Tennessee and Boston College, North against South, give the Sugar Bowl the greatest edge it has ever known. There is certainly no game that promises as many thrills as the Volunteers and the Eagles should be able to offer.

And the same goes for the Cotton Bowl when those Fordham backs get under way. The Orange Bowl, with Mississippi State and Georgetown tangling, will hold a smashing show. Mississippi State has had its place in the spotlight all season as one of the best aggregations in the South.

Curiously enough, it took the experts a long time to realize how good Georgetown was—and, just as curious, it took Boston College game to put the Hoyas across. They lost that game which, right down to the last few seconds, could have gone either way. And lost to a team that all along had been recognized as one of the nation's best.

The Rose Bowl probably will have just as much football talent as any other bowl but this time it has to work in a limited terrain of national football interest.

Boston College Places Two Men On Eastern Team

Drahos and Matuszczak of Cornell also Placed on First Eleven

By BILL BONI

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP) — Boston College, Fordham and Georgetown, which will represent the East in three of the New Year's day bowl games, each won representation today on the 1940 Associated Press All-Eastern football team."

Boston, as befits a team which came through 10 games without defeat or tie to win the mythical Eastern Championship, led the way with three men — Chet Gladchuk, 6 feet 5 inch, 242-pound center; George Kerr, guard, and 158-pound Charley O'Rourke, who looks like a drug clerk in his street clothes but becomes a punting-passing running triple threat in his cleats and pads.

Cornell Gets Two Places

Besides B. C., which will play Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl, only one other team gained more than one place. Cornell put tackle Nick Drahos and blocking back and signal-caller Walt Matuszczak on the first eleven.

Georgetown, which will play Mississippi State in the Orange Bowl, and Fordham, which will play in the Cotton Bowl, each placed a lineman. The Hoyas' Agostino Lio, 215-pound guard and expert place-kicker, is a holdover from the 1939 team (the only one besides Drahos) while Fordham's Joe Ungerer was named to team with Drahos at the tackles.

Rounding out the line are ends Loren MacKinney of Harvard and Alan Bartholemy of Yale, both Juniors and the only non-seniors on the team. With O'Rourke and double-z Matuszczak in the backfield are Francis Xavier Reagan of Penn's Ivy League Champions, a one-man gang on his good days and consistently the best punter in the East, and George Kracum, 195-pound fullback who helped keep Pitt football from being de-emphasized too far.

Reagan Big Favorite

Reagan had the least trouble winning his place on a team that averages 202 pounds in the line and 185 in the backfield. O'Rourke faced challenges from such contenders as Temple's Andy Tomastic, Cornell's Hal McCullough and Fordham's Len Eshmont; Kracum had strong fullback rivals in sophomore Steve Filipowicz of Fordham, 170-pound Mort Landsberg of Cornell and Georgetown's Jim Castiglia, and even Matuszczak had a play-calling, blocking challenger in Henry Toczylowski of Boston College.

The same is true in the line with the possible exception of the tackles, where the field was small. At center Gladchuk won out over an exceptionally fine field that included Leon Gazecki of Penn State, Columbia's Don Shavley, Lou Defilippo of Fordham and Ray Frick of Penn.

The All-Eastern Team:

Position, Player and College	Home Town
E—MacKinney, Harvard	Chapel Hill, N. C.
T—Drahos, Cornell (x)	Cedarhurst, N. Y.
G—Kerr, Boston Coll.	Brookline, Mass.
C—Gladchuk, Boston Coll.	Bridgeport, C.
G—Lio, Georgetown	Passaic, N. J.
T—Ungerer, Fordham	Bethlehem, Pa.
E—Bartholemy, Yale	Portland, Ore.
B—Matuszczak, Cornell	Lowville, N. Y.
B—Reagan, Penn	Philadelphia
B—O'Rourke, Boston Coll.	Malden, Mass.
B—Kracum, Pitt	Hazleton, Pa.

Lafayette Rated Best Offensive Grid Team

Texas Aggies Are Only Repeaters From Last Year

Cornell Eleven Is Judged Best in Forward Passing Offense

By GAIL FOWLER

SEATTLE Dec. 5 (AP)—Most late season leaders held their pace to finish first in various team statistical rankings for 1940 in the American Football Statistical Bureau's final weekly roundup released today.

Here are the 1940 yardstick champions, with 1939 leaders—lest we forget—in parentheses:

A total offense—Lafayette. (Ohio State).

Rushing offense—Lafayette. (Wake Forest).

Total defense—Navy. (Texas A. & M.).

Rushing defense—Texas A. & M. (Texas A. & M.).

Punting—Texas Mines. (Auburn).

Texas Aggies are the only repeaters, and they share defensive honors with Navy and Harvard. The Aggies ranked behind San Jose state last year defensively, but topped the major teams.

The Leopards of Lafayette depended on a strong running game to move through an undefeated season. Lafayette gained 2,758 yards on the ground and 556 in the air for 3,314 yards for an average gain per game of 368.2.

Indicating the strong trend to offense this year after 1939's defensive tendencies is the fact Ohio State led the nation with a mark of 309.3 last year, while this season boasts nine teams which better that average, and the tenth—Duke, is only a whisker under at 309.2.

The same offensive trend is noted in the defensive statistics. The Texas Aggies led in total defense last year by holding the enemy to 76.3 yards per game via rushing and passing. This year Navy assumes leadership with a mark of 96 yards per game yielded.

First in punting last week, Auburn's Plainsmen dropped to second this week behind Texas Mines, which boasts Owen Price, the nation's leading punter who spiraled 30 for an average of 48 yards even.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 5—It's refreshing to talk to Ray Carlen. He doesn't swell up and blast you into the next room with puffs of hot air as some fight managers do when they talk about some muffin-eared young fellow in whose fortunes they have an interest. About fifty per cent sometimes.

Ray Carlen came east about two years ago with a big, raw-boned, square-rigged kid named Lou Nova. They were going to take Joe Louis' title away from him, and for a time it looked like they weren't fooling. Then a blood infection collaborated with Tony Galento to take the air out of their air castle.

Now they are back. Nova is a little bigger, a little more determined than ever. Carlen still is the mild, frail, apprehensive-looking fellow who is an orange in a barrel of apples as far as fitting in with the fight mob is concerned.

He sat in Mike Jacobs' office and, with none of the "we'll knock 'em dead" bluster, explained the new plans he and Nova have blue-printed.

"We came East with a fight with Billy Conn in mind," he said. "Right now we have a match with Pat Comiskey scheduled for January. I told Mike I wouldn't take the Comiskey match unless we could have Conn next if Louie wins, and Mike virtually has promised that.

"I know Comiskey is big and hits hard, but I figure if Louie can't beat him he doesn't belong up there and might as well quit.

"I saw Conn fight Savold the other night and afterward I told Louie that Conn was a better fighter than I thought. He's really good. Louie knows that too, but he told me something he saw in Conn's style that made him think he could beat him. Louie is a straight-ahead fighter, you know, always shuffling in, like Louis.

"And he has a fine left—not a stabbing left, but a punching, cutting left. I know he's stubborn, and when he gets an idea into his head you can't change his mind. But he's smart, and has plenty of moxie.

"Just to give you an idea of how stubborn he is, take his haircut. You know, when he was back here before he wore his hair short, crew style. I told him to let it grow, as it is nice and wavy and would be an asset to him. Now he's decided to let his hair grow, and I can't get him to get a haircut.

"Just before we came East Louie was working in a gym at Oakland, and for two or three days I noticed he wasn't using his left as usual. He was holding it low, trying to develop a stiff-arm hook. I asked him what was the matter, and he said nothing, he knew he had the straight left, he'd always have that.

"I kept after him to show me his straight left again, and finally he said okay, and he nearly wrecked a couple of sparring partners with it. He's always experimenting, trying to figure out something new.

"He took more punishment than he should have taken in the Baer fight, and that was his own fault too. Baer hit him harder than Galen—to ever hit him. He was sick before the Baer fight, and sicker when he fought Galento. He's fine now."

And so is Ray Carlen. A fine guy in a not-so-fine business. And we aren't counting out his Louie until we see him counted out.

National A. A. U. To Hold Annual Convention

Disciplinary Measures May Be Taken against College Athletes

By LOUDON KELLY

DENVER, Dec. 5 (AP) — Talks of disciplinary measures against certain college athletes for violating amateur codes was heard today as delegates checked in for the fifty-second National A. A. U. convention.

Between tomorrow and Sunday, the A. A. U. will pass on 1941 championship sites for amateur sports as different as basketball and bobsledding, track meets and horseshoe pitching. The delegates also will be asked to ratify 322 new athletic records, highest number in history.

Along with discussions over whether college players would risk their amateur status by playing in the East-West grid game with Michigan's Tom Harmon, it was reported unofficially that the A. A. U. plans to "crack down" on twelve college basketball players who played against a professional quintet in Chicago recently.

Daniel J. Ferris, A. A. U. secretary, said Harmon, for receiving a radio fee, made himself "ineligible" for possible A. A. U. competition unless he applied for and obtained reinstatement.

All players competing with or against Harmon in the Jan 1 charity game at San Francisco, Ferris said would be threatened with the loss of amateur standing in A. A. U. sports unless each one wrote to the board of governors for permission to play in the grid contest.

The basketball players facing A. A. U. suspension were those on the All-Star team which defeated the Harlem Globe Trotters, National Professional League champions.

"When the college stars asked for permission to play against the pro team, they were told the A. A. U. could not sanction their participation," Ferris said.

"Two of the All-Stars, Ralph Giannini of Santa Clara and Jim McNatt of Oklahoma, heeded the A. A. U.'s stand and sat on the bench. Their future amateur standing, therefore, will not be questioned."

Dr. F. C. Allen Predicts End to College Football

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 5 (AP)—Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen, University of Kansas basketball coach, predicts that college football has only "ten more years."

"Somebody has done something to football," he said in an interview, "and as a result football is on the way out. In some schools under present conditions football is more professional than it is on the straight out and out pro teams of the National League.

"Certainly there is less hypocrisy."

Educators originally incorporated intercollegiate athletics into the educational system, he said, because they believe it had a connection with their work.

"But the handwriting is plain. Already such schools as Yale, Princeton, Harvard, Cornell and Chicago have de-emphasized football or are preparing to do so."

Dr. Allen said he did not think it unreasonable for gridmen to get some financial help, but added that the trouble now was that most of them can make more than when they "get out in the world."

Roark Resigns as Coach at W. & J.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 5 (AP) — George W. Roark today gave up his job as head coach of track and football at Washington and Jefferson college to seek a position of "wider responsibility."

President R. C. Hutchison announced acceptance of the resignation, adding that trustees had taken no action regarding selection of a successor.

He expressed "appreciation of the college for work Roark has done for his skill in coaching football, his good record made against great odds, and his remarkable record in coaching track."

After a year at Westminister, Roark came to W. and J. in 1937 just as de-emphasis of football reached its height here. His President grid teams have won 16, lost 14 and tied two games.

It was a different story in track, however. Roark last year put out a team that swept all its dual meets, scoring the school's first track victories in six years and claiming the tri-state district meet at Beaver Falls.

A four-sports star at Bethany (W. Va.) college, Roark coached at Sisterville and Fallansbee, W. Va., and New Brighton, Pa., high schools before going to Westminter.

He did not elaborate on his quest for a job of "wider responsibility."

Louis Will Fight Godoy in April

DETROIT, Dec. 5 (AP) — Promoter Mike Jacobs announced tonight that heavyweight champion Joe Louis would defend his title for a third time against Arturo Godoy the Chilean, at Los Angeles in April in the windup of Joe's "winter tour."

Thus the rugged Godoy, who stayed the limit of 15 rounds in his first fight with Louis, will be the only man to face the Brown Bomber three times. Bob Pastor tried his luck twice. Godoy, on his second chance, was knocked out.

Louis opens his tour of five championship bouts against Al McCoy in Boston on Dec. 16. Promoter Jacobs said that Joe would meet Red Burman in New York in January; an unnamed opponent at Philadelphia in February, and another yet to be selected at Detroit in March. These will be title fights assuming that Louis keeps the crown in each preceding bout.

Fight circles said Louis' opponent in the Philadelphia bout might be Gus Dorazio and his foe in the Detroit engagement Abe Simon of New York. Simon would get the chance if he beats Roscue Toles in their fight here tomorrow night.

Challedon Will Race in Santa Anita Handicap

Ninety-Two Thoroughbreds Are Nominated for $100,000 Classic

By ROBERT MYERS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5 (AP) — Ninety-two top flight thoroughbreds, headed by the mighty Challedon, were nominated today for the seventh running of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, March 1.

The number of nominations fell short of the record 107 made in 1939, but turf experts looked over the roll and predicted one of the strongest fields in the history of the event would race for the purse — largest in the world—three months hence.

No less than 26 of the candidates have triumphed in 52 major stakes during the last season.

W. L. Brann's Challedon, "the horse of the year," in 1939 and 1940, leads the challengers and will campaign during the winter in an effort to surpass the all-time turf money winning record held by Seabiscuit.

Five prominent derby winners of 1940 were named: Gallahadion, victor in the Kentucky Derby; Sweepida, the Santa Anita Derby; Mioland, the American; Big Flash, the Hollywood, and Woof Woof, the Flamingo Stakes.

Other famous turf youngsters nominated were Porter's Cap, winner of the Washington Park Futurity, and the outstanding filly, Fairy Chant.

Back in the running for the third time will be Charles Howard's Kayak II, the Argentine-bred winner of the 1939 Santa Anita Handicap, and every other starter in the 1940 handicap with the exception of Seabiscuit, the winner, now retired, and War Plumage, which ran fifth in the field of 13.

International flavor was added with the nomination of nine South American horses and eight from Europe, including the highly touted Hunter's Moon IV and Saint Andrews of England.

Weights for the handicap will be announced next week.

The Santa Anita season opens Dec. 28.

Loyola College Defeats Georgetown

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5 (AP)—Loyola college came from behind to triumph over the Georgetown university basketball team 36-32 tonight.

Loyola opened with an attack that carried them into a 5-1 lead, but then fell behind and Georgetown led at the half 18 to 13.

The Greyhounds came back in the second and pulled even, and then went on to win with Bernard Thobe leading the scoring, tallying three field goals in the last three minutes.

O'Grady was high scorer for Georgetown with four field goals and four free shots.

Central High To Open at Oakland

Three Regulars from Last Year's Team Are Expected To Play

LONACONING, Dec. 5—Central High School cagers, who under Coach Mel "Newt" Henry made other boys' teams in this section stand up and take notice during the 1939-40 basketball season, will open what promises to be one of the best campaigns in Orange and Black history tomorrow night against Oakland High in the Garrett county town.

The Coney quintet of last season made a good showing in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League for the first time in years, and three boys who were regulars on that outfit are back this year in addition to five others with experience.

Holdover first-stringers are Dundas Orr, Harry Dixon and Bill Main. Missing are Gus Frizzell and George Eichhorn. Being groomed to fill in are Tally James, John Muster, Thomas Tinney, Jack Getty and Richard Dean. Others showing promise and who will probably see plenty of action are Robert Johnson, Robert Thomas, Charles Robertson and John Coburn.

In addition to ten W. M. I. battles, Central will play a dozen other games. Oakland, Frostburg's Jayvees, Berlin (Pa.) High, Meyersdale, and Piedmont will be met on a home-and-home basis while single contests have been arranged with Alumni and Petersburg.

Six battles are carded before Christmas, half of them at home. After Oakland will come Frostburg's Jayvees away December 7, Berlin here December 10 and away December 17, Meyersdale here December 17 and Alumni December 19. The Central-Allegany game at Cumberland has been tentatively booked for January 21. The schedule follows:

Dec. 6—Oakland, away.
Dec. 7—Frostburg Jayvees, away.
Dec. 10—Berlin, home.
Dec. 16—Berlin, away.
Dec. 17—Meyersdale, home.
Dec. 19—Alumni.
Jan. 8—Frostburg Jayvees, home.
Jan. 10—Meyersdale, away.
Jan. 13—Piedmont, home.
Jan. 16—Port Hill, home.
Jan. 21—Allegany, away (pending).
Jan. 24—Beall, away.
Jan. 28—Barton, home.
Jan. 31—Bruce, away.
Feb. 4—Oakland, home.
Feb. 5—Piedmont, away.
Feb. 11—Port Hill, away.
Feb. 14—Allegany, home.
Feb. 18—Beall, home.
Feb. 21—Barton, away.
Feb. 25—Bruce, home.
Feb. 28—Petersburg, away.

JOE FALCARO, Undefeated Match Record Holder, demonstrates the well-known Four-Step Delivery.

AN EXPERT MAKES STRIKES!

EDITOR, BOWLERS' DIGEST

1. First Step—starts with right foot; ball, held in both hands, pushed away from the body and toward the pins. 2. Second step—ball swings backward in its natural arc; the left arm moves outward for balance; knees bend, body inclines forward. 3. The ball, continuing its backswing, reaches the height of its arc at end of third step.

4. Fourth step—ball is brought down and forward. 5. Left foot slides toward the foul line and ball is released; right foot crosses to anchor the slide. 6. The follow through, as the ball starts rolling down the polished lane.

7. Here, note how the perfectly-delivered ball reaches its goal, the pocket between No. 1 and No. 3 pin, touching off the fuse for (8.) the explosion of sound and action that says, "Perfect Strike!" Nice going, Joe Falcaro!

BOWLING TIPS. Remember that proper direction is more important than speed. Select a ball that fits the hand comfortably. Beginners should walk, not run, to the foul line. Correct footwork is vital. And at all times, stay relaxed!

Maryland's Bonded Debt 2 Millions Lower Sept. 30

State Comptroller Tawes Submits Official Report on Finances

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 5 (AP)—The state comptroller's office during the last fiscal year received $64,797,172 in state and federal funds and expended a total of $60,668,404.

In the previous fiscal year, expenditures exceeded receipts. Disbursements then were $67,152,297 and receipts, $66,061,555. State officials said some federal funds were left over from the prior fiscal year, enabling the state to spend more than it received.

A statement released by State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes shows that the state's bonded indebtedness was reduced approximately $2,000,000 during the fiscal year ended September 30.

The bonded indebtedness at the close of the fiscal year was $44,466,000, compared to $46,163,000 for the previous fiscal year. The state in the last fiscal year redeemed $4,540,000 in outstanding bonds and issued only $2,543,000 worth of bonds.

The general fund surplus was $6,151,955 at September 30, compared with the prior fiscal year's surplus of $4,467,725. The surplus jumped because of reversions from state departments of $847,567 and an increase in state revenues of $636,663.

In the previous fiscal year reversions from state departments amounted to only $371,280, Tawes said.

Apprentices Give Talks before Club

Kiwanis Vocational Guidance Program Featured by Young Shopmen

Talks by four young railroad shop apprentices featured a vocational guidance program yesterday at the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

The young men, all of whom made exceptionally good talks, were Millford E. Davis and Ivan L. Fry, of the Baltimore and Ohio; Richard J. Hare, of the Western Maryland; and Robert Sweene, of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania. Each of them expressed real interest and pride in his trade.

The program was in charge of William Claus, general manager of the C&P, who after a short introductory talk presented Roy W. Eves, superintendent of the B&O bolt and forge shop, and George R. Lyming, Western Maryland master mechanic. Eves and Lyming briefly explained the apprentice system before introducing the young men.

Other guests included three students from the vocational training class at Fort Hill high school. Introduced by Fred Dodge, they were A. Bernard Eyler, George T. Dayton and James J. Kave.

President W. M. Somerville announced plans for the annual Christmas party, to be held at the Fort Cumberland Monday afternoon, December 23. Underprivileged children will be the guests.

James W. Bishop was admitted as a new member of the club.

Handy Place

There are a number of reasons Mr. Gunter thinks young men and women will like the place he has created for their enjoyment at considerable expense. First of all, Guntertown is conveniently located right on the National Highway, eighteen miles west of Cumberland. It will be handy, he thinks.

Then, too, there are many people anxious to take up the winter sport without sinking too much money into it at first. Mr. Gunter has made arrangements for these people, too. He has about $2,000 worth of equipment he intends to rent out to visitors this winter. Beginners will also have the opportunity of obtaining instruction from an expert who will be imported by Mr. Gunter after Dec. 20.

Cross country ski races over four, eight and twelve mile courses will be run at Guntertown each Sunday afternoon. Movies of the events will be taken and shown the following week. For diversion, there will be a toboggan slide, and an opportunity for sleigh-ride parties.

Sleighriding, Too

Remember the days people used to get a bobsled, hitch on behind a pair of frisky horses and set out over glistening snow-crusted snow with bells tinkling? Well, Mr. Gunter is going to provide for that too. He thought some people might like moonlight rides on the winding roads in the Frostburg section, unparalleled for its beautiful mountain scenery.

Guntertown, the host thinks, will have snow as often as anyplace in the area. It was recalled that Frostburg, ordinarily, is ten degrees colder than Cumberland. And Guntertown, high above sea level, is generally four degrees colder than Frostburg.

Another thing Mr. Gunter is banking on, is the fact that his ski slope will be available both day and night since the run will be floodlighted every night. And he also has a ski tow. This means that working people will not necessarily have to confine their activity to week-ends, since they can take a run up to Guntertown after work and come home in the evening, refreshed and lively as a colt after a few hours in that snappy, mountain climate.

Deserves A Hand

Newspapermen feel that Mr. Gunter deserves a hand for what he has done at Guntertown at considerable expense. Skiing and related winter sports were only introduced in this vicinity last winter by a handful of "pioneers." However, Mr. Gunter is the first farsighted man with the courage to do something about it, to go ahead, put out good money, and prepare a place where winter sports enthusiasts can have a good time.

Mr. Gunter is sold on the future of winter sports in Western Maryland. He thinks its going to be a big thing, drawing sportsmen from all over. Most people are giving him a big hand for what he has done, are planning to call on Mr. Gunter at Guntertown quite frequently this winter.

Guests entertained last night were Donald Shires, Fred McCamac, Gene Gunning, Frank Lee Carl and J. William Hunt, all of the Evening Times; Rudy Nickel, of the Cumberland News; and Frank V. Becker and David H. Murrie of Station WTBO.

ous chemicals is very general in every part of the country. The spray usually contains lead or arsenic. Much of the poison is washed off in the summer rains, but there is always a possibility that some trace of it will be left on the mature fruit or vegetable.

"Through washing before cooking, or serving raw, is a necessary precaution. This should be remembered in connection with lettuce, cabbage and other vegetables that are served raw, as well as in connection with fruits.

"Co-operative services are maintained by the state department of health and the Extension Service of the University of Maryland to prevent marketing of fruits or vegetables containing a dangerous amount of the poison. Further protection is afforded by the services of the federal Food and Drug Administration with regard to fruits and vegetables grown outside the state.

"The growers are very co-operative and have worked closely with the department. But it is always safest to wash both fruits and vegetables before you use them."

disease and "should by all means receive the injections," Dr. Franklin said.

Injections Urged

When tests show positive the health department strongly urges that the children concerned should receive the diphtheria injections.

Dr. Franklin also called attention to the fact that all children should be given protection against diphtheria as soon after six months of age as possible. This can be done by the family physician.

Dr. Franklin yesterday called attention to the fact that the success of the health department's program in combatting diphtheria is largely due to the department's activities in connection with the children.

"The protection of children at this early age has been the prime factor in practically eradicating the disease," Dr. Franklin said.

Johnstown Councilman Is Married Here

A Johnstown, Pa., city councilman yesterday put aside his municipal duties long enough to drive to Cumberland, pick up a marriage license and have the nuptial knot tied by a local minister.

The bridegroom is Samuel Clyde Snook, 48, a member of the city council of the present Johnstown administration. His bride gave her name as Mrs. Dahlia Glessner Ostheim, 47, a widow, who also lives in Johnstown.

After obtaining the license the couple drove to the home of the Rev. G. E. Baughman where they were married, court house attaches said.

Nazarene Pastor Celebrates Seventh Anniversary Here

The Rev. J. H. Parker, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene, located at 508 Oldtown road has completed seven years as pastor of the church.

The church membership and the Sunday school have grown considerably and all departments have made marked progress under the leadership of the Rev. Mr. Parker.

Last Sunday the church appropriately celebrated the seventh anniversary of the Rev. Mr. Parker's pastorate.

At the close of the morning service the minister was presented a check by members of the church and Mrs. Parker received a basket of chrysanthemums.

Oldtown Methodist Church Is Holding Revival Services

Evangelistic services are now in progress in the Oldtown Methodist church under the direction of the Rev. James A. Richards, pastor of the Oldtown circuit.

Services this week have been conducted by the Rev. Edward H. Porter, of Paw Paw Methodist church; the Rev. Robert H. Parker, of Union Grove; the Rev. J. M. Griffin, of Hancock; the Rev. A. H. Robinson, of the Central church in Cumberland and the Rev. H. A. Kester of Kingsley Methodist church in Cumberland.

The song service each night is conducted by the Rev. Mr. Richards.

Each night next week, which will be the closing week of the services, the Rev. George E. Baughman, pastor of the First Methodist church in Cumberland will preach.

Churches To Have Special Sermons On Foreign Relief Appeal

All ministers of Cumberland and vicinity have been asked to preach a special sermon Sunday and take up a collection for foreign relief funds.

The appeal has been made by the Council of Churches through the Ministerial Union and the Council of Church Women of this city.

The women's committee includes Mrs. William A. Eisenberger, Mrs. A. L. Rogers and Mrs. John S. Cook.

Wildlife Sportsmen Will Meet Dec. 18 In Hagerstown

The Washington County Wildlife Advisory Council, headed by Roy C. F. Weagley, of Hagerstown, will be host to the Wildlife councils from Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties at Hagerstown, Dec 18, at which time game legislation, conservation and allied topics will be discussed.

Weagley named D. Raymond Snively, the Rev. Walter B. McKinley and Harry Dengler, soil conservation forester, to the program committee and appointed Joseph Hoffman, D. E. Rinehart and Henry Ayers members of the banquet committee.

The sportsmen will discuss improvement of relations between farmers and sportsmen, proposed changes in the state-wide game-license law and education of rural youth in wildlife conservation.

Women's Sport Club To Meet in Girl Scout Headquarters

Due to a previously planned affair at the Central Y. M. C. A., the Women's Sport Club will hold tonight's meeting at Girl Scout Headquarters on Greene street.

Officers for 1941 will be elected and committees appointed for the dance Christmas night at the Clary club. The second game in a card series will be played and refreshments served.

While officials of the club had previously announced that tonight's meeting at 8 o'clock would be held at the "Y" the switch to the Girl Scout Headquarters was made necessary due to previously made arrangements by "Y" officers.

Reserve Lieutenant Called to Active Duty

First Lieut. Ralph M. Luman, a reserve infantry officer of the United States Army, has received orders to report Sunday at Fort George G. Meade to begin a tour of extended active duty which will take him soon to Fort Benning, Ga.

Luman, of 224 Fayette street, is assigned to a light tank unit. He is a member of the Officers Reserve Corps and a former member of the Western Maryland Chapter of the Reserve Officers Association. Two years ago Luman taught school at Oakland and last winter was in Florida most of the time.

Delegates Are Named To Farm Convention

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Loar and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Wilson will be delegates to the National Farm Bureau Convention in Baltimore next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Loar will leave for Baltimore, Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are planning to make the trip, Monday.

A story published previously in which Mr. and Mrs. Caleb White were listed as delegates to the convention was erroneous, Mr. Wilson said last night. The Whites were delegates to last year's convention.

Ridgeley Journalism Class Visits Exhibit At Public Library

The Ridgeley high school class in journalism, of thirty-one students, visited the Printing Week exhibit Wednesday at the Cumberland Free Public Library.

Under teacher guidance, sixty students of the East Side school visited the exhibit yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Shipley, of Valley road, announce the birth of twin daughters yesterday morning at Memorial hospital.

A son was born yesterday morning at Memorial hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Lakin Root, 402 Pine avenue.

Worchester County Wants Deer Season

BERLIN, Md., Dec. 5 (AP)—Sportsmen in Worcester county, where deer-hunting has been prohibited for two seasons, want to go gunning them next year because the deer have increased at a rapid rate.

Dr. Charles R. Law, Berlin physician and leader of the country's sportsmen, said he would ask State Game Warden E. Lee Lecompte to include a five-day season on male deer in this county when he presents his legislative requests to the general assembly.

Dr. Law estimated there were between 350 and 400 wild deer roaming the county now. Some sportsmen had contended that the large herds have hurt formers' crops and created traffic hazards by running across the highways.

Nineteen bucks were reported killed in 1937 in this county's first deer-hunting season and sixteen were reported killed in 1938, although in an effort to save the male deer, sportsmen voted to close the season in 1939 and 1940.

Two Sets of Twins Born in 11 Months

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 5 (AP)—James and Jacquelyn Jones, twins, are only eleven months older than Franklin and Henry Jones, their twin brothers.

Parents of the two sets of twins in less than a year are Mr. and Mrs. William Jones.

James and Jacquelyn were born Dec. 3, 1939. Franklin and Henry born last Nov. 6, the day after the election, were named after the president and the vice-president.

Jones, 39, a WPA blacksmith, and his wife, 34, are the parents of seven other children.

Finds He's Living On Borrowed Time

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb. (AP)—Earl Webb of Nebraska City is very much alive here, despite the fact his name appears on a monument in Kansas City to the World war dead.

He was given up for lost in a battle in France, but was discovered later in a hospital recovering from wounds.

Labor Shortage in Baltimore Provides Jobs for Outsiders

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5 (AP) — A labor shortage in Baltimore, extending even to inexperienced High School graduates, forced the state employment service to bring 100 Eastern Shore youths into the city to fill vocational training course vacancies, Director David L. B. Fringer disclosed today.

During November, Fringer added, jobs were found for 152 persons who took the courses. Since they were started in Maryland, 1,200 trainees have obtained jobs and the service now "expects to place practically every person who completes one of the courses satisfactorily."

At the same time, Fringer announced the employment service located jobs for 4,671 presons last month, including 2,879 in Baltimore and 1,792 in the counties. Placements for the year so far total 38,399, nearly 10,000 more than the corresponding total for 1939, he said.

"The employment service files of persons seeking work continue to decline," Fringer asserted, "and the service is still having great difficulty in locating qualified workers for many of the openings it has."

Scoring their second straight sweep victory—a 3-0 win over Capt. Jack Treiber's team, Captain Eddie Martz's pinmen sliced another game off the leading margin of Captain "Doc" Rozum's outfit in Division "A" of the Elks' Bowling League this week when the latter crew dropped one of three games to Captain Joe Conway's aggregation.

With two matches (six games) remaining for each team on the first half schedule, next week's meeting between the Rozum and Martz outfits probably will determine the first half championship.

"Red" Howell clipped 202-457 scores for the Treiber team, while Phil Jolley paced the Martzmen with 455. George Brodbeck's 474 count was high in the Rozum-Conway tussle, while John Mosner and Cal Kingery topped the winners with 457 and 443, respectively. The scores:

Fleming Praises Wage-Hour Law

Administrator Critical Toward Manufacturers Who Oppose It

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5 (AP)—Col Philip B. Fleming, administrator of the Federal Wage and Hour Act said today "we have had as yet no proof whatever that industry is being handicapped by the law as it stands."

Addressing the industrial committee of the California state Chamber of Commerce on application of the law to defense production, Colonel Fleming said:

"If certain industrialists now say, 'we can't get out the production in a 40-hour week,' my answer to them is, 'then hire more workers;' that is what Congress expected and wanted you to do.'

"If they say, 'we can't find among the unemployed the skilled workers we need,' my answer is 'then train more workers.'

"If they say, 'we haven't time to train more workers,' I reply 'you had better take time, for if you use up your present supply of skilled workers by working them to the point of exhaustion now, you will have no labor reserve to fall back upon next year or the year after, when our situation may really be critical.'

"If they say, 'even while we are training more workers we will have to work overtime to get out the goods,' my answer is, 'very well then, work overtime, and pay time and a half for the excess hours. There is nothing in the law to prevent it.'"

Local Democrats Will Hold Jackson Day Dinner Here

Final plans for the annual Jackson Day Dinner next month will be completed Monday, Dec. 16, at 8 o'clock at a meeting of the Democratic Cosmopolitan Club.

Trial Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce is chairman of the committee which is planning the most elaborate Jackson Day event ever held here. It will combine in one evening a celebration of the birthday of "Old Hickory" and the Democratic victory at the polls last month.

The banquet will be for men and women, a departure from the former stag celebrations, and will be held at a local hotel, to be selected.

The date to be set will not conflict with Jackson Day banquets in Baltimore and Washington.

Hagerstown Health Center Has Perfect Record for 6 Months

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Dec. 5. (AP) — There was not a single death among the 453 babies being cared for at the infant and child health center in the six months ending Nov. 30, the institution's semi-annual report discloses.

In the past six months, the report showed, 405 children were given treatment at the center, twenty-four at the Washington county hospital, fifty-four at the health department clinics and twenty-five at doctor's offices. The treatments were for various diseases, malnutrition and deformities.

In addition the clinic's nurse treated thirty-six at-home cases, diphtheria innoculations were given to fifty and Schick tests to 120.

In the same period the Lions club furnished 2,704 quarts and 244 pints of milk to the center and the Zonta club donated $21.43 for filling forty-four prescriptions. Children were sent to the nursing home by the Kiwanis club.

The center was launched five years ago by members of the woman's club with the assistance of the county health department and the Washington County Medical Society.

Ex-Convict Held in Shooting of Woman

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Dec 5 (AP)—Police trapped an ex-convict tonight as a suspect in the shooting of Mrs. Sylvia Anderson, 45, mother of four children.

Police were told the man called Mrs. Anderson to the door of her home today and shot her in the head. Hospital attendants said she was epected to die.

Howard Anderson, her husband, said she had been threatened because of their reconciliation after a four-year separation.

Police were tipped that the forty-five-year-old ex-convict, now a steel worker, expected to meet his wife at nearby Congo, W. Va. They drove his own automobile to the rendezvous and arrested him when he walked from his hiding place. He was brought to jail here.

Anderson told police he and his wife had "agreed to forget the past for the sake of our children."

Their five-year-old daughter and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Anderson, witnessed the shooting. Afterward, the man drove to a pottery where his wife is employed and told her he had "shot a woman," police reported.

He persuaded her to accompany him across the Ohio river to Congo where he kissed her goodbye and left their car, she told police.

Police said the man had served a prison sentence for a grocery store robbery here five years

IT'S THE TRADE THAT COUNTS

In this week's papers you'll see a 1937 Ford Tudor advertised at $250 and in an adjoining column the same make and model at $365. Certainly there isn't that much difference in "Twins." It's the "Difference" in your trade that counts. Get Heiskell's "Difference" before you trade. Why, we might even trade you even—and you'll have a car that suits you better!

John H. Guinard Is Found Dead At His Home

Son Finds Body in Empty Bathtub; Death Accidental, Coroner Says

John Henry "Jumbo" Guinard, 39, a World war veteran, was found dead yesterday about 4 p. m., in the bathroom of his second floor apartment at 50 Greene street.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy medical examiner, issued a verdict of "accidental death by strangulation." He said Guinard probably died during an epileptic seizure.

Son Discovered Body

Authorities were called to the apartment by Guinard's 19-year-old son, Leonard, who discovered the body "doubled up" in the bath tub when he returned home from work on an N. Y. A. project.

He said the radio was playing when he entered the apartment and that he noticed a light in the bathroom when he started to get something to eat. He added that he took it for granted that his father was busy painting and called, "Do you want something to eat."

He investigated when he did not receive an answer and found his father fully clothed, in the empty tub.

His uncle, Harvey Hendrickson, who accompanied him home, then ran across the street to the nearby office of Dr. J. E. McLean. All three moved the body from the tub to the living room settee.

A short time later County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris and Officers J. W. Smallwood and G. W. Deffenbaugh arrived.

Apparently Fell From Ladder

Guinard was painting the bathroom when he apparently fell from a ladder into the tub, they reported. A plate glass shelf and a mirror was broken in the fall and he suffered minor cuts about the nose and mouth.

His wife, Mrs. Leota B. Hendrickson Guinard, was at work at the Celanese plant when the accident occurred. She told authorities she left home about 2:30 p. m., and that her husband was all right then. The time of the accident was set at about 3:30 p. m.

Sergt. Raymond Johnston and Detective B. Frank Gaffney were also present at the investigation.

Born July 5, 1901

Born July 5, 1901, Mr. Guinard was a son of John and the late Mary Donaldson Guinard. An aunt, Mrs. Etta Guinard, of Ridgeley, W. Va., raised him from infancy following the death of his mother. He was a salesman for the Insulation Brick Company of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Many times he assisted Fred "Buck" Dreyer, veteran riverman, in recovering bodies of drowning victims. He was a member of the old "Bulldogs" football team here some years ago.

He was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church.

Surviving, besides his widow, son, father and aunt, are a daughter, Mrs. Elia May Stinebaugh, this city; and three sisters, Misses Marguerite, Charlotte and Ruth Guinard, all of Renova, Pa.

The body is at Stein's funeral home.

Mrs. Cecelia Blank Dies in This City

Mother of Mrs. V. R. Kirby Succumbs after Illness of Several Months

Mrs. Cecelia Blank, 83, widow of John E. Blank, of Wellersburg, Pa., died at noon yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. V. R. Kirby, 101 Pennsylvania avenue, following a lingering illness.

Mrs. Blank was a native of Cherry Run, Va., and a daughter of the late John and Jane Orndorf. She was a member of the Methodist church, Mt. Savage.

Her husband died in 1926.

Surviving, in addition to her daughters, are seven sons, George and Melvin Blank, of Hollsopple, Pa.; William Blank, of Gray, Pa.; Robert Blank, of New Castle, Pa.; Harry Blank, of Baltimore; Raymond Blank, of Corriganville, and Howard Blank, of Cumberland; three other daughters, Mrs. Eva Chambers, of Niles, Ohio; Mrs. Clara England, of Girard, Pa., and Mrs. Bertha McMurry, this city; and one sister, Mrs. Ellen Jenkins, of Mt. Savage.

The body is at Hafer's funeral home.

William Beeche Dies

William Beeche, 48, single, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 201 Springdale street.

Born in Cumberland, he was a son of Louis and Louise Beeche.

Surviving, besides his parents, are four brothers, Walter, Earl J. and Jerry Beeche, of Cumberland, and Elmer Beeche, of New York; and three sisters, Mrs. James Davis, this city; Mrs. Edward Wilharm, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Miss Pearl B. Beeche, at home.

Mrs. Washington Dies

Mrs. Anna Washington, colored, died yesterday morning at her home, 332 Central avenue.

Christmas Party Is Well Received

Largest Crowd of Week Enjoys Entertainment at State Armory

The Christmas party of the Memorial Hospital cancer clinic really swung into high gear last night with over 1,000 people on hand including Dave Schooler's 21 "Swinghearts", one of America's ranking girl bands.

The "Swinghearts", appearing at the Strand theater today, moved in on the Christmas party last night and proceeded to do their bit to pep things up and give the people a good time.

Last night's throng, the biggest so far this week, included a number of large parties including F. T. Small and forty from the Celanese Corporation, Tasker Lowndes and a large party of guests and Ralph L. Rizer and a group of friends.

Bidding Best Yet

William L. Sherman gurgled with pleasure when queried regarding last night's auctioneering performance which was about half over at 11:20 o'clock. Packages were going like hot cakes, Mr. Sherman reported, with the average price per package being $1.61.

At the halfway point, a total of $217.62 had been taken in by Auctioneers William Cramer and Frank Storm and both were still going strong. Sherman predicted that last night's bidding would top the total for any one day so far.

Charles W. Carlson, president of the United States Glass Company at Tiffin, O., called Christmas party officials in Cumberland yesterday morning to inquire if patrons of the party had been satisfied with the contributions from the firm.

More Gifth Shipped

The Christmas party official contacted must have been convincing. At any rate, Carlson was so pleased with the report that he immediately ordered twenty-four more valuable pieces of glassware shipped to Cumberland at once. They were put on a train at Tiffin, shipped to Cleveland and whisked right through to Cumberland for last night's party.

Eight of the valuable pieces of glassware were auctioned off last night. Eight more will go tonight

SANTA'S HELPERS—Pictured above are seven Boy Scouts of Troop No. 23, sponsored by Bethany United Brethren church, who are repairing old toys which will be distributed to poor children for Christmas. The boy seated on the left is Wallace Wolford, behind him is Jimmie Crabtree, to his right is Bobby Long, Paul Gross, Irvin Orndorff, Ray Lapp and kneeling is Jack Weaver. Over 100 toys have been repaired and painted and about 200 will be finished in the next two weeks. The troop leaders are; Walter C. Clark, scoutmaster; Harold Thompson, assistant; Forrest Snider, junior assistant; The Rev. C. K. Welch is pastor of the church.

FINISHED PRODUCT—Some of the rebuilt and painted toys are pictured being inspected by Billy Clark, holding his pet dog, Tommy Hare, Harold Bishop and Hummy Sommerkamp. Notice in the foreground the toy Donald Duck playing the xylophone. The toy-making project which is under the supervision of a committee appointed by the church has received much praise from welfare agencies. The committee in charge includes Kenneth Turner, chairman, J. H. Weaver, Chester Crabtree, Lawrence Pennington, J. H. Sommerkamp, Elmo Feeland and William Freeland.

Diptheria Test Will Be Given 2,000 Children

First Grade Students in Public and Parochial Schools To Be Tested

The job of making some 2,000 first grade children in Cumberland public and parochial schools safe from diphtheria will be started Monday, Dr. Joseph F. Franklin, city and county health officer said yesterday.

The health department is now working out a schedule which will be completed by Monday when the diphtheria immunization program is scheduled to start.

"The Schick test will be made on children in the first grade whose parents sign the consent slip," Dr. Franklin said. "The test should be made regardless of whether or not the child has had injections to protect against diphtheria.

Schick Test To Be made

"The reason is that this test usually indicates whether or not a child has developed protection against diphtheria. It is well known that some children do not develop protection when the first injections are given and for this reason the test should be made so that this fact can be determined."

The fact that diphtheria has been almost stamped out in the city is attributed largely to the health department immunization program. Dr. Franklin recalled that there have been no diphtheria deaths in the last six years and only four cases of the disease in the last five years.

Disease Once Common

Prior to the broad program launched by the health department, diphtheria deaths were common both in the city and county. Each year the dread diseasse took its toll.

Today, that is a thing of the past and it is for this reason that the health department is anxious that children continue to be made safe against the disease.

Commenting on the Schick test, Dr. Franklin said its importance is due to the fact that it reveals whether or not children are susceptible to diphtheria.

If a child's test shows positive it means he is susceptible to the

There was some excitement among the younger members—and perhaps the older members, too—of the fairer sex up Mt. Savage way the other day.

It was all because of an error on the part of the youngsters who was selling tickets for the school offering the buyer an opportunity to win a movie producer.

Feminine hearts fluttered. Why a handsome wealthy movie producer would be almost—but not quite—comparable to a movie star such as Clark Gable, to name only one.

Then disillusionment. It was later discovered that the lad was selling tickets on a movie projector, not a producer.

—o—

With the fruit season at its height and the markets, stores and roadside stands offering tempting arrays of every variety of fruit and vegetables, the state department of health has issued several important "Don't Forgets," which Dr. Joseph Franklin, local health officer, has received.

Number one is addressed especially to housewives, cooks and all others who handle or serve foods. It is "Wash all fruits and vegetables thoroughly before you serve them."

Number two is addressed more particularly to mothers and to managers of school cafeterias. It gives similar advice about washing the fruit served in school lunch rooms or packed in the children's kits brought from home.

"The fruits and vegetables that are so abundant, now, and that are in invitingly displayed all the year-round in our Maryland markets, go through a great deal of handling before they reach us," Dr. Franklin said.

"There is always a chance, too, that they will retain some traces of the poisonous spray that is used to protect the growing crops from insect pests. Careful washing will not only remove dirt or soil acquired in handling but will get rid of what may remain of the poison spray.

"The custom of spraying growing fruits and vegetables with poison-

CIO Convention Opens Thursday In Hagerstown

Executive Board Will Meet Wednesday To Make Final Plans

The executive board of the Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Union Council (CIO) will meet in Hagerstown, Wednesday, to make plans for the three-day state convention opening Thursday.

James B. Collins, president of the Western Maryland Industrial Union Council, will preside at the first session, opening at 10 a. m., Thursday, at the Hotel Alexander. Collins will then turn the convention over to John T. Jones, state president.

Reports of officers and naming of committees will take up most of the delegates' time the first day.

Attorney General William C. Walsh will speak at the Friday morning session. There will be committee reports that afternoon and a dinner that night. Officers will be elected Saturday.

With the meeting coming so soon after the CIO national contends, the delegates are expected to discuss national problems. Labor unity probably will be among the subjects brought before the convention.

A large delegation from various Cumberland unions is expected to attend the convention including nine representatives from Local 1874, TWUA.

John A. Thomas Seeks Habeas Corpus Writ

John Aaron Thomas, confined in the county jail since Nov. 6 in connection with an appeal from juvenile court for non support of his child, yesterday asked circuit court for a writ of habeas corpus.

Thomas, represented by Attorney Albert A. Doub, Jr., contends that Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe is detaining him illegally.

Discontinuance Of Traffic Light Is Opposed

Protection at Greene and Allegany Streets Needed, Says Schilling

The possible discontinuance of the traffic light at the corner of Greene and Allegany streets today had resulted in several comments directed to the News by interested citizens.

It was also announced that the Paca Street P-TA will meet Monday night at the school to give the matter their consideration.

In a letter to the NEWS, Sylvester Schilling, of 415 Greene street, expressed his opinion to Chief Oscar A. Eyerman's request.

Parents Are Concerned

"This matter concerns the parents of children attending the Paca Street School, yet, the residents of that vicinity are also interested," Schilling wrote.

"This light was placed several years ago as a protection for children from the Rose Hill section who attended the Cumberland Street School. If the light was necessary then, it is needed much more now since the Cumberland Street School has been moved to Paca street and all children north of Greene street west of the B. & O. Railroad now use that crossing.

"The fact that thirty-five children failed to obey the light is no reason why 335 others who do obey should have their lives endangered.

Advocates Overhead Bridge

"The fact that traffic is slowed up is also a good thing. Many cars race by at from forty to fifty miles per hour only to be halted when they reach the bottleneck at Baltimore street.

"Probably the best solution for the whole matter would be a pedestrian overhead bridge at Chase and Greene streets. At this point, Greene street is depressed to enable traffic to enter the subway under the B. & O. Railroad.

"A bridge could be erected there, practically at grade, at any rate, with but two or three steps to reach it, and the matter would be solved for all time and no further cost except possibly to paint it every few years."

Governor Names J. Wesley Kelley On Committee

Twelve-man Group Will Recommend Conservation Regulations

J. Wesley Kelley, 1340 Shade's lane, executive secretary of the Western Maryland Outdoor Federation, has been appointed to a committee by Governor Herbert R. O'Conor to study and recommend a conservation program to the General Assembly when it next convenes.

In commenting on the problems of conservation Governor O'Conor said, "if the right answer can be agreed upon now, there is no use in waiting until a future time to afford the benefits to our people.

"If improvement in the existing setup can be affected, that improvement should be made without undue delay. Whatever is right to do

School Children Invited To See Printing Exhibit

Saturday Will Be Last Day The Public Can View the Display

Cumberland school children are cordially invited to visit the printing exhibit of the Typographical Union, Saturday, at the Public Library, officials of the organization said last night.

Saturday will be the last day the remarkable exhibit will be shown and officers of the union are hopeful school boys and girls will avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing a comprehensive exhibition of the trade.

Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, estimated last night that over 1,000 people have visited the exhibit so far this week.

Members of the union said that 700 had signed the roster. However, Miss Walsh said there were many visitors who neglected to sign.

The series of talks on printing at school assemblies is being continued today, it was announced last night.

J. E. Mackert will address LaSalle high school students today at 1 o'clock. Miss Walsh will give two talks today, one at the Frederick street school at 11:30 a. m. and another at Girls Central high school at 1:30 o'clock. Miss Walsh spoke at St. Mary's school Wednesday.

Another speaker Wednesday was Miss Mary Luteman who addressed students at Ursuline Academy.

Bids Asked on Two Star Mail Routes

James C. Shriver, local postmaster, announced yesterday that bids have been asked for mail contracts to haul the two Star routes which operate out of Cumberland.

The first route is from Cumberland by way of Flintstone to Artemas, Pa., a distance of 27.75 miles one way.

The mail is delivered six times a week while no service is given on Sundays and holidays.

In addition to the usual box deliveries the contractor is required to collect mail and sell stamp supplies, deliver registered matter, accept and give receipts for money orders, accept matter for registration, or insurance, and C.O.D. parcels.

The mail leaves here at 7 a. m., and arrives at Artemas at 10:30 a. m. The carrier leaves Artemas at 2:30 p. m., on receipt of mail from the rural carrier and arrives at Cumberland three and a half hours later.

The bond required with the bid is $1,600. The present pay is $1,494.

The other route goes from here to Long, to Eckhart Mines and thence to Frostburg. Six trips a week are made. Twelve round trips a week are also made between Eckhart Mines and Frostburg.

An additional part of this route consists of six trips weekly from here to Long and Frostburg, thence to Lonaconing.

Bond required with the bid is $2,000. Present pay is $1,796.

Five Bands and Drum Corps Will Play on Baltimore Street

FIVE BANDS and drum corps will participate in the ceremonies to be held when the Christmas street decorations on Baltimore street are lighted.

Both the Fort Hill and Allegany high school bands have accepted invitations to play. Other musical groups that have accepted invitations are the Sons of the Legion drum and bugle corps, the Veterans of Foreign Wars drum and bugle corps and the American Legion band.

In all probability the drum and bugle corps of Company G National Guard will play.

The musical organizations will be stationed at street corners along the length of Baltimore street and after the lighting ceremonies are over will play selections.

Dave Gunter Will Operate Ski Slope At Guntertown

Trail Is Only One in Western Maryland with Mechanically Driven Tow

Dave Gunter, well known Frostburger, who spent most of the past twenty or twenty-five winters in warmer climes such as Florida, California, South America and even far-off Hawaii, has decided to stay in Guntertown, Garrett county, this winter and operate his new ski slope which has been under construction since last June.

The slope, 2,350 feet in length with an average grade of fifteen and one-half per cent, is the only one in Western Maryland equipped with a mechanically driven ski tow which pulls the skiers back up the hill after making the descent. It is also the only slope almost intersecting a main highway and accessible without traveling over lateral country roads.

Has Northern Exposure

The Guntertown slope which has a northern exposure is unique among other local trails in that it is dotted at irregular intervals with stately maple and oak trees which enables the skier either to use the straight down hill grade or vary his course around the trees. When a skiers reaches the bottom of the slope he may continue his skiing on a three and a half mile cross country trail or take hold of the ski tow, operated by a gasoline engine, and come back up the hill. The trip back up the hill on the tow will likely furnish more enjoyment, particularly for the beginners, than the down-hill ride on unruly skis.

Mr. Gunter, who entertained a number of newspapermen at dinner last evening, takes pardonable pride in the fact that he is the first ski slope operator in this section to install a mechanical ski pull which was so much missed last year by the college boys and girls and other ski enthusiasts from as far west as St. Louis who visited Garrett county to enjoy this popular winter sport.

The ski pull equipment is a hemp rope one inch thick attached to a ski pull gasoline engine manufactured by the Underwood Machinery Company, Boston, Mass., which has been making similar engines for the famous ski trails of Europe for over a half century.

Visits other Trails

Mr. Gunter visited the White Mountains in New Hampshire and other noted ski trails sections last summer to get pointers for his Western Maryland slope and he stated last evening that the equipment installed at Guntertown is the same type used at the best trails he visited.

The Guntertown slope is seven miles west of Frostburg and eighteen miles west of Cumberland on Route 40 at an altitude of 2,875 feet and is so situated that one can sit in his car on the National Highway and almost see directly down the trail. The top of the slope is only a few hundred feet from the inn and the ski pull engine is housed in a neat structure in plain view of the highway.

Cabins Are Attractive

Due to the fact that he has a large number of attractively furnished cabins with steam heat and bath, Mr. Gunter feels confident that his trail will attract large patronage, only a part of which can be accommodated with sleeping quarters at Guntertown. The overflow, he says, will patronize hotels in Cumberland, Frostburg and Grantsville and road houses along Route 40 and this influx of visitors, Mr. Gunter continued, will bring business to Western Maryland which in the absence of a modernized ski slope would naturally go elsewhere.

Scores of skiers, Mr. Gunter reported, visited Guntertown last Thursday, Friday and Saturday and he anticipates a larger number this week-end who will be attracted by the coating of snow which covered the ground today, not only on the main ski slope but on the cross country terrain of three and one-half miles which is expected to become popular with the more experienced cross country ski racers.

Mr. Gunter said he held a conference this week with representative of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad with a view of having excursions run to this section for the benefit of skiers who could come to Cumberland from eastern cities by rail and then to Garrett county by bus.

Cumberland Newspapermen Like Dave Gunter's Unique Ski Lodge

Newspapermen fortunate enough to get there found the dining hall of Dave Gunter's Ski Lodge a cheery place to be last night when they sat down to a table groaning under the weight of a delicious dinner guaranteed to delight even the hardiest of outdoors men.

Outside, a shrewd wind whipped along the snow-blanketed ski run, a graceful not too-difficult slope hemmed with a border of trees on both sides. Inside, the hot food, big logs crackling in the fireplace and the softly diffused lights from the old-fashioned lanterns suspended from the ceiling, gave the interior of the lodge a cozy, comfortable atmosphere.

Newspapermen present ate Swiss steak, lettuce salad, creamed peas, mashed potatoes, dressing, celery, olives, pickles, what were described as the "most delicious hot rolls you ever sank your teeth into", mince and pumpkin pie and coffee.

Guntertown Special

The newspapermen also raved about a specially-constructed cocktail, apparently a specialty at Guntertown featuring East India rum, which their good host served prior to the time the dinner bell rang.

The newsmen remarked about the pleasant atmosphere Mr. Gunter has created at his winter sports mecca where a winter sports mural big fireplace, attractive lanterns, skiis and ski poles hung on the walls and other deft touches have contrived to make the lodge a pleasant place.

There are also comfortable cottages, steam-heated, with knotty pine paneled walls, maple furniture, innerspring mattresses and

Deer Season Will End Today; Minke Reports 98 Killed in Garrett County

The deer hunting season ends today at sundown and hunters who have not already bagged a deer will go out for a last chance at the fleet-footed animals.

Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke reported last night that four deer were killed in Allegany county yesterday to bring to thirty-seven the number killed so far this season.

98 Killed in Garrett

Fifty-four deer were reported last night by Minke to have been bagged in Garrett county yesterday and Wednesday. This brings the season's kill to ninety-eight.

Among those killed yesterday was an eight-point buck weighing 180 pounds, which was bagged by James L. Barrow, 301 Washington street, on Meadow Mountain. Mr. Barrow is manager of the C. & P. Telephone Company in Cumberland.

The largest deer to have been reported in either Garrett or Allegany county was a 300-pound buck with eight points which was shot by Delph Rodaheaver, of Deer Park. He bagged the big animal near the town in which he lives.

T. R. Richards, of College Park, Md., rifled a nine-point, 175-pound buck on Snaggy Mountain in Garrett county.

R. D. McNeill, of Hagerstown, killed a twelve-point, 150-pound deer on Backbone Mountain.

Ruffo Kills 200 Pounder

Frank Ruffo, of Frostburg, shot an eight-point buck weighing 200 pounds, on Bear Creek.

O. H. Shrout, of 533 Fort avenue, this city, killed a six-point buck weighing 160 pounds on Town Hill.
